Senator Michael Morrissey and Reps. Ronald Mariano and Steve Tobin presented him with State House resolves congratulating him on being selected as Citizen of The Year. The House resolve was also from Rep. Michael Bellotti who was unable to attend.

City Council President Michael Cheney presented Comer with an engraved City of Quincy pin.

Albert Schlossberg, past national commander of the Jewish War Veterans, gave Comer a framed copy of a photograph taken of them with Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek on a trip to Israel.

Former School Committeeman Frank Anselmo who previously had donated $10,000 to help finance the Citizens Flag Alliance's campaign for a Constitutional amendment to protect the American flag from abuse pledged another $5,000 to Comer Sunday.

Comer, a spearhead in the drive for the amendment, called on veterans present to contact Senator John Kerry and others to vote for the amendment.

The amendment, he said, would give the people the right to vote on a law to protect the flag from desecration.

"It doesn't say We The Congress, it doesn't say We The Supreme Court, it says 'We The People' and we the people should decide," Comer declared.

Mullen Has Suggestions To Alleviate Traffic Problems On Centre St.

As a result of the ongoing traffic problems at Dunkin Donuts on Centre Street, Police Chief Francis Mullen sent the following recommendations to the Quincy License Board Tuesday, which might possibly alleviate the situation. Chairman Joseph Shea read the following to board members at the meeting.

- Install high curbs on the portion of Centre Street in front of the Dunkin Donuts. This would discourage parking on Centre Street.
- Install "No Parking

Anytime" signs on the same section of Centre Street.

- Reduce the width of the sidewalk in front of the Donut Shop; that would widen the Northbound lane of Centre Street.

"Presently, as you exit from the rear of the Donut Shop, there is a "No Right Turn" sign posted on Columbia Street. The result is that all cars leaving must turn onto Centre Street, increasing the volume of traffic. It has been suggested that a second look/opinion be taken as to the necessity of the sign.

"The Engineering Department may want to look at the feasibility of widening Centre Street by using some of the Crown Colony property on the Southbound side of Centre Street.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Just How Important Is Your Home's Location?

Most prospective home buyers have heard the old adage that the three most important factors to consider when buying real estate are, "location, location, location."

In reality, although location is important, there is much more to consider in any real estate transactions which is why most home buyers and sellers choose to work with real estate professionals.

Just how important is location? A National Association of Realtors survey found that although affordability ranks high in importance, buyers' focus on neighborhood, distance from work, access to shopping and schools demonstrate that location is indeed significant.

"People who have bought real estate, especially those who have had a number of transactions, are aware of the value of location," James N. Stamos, president of the South Shore Association of Realtors says. "However, first time home buyers should be careful to choose a location that meets their needs, even if it means paying a little more. A bargain found in a less-than-advantageous location might look to be a good deal, but its chances for resale may be lower."

The NAR survey found that value of location is unique to the buyer interests. Home buyers with growing families are likely to look for a neighborhood with close proximity to work and schools. Retired home buyers consider availability of shopping a higher priority the survey shows.

"Neighborhoods are key to the type of environment the buyer is searching for," Stamos explains. "For example, neighborhoods surrounding elementary schools tend to attract families with young children. This won't necessarily change, since families whose children are now grown find other locations more convenient and are apt to sell, creating sufficient turnover for new families with younger children."

Buyers who own two cars also tend to rank closeness to schools higher than nearby shopping, work and other factors such as public transportation, churches and recreational facilities.

"It's important for potential buyers to examine what ranks high on their own list of priorities before they begin the house-hunting process. In that way, they'll have a clear idea of what amenities and services are available in the community they want to join."

The value of a house can change after its purchase. However, any change is likely to be gradual and will depend on factors such as the age of home. Older neighborhoods tend to change more gradually. Houses located near an institution, such as an elementary school, are usually a good investment since their worth is related to a factor that is long-lasting, in this case, the school. In some cases, a buyer may want to sacrifice an asset such as close proximity to a school if a larger house further away is more affordable.

"The whole subject of location is a personal choice for the buyer," Stamos says. "That's why a real estate professional will interview the buyer to determine his or her interests, priorities and financial position in order to select a range of possible homes to show."

The South Shore Association of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As "The Voice for Real Estate," NAR is the nation's largest trade association, representing 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Other Quincy officials, including state Sen. Michael Morrissey, expressed enthusiasm about Weld's announcement.

"It's great to have people (in the State House) who are listening," said Morrissey.

"I'm happy on all accounts that the South Shore is finally getting its fair share," said City Councillor Timothy Cahill. Earlier this year, state officials announced that an Old Colony station would be built in Quincy at the expense of plans to construct a station in Braintree. Weld said Friday both stations will indeed be built thanks to the efforts of Transportation Secretary James Kerasiotes, who according to the governor "was able to find the money under a rock."

Other South Shore officials said they also are pleased that money was found.

"It's the understatement of the day to say I'm thrilled for Braintree," said Rep. Joseph Sullivan (D-Braintree).

"The Weld administration has been very responsive to the needs of the South Shore," said Sen. Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth).

Kerasiotes, who also attended Friday's announcement, said Sullivan convinced MBTA officials that trains could alternate so rail passengers will not have to stop in both Quincy and Braintree. Trains will be designated as a Quincy or Braintree train to speed travel, he added.

"We're going to alternate the use of the stations so that what we don't do is have both stations underutilized," said Kerasiotes.

The two stations will be constructed adjacent to the existing MBTA Red Line stations in Quincy Center and Braintree. Officials said the $1.5 million Braintree station will open by the end of 1996 and the Quincy Center station in 1997.

Commuters will be able to ride the Plymouth and Middleboro branches of the Old Colony rail from both points, officials said.

The Old Colony rail line runs from Boston to Braintree, where it splits into three branches. Construction of the $480 million Plymouth and Middleboro lines is under way. Weld has not decided whether to build the more controversial Greenbush extension to Scituate.

Kerasiotes is expected to announce a final decision on Greenbush by Thanksgiving.

Critical Television Viewing Workshop For Parents Nov. 21

Bette Campbell and Darlene Mendoza of Continental Cablevision will make the first presentation of a Critical Television Viewing Workshop for parents Tuesday, Nov. 21 from 9 to 10:30 a.m. at the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

Parents of children in the Early Childhood program at the Snug Harbor and Point-Webster schools and the Early Childhood Center have been invited to attend.

Title I Parent Coordinator Sheila Petrucci said the average 4-year-old watches between 22 and 28 hours of television per week.

"We are excited to host the first presentation of Continental Cablevision's Critical Viewing Workshop," said Petrucci. "Parents will learn to understand the messages that television is sending them and their children, learn how to deal with violence on television and how to respond to programs they find objectionable."

Parents will be transported to the Early Childhood Center from the Point-Webster and Snug Harbor schools. Child care will be offered for all preschoolers through prior registration. For more information, call 984-8737.

New Fee Policy For License Board

The Quincy License Board voted to adopt a new fee policy subject to a few changes at Tuesday's meeting.

Two weeks ago, Board Chairman Joseph Shea presented the board with the fee changes requesting members to study them and return Tuesday for a vote.

At that time, Shea stressed the importance of the vote before the 1996 liquor renewals are mailed in mid-November.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said anyone who wants to solicit for an organization in order to obtain funds for ad books, should appear before the License Board. Previously, they didn't need to appear.

Gorman said by appearing before the board, the police chief could conduct a research into the background of these groups in order to eliminate unsavory principles. In doing this, Gorman said, guidelines would be established by the License Board and there would be no false statements with regard to the operation.

Finally, Gorman suggested a fee of $100 be posted as a requirement for this type of operation.

Other changes included the modification of the fee for the all alcoholic license. Instead of jumping from $1,000 to $1,500, at the suggestion of Building Inspector Matt Mulvey, it would be $1,300.

Shea asked that the fee be raised within two years by December 1997 to the planned $1,500.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a request to the Koster Industries, Inc., of New York, for a one day permit to conduct an auction at Pneumatic Scale, 65 Newport Ave., Nov. 30.

Edward Schaad, field supervisor for the Koster Industries, said the auction will include the sale of machinery, desks, chairs, ladders, etc. The hours will be from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

•Continued a hearing for a common victualer license to Joanne Joyce of J.J.'s News & Variety, 263 Copeland St. Opposition from James and Dennis Carson, owners of a package store on Copeland St. who both cited traffic and parking problems in the area.

Chairman Joseph Shea will ask the traffic engineer and the landlord to appear at next week's meeting to address the parking issue in the back of the store which so far has been closed to customers.

Shea read a letter from Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio who said he supported the request from Joyce.

•Heard complaints from neighbors of Paul Barchi in the operation of an illegal lodging house at 9

Cushing St., Quincy. The board cited Barchi under the building code stating that no more than two persons can live in the home at one time.

Neighbors spoke of animals running rampant in their yards and persons drinking and causing disturbances in the neighborhood.

Barchi was told to go to Quincy Court to obtain an eviction notice for a tenet.

•Granted two one day licenses to Marie's at President's Golf Club for christenings on Nov. 18 from 5 to 9 p.m. with 55 guests expected and Nov. 19 from 3 to 7 p.m. with 60 guests expected.

Shea said the license is subject to police detail and an agreement with Renee Lumaghini to notify the board a month in advance for one day license, instead of a few days ahead.

•The board voted to change the way in which Keno licenses are given because the way of purchasing "milk and bread" in convenience stores is changing because of people waiting in line to play Keno.

He said persons would have to apply on a monthly basis from now on, and that the board will monitor the list.

Cerebral Palsy Needs Volunteers

Volunteers are needed by Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore for a variety of activities.

"We need help with our Adult Recreation Program that meets from 6 to 9 on Wednesday evenings during the school year at the Lincoln-Hancock School in Quincy," said Loraine

Dunn, CP board president. "Volunteers would assist in organizing games such as shuffleboard and ring toss, ceramics, arts and crafts and musical productions."

The organization also needs help during weekday, workday hours with typing and word processing.

Quincy College Viewbook Wins National P.R. Award

The primary recruitment publication of Quincy College has earned recognition from a national public relations organization specializing in college marketing.

The National Council for Marketing and Public Relations recently awarded Sean Barry, director of public affairs at the college, the Bronze Medallion of Merit at the District One Conference held at the Sheraton Commander Hotel in Cambridge.

The Medallion Awards recognize excellence in college marketing and public relations. The NCMPR is an organization of professional working at colleges throughout the nation.

The "College Viewbook", a high-quality promotional publication mailed to prospective students, was designed and coordinated by Barry on behalf of the college. The W.E. Andrews Printing Company was awarded the contract for the project.

The Viewbook cover features a foil-stamped college logo and a die-cut "window" suggestive of the windows on the front of Coddington Hall. Inside, the viewbook features full color photographs of student life at both the Quincy Center and Plymouth Campus. The book also features a detachable application for admission and a financial aid information sheet.

"We're pleased that the college has been recognized for excellence in our recruitment efforts. The Viewbook is also a positive source of public relations...nearly every guest of the college receives a copy of the Viewbook," Barry said. "My intent was to project the most friendly, positive image of the Quincy College Community. Some of our most remarkable assets are intangibles such as student-teacher rapport, and goodwill, so we needed to attempt to convey our quality in other ways."

Photographs taken at both college campuses and in Quincy Center were shot by freelance photographer Gary Higgins of Hull.

"Gary made our students comfortable and his attention to details was clear in every photo," Barry said. "As a commuter campus, we service our students in different environments...Quincy Center becomes our campus and the photos reflect that reality."

Each photograph features actual Quincy College students, he added.

"I had a vision of what the Viewbook should look like and what it would convey," Barry said. "That vision was greatly assisted by members of the admissions office staff at Quincy College."

Before joining the college, Barry earned a master's degree in communication, journalism and public affairs from the American University in Washington, D.C. Barry credits his role as managing editor at the nation's oldest independent student newspaper, The Transcript, at Ohio Wesleyan University as the "place he learned design and layout."

Sheets Testifies On Behalf Of Shipyard Deal

Mayor James Sheets testified this week on behalf of legislation that will allow the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to sell most of the Fore River shipyard to a Swampscott company that plans to build tankers and other ships at the site.

Sheets gave his testimony at the State House Tuesday. The mayor and other Quincy officials have said the proposed $10 million between the MWRA and the firm, Massachusetts Heavy Industries, is probably the last best hope for reopening the shipyard.

The deal requires approval from the state Legislature. In addition, the company must secure $230 million in loan guarantees from the U.S. Maritime Administration as well as reach an agreement with the local shipbuilding union, according to Sheets, who added that negotiations on both ends are ongoing.

Officials have said the deal could eventually mean 1,500 to 2,000 jobs at the shipyard.

The MWRA bought the 180-acre shipyard from General Dynamics for $49.5 million in 1987. The authority's agreement with Massachusetts Heavy Industries calls for the state to give the MWRA $3 million to clean up asbestos and other environmental hazards.

The state has offered up to $4 million in public financing toward the $10 million purchase price, and Massachusetts Heavy Industries plans to finance the remainder through commercial loans.

Council Likely To Approve Quarry St. Project Plans

The City Council will likely approve next week developers' plans to finish a long-abandoned apartment building on Quarry Street.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said the council probably will vote in favor of changes proposed by Avalon Properties, which took over the 120-unit building earlier this year. The council is scheduled to take up the issue at its Nov. 20 meeting.

Developers hope to turn the partially completed structure at 196 Quarry St. into an upscale complex complete with garages, a health club and high-security gate.

Avalon is seeking council approval to make changes to the original building plan approved in 1988. The company wants to add three garages with 30 bays, change landscaping, and shift the driveway.

The council has the authority to vote on the proposal as is, suggest changes or force the company to essentially start from scratch by postponing a decision until after the New Year.

Maryland-based Avalon Properties, which owns about 1,500 apartments in 38 communities on the East Coast, bought the building for $2.6 million in August.

The original developer, Quarry Street Development Corp., began construction of the apartments seven years ago but soon abandoned the project.

Avalon is planning to spend about $10 million finishing the interior of the apartments and the surrounding grounds. Company officials have dubbed the apartments "Summit East" and said they hope to have the initial tenants moved in before Jan. 1.

Avalon also recently bought the nearby Quincy House apartment building for $6.7 million. The company has begun $500,000 in renovations on the eight-story, 125-unit building at 290 Quarry St., which is has renamed "Summit West."

The two buildings will cater to upper-income tenants, with the smallest apartments renting for about $850 a month, according to a spokesman for the company.

Several homeowners on Suomi Road, which abuts part of the site, expressed concerns about the proposed changes. One said he wants to make sure the company plans to replace trees and bushes that had sheltered his home from the building and parking lot--officials said they would be replaced--while another said she opposed the garages, which would bring development closer to her home.

Members of the City Council said they will consider those comments when they vote on the matter, but Fabrizio said neither appeared serious enough to cause any major opposition to the project.

North Quincy Rallies For Emotional Win

By KERRY BYRNE

With coach Ken McPhee unable to attend due to the passing of his mother, the North Quincy High School football team rallied in his support and put on its most inspired performance of the year, a 35-16 win over Taunton.

"This was an emotional game for us," said assistant coach Tom Carter. "The kids weren't going to be denied for Kenny. He means a lot to these kids. I don't think he realizes how much he means to them."

From the get-go, the Red Raiders (3-6) left no doubt as to their motivation and intentions. They stuffed the Tigers (2-7) on the game's first series.

Following the punt, North Quincy took over on its own 2 and marched 98 yards in three and a half minutes for a score. Matt Kietly was on the receiving end of a 36-yard strike from quarterback Jim Rendle and Jim Finn added the first of five extra points to make the score 7-0.

The Raiders never looked back. They scored on each of their next four series, putting together touchdown drives that went for 80, 65, 48 and 92 yards. By then the score was 35-0 early in the fourth quarter.

Rendle connected with tight end Charlie Plaskasovitis for a 12-yard score to cap the second drive. On the next march, Rendle threw in the left flat to Tom Coughlin who stepped back and fired a bullet to Sean Johnson as the senior streaked down the right sideline. The touchdown reception by Johnson, NQ's leading scorer, made the score 21-0 going into the half.

The flurry of TD passes marked the Red Raiders' best passing day of the season. Rendle was 7 of 9 for 124 yards and two scores. Coughlin's scoring throw made the team's passing totals 8 of 10 for 150 yards, three TDs and no interceptions.

Kietly was the top pass catcher as he hauled in three balls for 99 yards. His last catch went for 45 yards and pulled the Red Raiders out of a dangerous situation deep in their own territory. Tim Zaniboni caught one pass for 13 yards.

The attack was balanced by a superb running game. Brian Walsh sparked the effort with 161 yards on 15 carries. It was his fifth 100-yard outing in five complete games and gave him nearly 700 yards rushing in five and a half games.

Walsh scored on a 7-yard run to close the first drive of the second half.

Raiders Prepare For Dracut, Hope For Revenge Against Barnstable

North Tops Quincy In Sectional Final

By KERRY BYRNE

It has become an annual rite of passage in eastern Massachusetts volleyball: somewhere, somehow, the Quincy-North Quincy girls teams will square off in a sectional tournament battle, with the winner going on to play in the Division 1 state tournament.

This year was no exception as the Red Raiders took a 3-1 decision over Quincy Saturday night at Eastern Nazarene College in the East-Central sectional final.

North Quincy (20-3) was scheduled to take on Dracut last night (Wednesday) at Waltham High School in the state semifinals. A win there will likely pit them against Old Colony League foe Barnstable in a battle for the state championship. Barnstable is unbeaten and has handed North Quincy two of its three losses.

Revenge is surely on the minds of North Quincy coach Jim Rendle and his Red Raiders, but they know they must take care of the task at hand.

"It's too early to think about Barnstable," said Rendle. "We're worried about Dracut right now. If we look past them we won't get the chance to play Barnstable. We think we'll be there if we take it one game at a time."

Rendle expects Dracut to offer the much the same challenge as Quincy.

"Dracut is very similar to Quincy," he said. "They're extremely good defensively but not as strong as us offensively. I'm cautiously optimistic and feel that we should win."

North Quincy last won a state championship when they put together back-to-back titles in 1991 and 1992. The Red Raiders have been unable to recapture the crown in each of the last two seasons, though they gave a massive effort last year before falling to powerful New Bedford in the championship match.

Saturday, the Red Raiders took care of the Presidents (16-7), 15-4, 15-10, 14-16, 15-4.

The win was made possible by the outstanding front court play of co-captains Linda Jellison and Sara Stanton. Just as important for the Red Raiders in the Quincy match and throughout the season has been the unsung work of Rachael Repoff.

Repoff doesn't make the powerful kills that draw oohhs and aaahs, but she makes the big plays possible, and it has not gone unnoticed.

"Rachael played an outstanding game against Quincy," said Rendle. "She played great defense and is one of the keys to our team. We rely on her to be the defensive stopper. If she does that then we're strong enough up front to dominate. It's up to her to dig and get the ball in play."

North Quincy set the pace for most of the match, though Quincy made a run with a tightly-contested second game and a win in the third game.

"I felt pretty much in control," said Rendle. "But I have a tremendous amount of respect for Quincy and never felt safe. Kristen Priscella is an outstanding player and if Erin Barry and the rest of the team gets hot, they can be dangerous."

"I think Quincy is a top 10 team," added Rendle. "They had six losses but three came against top-four teams."

The Presidents dominated their two earlier tournament games as they belted Boston Latin, 3-0 (15-0, 15-1, 15-1), and Arlington Catholic, 3-0 (15-2, 15-8, 15-4).

Priscella, Barry, Mary Chenette, Katie Gallagher, Kerri Connolly, Angela Hogrell, Toni Kabilian and Kristen Sheehan were among the girls who played exceptional volleyball for the Presidents.

In the win over AC, Priscella had a magnificent outing with 12 assists, six kills, two aces and two digs. Barry helped Quincy dominate at the net.

Quincy, North Dominate

Each year since 1982 one of Quincy's two high schools have appeared in at least the state semifinals in girls volleyball.

Since then Quincy and North Quincy have combined for six state championships. And in most of the past 13 seasons, a sectional tournament battle between the two has determined which will advance and which will win the title.

It has been a string of dominance unequaled in Massachusetts volleyball.

For each of the past five years, the winner of the Quincy-North Quincy sectional tournament match has been the Red Raiders. The first of those five times, in 1991, they went on to win the state championship for the second time in school history. They duplicated the feat the following year for back-to-back titles.

"Sometimes I think the best game in the state has been the sectionals (between Quincy and North Quincy)," said Red Raiders coach Jim Rendle. "No one else has challenged us. I think in the past 13 years there have been only two when we (the Quincy schools) have not played each other in the sectionals."

"Each year Quincy is the team you have to beat."

Presidents coach Tom Henderson felt likewise, saying that the road to a state title goes through North Quincy.

Warwick Emerges With Six Goals

Sean Warwick has picked up the game of hockey rather quickly. He began the year in the Learn to Skate Program. Over the weekend The Natural put it all together with six goals to lead Barry's Deli to a 12-5 win over Purdy's Ice Cream.

Joe Sweeney also had a big outing for Barry's with a hat trick to go with his two assists. Andrew Donovan and John McClintock rounded out the goals with two goals and one goal, respectively.

Leading the assist parade were James Callahan, Terrence O'Connell, Ian MacRae and McClintock with three apiece. Dishing out two assists each were Ryan O'Keefe, Mike Powers and Donovan.

David Arrufat paced Purdy's with two goals and one assist. Ricky Penzo had a strong offensive outing as he set up four goals. Matt Lawlor picked up one goal and two assists while John McInnis recorded one goal and one assist. Kevin Shinnick lit the lamp once and Brendan Mulcahy made one assist.

Bret Martinson netted two goals and handed out three assists to lead Samoset Pharmacy to a 6-2 win over Lyndon Russell.

Ed Laura also played well for Samoset with two goals and two assists. Nash Winters and Matt Quigley lit the lamp once each. Assists were made by Mike MacPherson (2), Zach Degan and Steve Anderson.

Matt Tobin netted both Lydon goals. He was assisted by Bob McLaughlin, Steve Bythrow and Bryan Donelin.

Two goals by Joe Canavan were the difference as his Paul Harold Club topped Doherty & White, 3-1.

Jon Griffith netted one in the winning effort. Goals were set up by Mike and Matt Giordani.

Barnstable Too Much As Quincy Falls, 47-6

The Quincy High School football team got no break from what has been a rather brutal schedule this season in a 47-6 loss to Barnstable Friday night at Cape Cod.

The Red Raiders (9-0) of the Cape are one of eight unbeaten, untied teams in eastern Mass. One other, East Bridgewater, was Quincy's opponent in the first game of the season. Not only have these two teams won each game they've played, but they've rarely given up points and both will play in their respective divisional Super Bowls on Dec. 2.

With the win, the Red Raiders of the Cape clinched the Old Colony League title and a Division I Super Bowl berth. In each of the past two seasons, Barnstable went into the ninth game against Quincy harboring Super Bowl hopes, only to see them wiped away with losses to the Presidents.

Quincy's slate also included Marshfield, which, with a win against Duxbury on Thanksgiving Day, will become the third Super Bowl team the Presidents played this season.

(Which begets the question: Why is it again that Quincy fled the old Suburban League, where they played teams like Cambridge Rindge & Latin (1-7-1), now-Division 2 Newton North (1-8), and once-mighty Brockton (3-5)? Answers can be filed in the Bay of Pigs/It Seemed Like a Good Idea at the Time category. Brockton, by the way, has the one less win over the last three seasons (15-13) than Quincy (16-13).

Led by Mike Duffley's five touchdowns, Barnstable cruised against the Presidents.

"Barnstable is just a great team," said Quincy coach Peter Chella. "They're one of the biggest teams I've seen. They're strong, talented and extremely tough to stop."

Duffley, who leads the Old Colony League in scoring with 15 touchdowns and 92 points, was on fire. He came out in the first quarter and ran for scores of 5 yards and 1 yard to give the Red Raiders a 21-0 lead. Dave McWilliams opened the scoring with a 26-yard romp.

Duffley added TD runs

not pictured, have also played linebacker for the Presidents. Dunn is the lone senior in the bunch of 20 and 2 yards in the second quarter to give Barnstable to a 34-0 advantage at halftime. His final score in the third quarter went for 2 yards. John Pells posted the final

Red Raiders touchdown with a 7-yard run.

Kevin Moore scored the lone Quincy touchdown. The sophomore quarterback, who has emerged as a solid leader for the JV team, kept the ball on an option sweep and took it in for a 5-yard score.

The Presidents were without their top defender, middle linebacker and senior co-captain Bill Dunn.

Dunn should be able to play in Quincy's next game on Thanksgiving Day against North Quincy. His presence is vital to the Presidents defense.

Chris Ritchie added a 5-yard scoring run on the first play of the fourth quarter as the Red Raiders mounted a 35-0 lead.

Johnson added 41 rushing yards on five carries, including two beautiful 18 yard gains. In total, the Red Raiders picked up 232 yards on the ground.

The offensive fireworks were made possible by the play of linemen Eric Malames, Steve Stentford, Joe McCarthy, Norm Connell and Paul Picciano as they had their way with the Taunton defense.

Tigers running back Eddie Holt single-handedly accounted for the bulk of his team's offense with 225 yards rushing on 22 carries. He also scored both Taunton touchdowns on runs of 33 and 86 yards in the fourth quarter.

Defensively, Picciano and Brian Wells had monstrous games for North Quincy. The linemen led a swarming pass rush as Tigers quarterback Steve Santos was sacked three times and pressured throughout the contest. Walsh and Finn greeted Santos rather rudely with Walsh ripping the QB to the ground with a massive bear hug and Finn literally picking Santos up and dumping him to the ground as he attempted to run the ball.

Ritchie, Zaniboni, Plaskavits, Steve Rose, Tim Semchenko and Coughlin were among the best of the North Quincy defenders.

Shaun Faherty ran for two touchdowns and Tim Lewis added a long run off-tackle for a score as the Presidents cruised.

Kevin Moore, who ran the offense well, threw a two-point conversion pass to Jim Quigley.

Leading the defense were Chuck Feeley, Steve Maze and Steve Verlicco, among others.

Quincy-NQ JV, Frosh Football Games Saturday

The annual Thanksgiving Day preview football games will take place this Saturday when the Quincy-North Quincy freshman and JV teams do battle at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The freshman game is scheduled to kickoff at 9 a.m. and the JV game will immediately follow.

Topping the list of JV Red Raiders are quarterback Tim Semchenko

IF IT WALKS LIKE A DUCK...

When a car is driven slowly up the street and the driver feels as though his or her seat is shifting from side to side, the condition is generally known as a waddle. This duck-like movement becomes less noticeable as speed increases. The most common cause is a tire defect that should be readily noticeable upon visual inspection. If a section of the tire appears to be ballooning, the tire should be replaced with a spare on the spot. Other times, the cause of a waddle can be less obvious. In some cases, the steel or fabric cords within the tire break or shift to cause the shape of the tire to change. As a result, the straight-line pattern of the tire tread may be disrupted to create an uneven effect. If so, this problem is not quite so easy to spot. It involves getting the car on a lift and rotating each wheel in search of a possible defect. Because this can obviously be best accomplished in the work bay of a garage, the problem of waddle should be brought to the attention of an auto technician at the earliest possible moment.

HINT: Taking the time to properly inflate and inspect tires on a regular basis can pay off in better mileage, better handling, and longer tire life. If you have questions about your tires, don't hesitate to ask when you come into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. For most all of your car's repairs, we have modern test equipment, the right parts and the best service technicians available in the area. We use the All-Data CD-Rom based system for the very latest in service and maintenance bulletins for your car. We invite you to get acquainted with us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). Our shop is "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Have a safe and happy Thanksgiving!

NQ Frosh Football Team Tames Taunton Tigers

The North Quincy High School freshman football team put on an impressive showing with a 20-6 win over Taunton last Thursday.

In the words on one anonymous young Red Raider who spoke before practice this week: "We're coming off a win over Taunton which made us 4-5 and we hope to reach the .500 mark with a win over Quincy Saturday."

The young Red Raiders jumped out to a quick 6-0 lead against the Tigers when quarterback Chris Bregoli threw a 30-yard scoring strike to Frank McNamara.

Taunton came right back as they went the distance on the ensuing kickoff to tie the game at 6-6.

With just a few ticks on the clock in the first half, Bregoli took a quarterback keeper around the end for a 2-yard score. He then threw a successful two-point conversion pass to Corey Awed to make the score 14-6 at intermission.

North Quincy running backs Pat Dolbear and Joe Wilson took control in the second half as they led a punishing ground attack to keep the Tigers tame.

Wilson, a 6-foot-2-inch, 220-pound youngster, raced 45 yards on a sweep for a touchdown to break the game open.

Regional Championship, also to be held at Bryant.

Among Bantam boys, Eric Wilson placed 33rd.

In the Midget (11-12) girls race, Jennifer Jacques, a member of the Atlantic Middle School cross country team, took

In the Youth (13-14) girls four-kilometer race, Lynda Wilson of Sterling Middle School took 34th and Lisa Della Croce of Central placed 70th.

Each athlete is a representative of the Quincy Track Club. Club director Geoff Hennessy accompanied them.

Over 500 boys and girls from throughout New England took part in 10 different age and sex brackets.

Program Helps College Students Reduce Tuitions

College students from Quincy and throughout Massachusetts, who study certain majors at out-of-state public colleges could be eligible for tuition reductions under the Regional Student Program.

State Sen. Michael Morrissey said students attending public colleges and universities in the New England area should look into the program. According to the New England Board of Higher Education, the average student participating in the program this year is saving $3,800 on tuition, Morrissey said.

Students in majors such as health systems, ocean engineering and tourism are among those eligible. For information, Morrissey said students look in "The Apple Book", which lists all the reduced tuition programs. The book is in most high school guidance offices, public libraries and college admissions offices.

Students can also get a copy by writing to the New England board of Higher Education, 45 Temple Place, Boston, MA 02111 or by calling Morrissey's office at 722-1494.

Brian Buckley Attends State Council On Aging Conference

The Massachusetts Council on Aging and Senior Center Directors Association (MCOA) recently held its annual meeting at the Plymouth Sheraton.

Quincy Council on Aging Director Brian Buckley attended the conference and was a panel member in a discussion titled "Accounts From The Field - A Roundtable On Outreach And Other Topics".

Buckley, who became the Quincy Council on Aging director in 1980, has been a member of the MCOA for 14 years. This past year, the Council on Aging under Buckley's direction has received five grant awards from the Affairs, Executive Office of Transportation, South Shore Elder Services, and the Americorps Leadership Program care of the U-Mass Gerontology Program.

Richard Twombly Joins Quincy Hospital Staff

Richard Twombly has joined the Quincy Hospital staff as program director of the hospital's new Cardiac Rehabilitation Program.

The program, which opens this month, will provide a multidisciplinary team approach to improving a patient's cardiovascular health.

Twombly has helped develop a program which seeks to restore patients to a full and productive life through supervised exercise sessions and educational risk factor modification classes. The program benefits people with coronary artery disease, including patients who may be followed at a different hospital.

Prior to coming to Quincy Hospital, Twombly worked as senior exercise specialist of Cardiac Rehabilitation at Boston University Medical Center Hospital. This past February, he worked at Quincy Hospital on a consulting basis to do a feasibility study for the Cardiac Rehabilitation program.

Twombly, a Newton resident, received a bachelor of science degree in exercise science from Bridgewater State College.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Mark Twain once confessed that he could live for three weeks on a compliment, and Twain was not an exceptionally vain man. He was just admitting openly what most of us feel privately.

One might say there is good flattery and bad flattery. Bad flattery is the kind which the flatterer engages in because it will "pay" him. He might get something out of it. No person of sense or sensibility can help but see through it and despise it.

The other sort of flattery - the good flattery - is not extended because it gives profit to the donor but because it gives pleasure to the recipient. And most of us need this sort of love from time to time.

When most of us pay a compliment, we generally pay it to the person's strongest, and most obvious point. But to do the greatest good, a compliment should be directed to the person's weakest point - or what he thinks is his weakest point.

Twain could not be elated because someone came up and told him what a fine writer he was; the whole world accepted that fact. But he was radiant if someone complimented him on an invention he had helped develop.

Oscar Wilde once said: "An acquaintance that begins with a compliment is sure to develop into a real friendship."

Open House For Irish Exhibit At Historical Society

Quincy Historical Society will hold a meeting and open house, with refreshments and entertainment Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St. to celebrate the opening of the Society's new visiting exhibit: HOMELAND: Historic Photographs of the North of Ireland.

HOMELAND, produced by the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum, is a major exhibit on Irish rural and urban life at the turn of the century: from Belfast shipyard workers building the Titanic to Donegal farmers and fishermen working at crafts and following rituals that were many centuries old. As the title suggests, the exhibit aims to show Americans the world that Irish immigrants to the United States left behind.

Sunday's open house will provide visitors an opportunity to view the exhibit, enhanced by music and by a discussion of the Irish background. Refreshments will be served. Admission is free and everyone is welcome.

The Quincy exhibition of HOMELAND is made possible by the Joseph R. Harold Memorial Fund. The Open House is supported in part by Quincy Arts Council, Massachusetts Cultural Council, and the National Endowment for the Arts. Quincy Historical Society Museum is open Monday-Fridays, 9-4, Saturdays 1-4 and is closed holidays.

Adult Recreation Program At Lincoln-Hancock School

Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore and the Quincy Recreation Department are co-sponsoring this year's Adult Recreation Program every Wednesday during the school year from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

"We have welcomed a new ceramics instructor, Susan Bellantoni, who is doing a wonderful job and some new and different programs," said Loraine Dunn, CP board president.

"The Recreation Department has supplied us with wonderful arts and crafts instructors, along with a special once a month project organized by Ann Howie," she added. "They are providing other games such as indoor shuffleboard, ring toss, bean bag baseball, bowling, and checks."

Program Directors Frank Ambrosino and Matt LaBarre in conjunction with the Recreation Department have reorganized the program and activities, Dunn said, and Gayle Tilley will produce two musical/theater evenings, a holiday show and family reception in December as well as the annual Spring Show.

Volunteers are needed to assist in organizing, instructing, and leading games on Wednesday evenings. For more information, call LaBarre at 479-7980.

Gospel Business Men's Meeting Saturday

The South Shore Chapter of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International will hold a Breakfast Meeting Saturday at 8:30 a.m. at G.J. Coddington's, Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Guest speaker will be Rev. Jim Busby, pastor of the Rock Church in Abington and state coordinator for "Washington For Jesus" which will take place in April 1996. Carolyn Cullen will lead the praise and worship with her anointed music.

All are welcome. Cost is $8 per person. For reservations, call Mike Trudeau at 878-0671, Bill Craig at 471-1912 or Alex Canavan at 749-5982.

Quincy Point Congregational

Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon, pastor will preach on "Christian Ecstasy In Times Of Personal Adversity" at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Your Social Security

A Special Birthday Present For Some

By CAROL BOYLE

If you were born in 1936, 1937, or 1938, have earnings posted to your Social Security record, and are not receiving benefits, Social Security will send you a special present sometime between now and Oct. 1, 1996, according to Social Security Manager Carol Boyle.

Your present will be a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement showing the benefits you can expect to receive at ages 62, 65, and 70. The statement also includes estimates of benefits that may be paid to you and your family if you become disabled or to your survivors if you die.

The statement lists your earnings on a year-by-year basis. It will be easy for you to see if all your earnings have been correctly reported to Social Security. It's important that your record is complete and accurate because your future Social Security benefits will be based on this record, Boyle said.

If you find an error in your record that involves recent earnings at your current job, contact your employer as soon as possible. If your statement shows any other incorrect earnings or some are missing, notify Social Security. Just call the toll-free number shown on the statement. When you call, be sure to have your records on the correct earnings available. Acceptable records include W-2 forms, pay stubs, and tax returns. If the statement shows an incorrect name or Social Security number, report the error by calling the toll-free number.

More than eight million people have received a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement since February, 1995, when Social Security began the first mailings to persons age 60 or older. By the end of the century, Social Security is required by law to begin sending an annual statement to everyone age 25 or older. (Carol Boyle is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

Kathleen Fritch
Volunteer Coordinator

Kathleen Fritch of Quincy has joined Friends of the Homeless in North Weymouth as volunteer coordinator.

Fritch, who has held positions with Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, the Quincy Crisis Center and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, will be responsible for recruiting, training and supervising volunteers.

Friends of the Homeless, with funding from the Harold Brooks Foundation, has created the position of volunteer coordinator to strengthen its volunteer auxiliary. Fritch comes to the position as a full-time volunteer herself. The group will pay for her housing, transportation, insurance and a small expense stipend as she gives her services for one year as a mission.

Group volunteers provide services for homeless and needy families, such as transportation to school and meetings, help in providing food, clothing, furniture, and shelter; visits and shopping trips, and aid to homeless families by sharing their homes. Volunteers are also involved in special events such as apple picking and other outings, holiday meals, and the annual Christmas Party and Christmas Gifting for families in shelters.

Those interested in volunteering should call Fritch at 340-1604 or 773-7767.

Elder Services Coordinating Thanksgiving Meal Program

South Shore Elder Services, Inc., Quincy, will be coordinating a Thanksgiving meal program for homebound elders in Weymouth, Randolph, Scituate, Hull, Holbrook Hingham, Braintree, Cohasset and Milton. The private non-profit social service agency, will coordinate families who would like to share a part of their holiday meal with an elder in their town. SSES will also coordinate with local hospitals and nursing homes, the preparation of meals to be delivered by volunteers.

"ALWAYS THE LEADER"

MEMBER FDIC/DIF

Nominations Open For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 30.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense, 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghts Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended and a longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Those nominated the past nine years are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Saturday, Dec. 30.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Steps Off At 12:15 P.M. Sunday

74 Units Featured In Christmas Parade

The 44th annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade will kick off Sunday at 12:30 p.m. at School and Elms Sts. and proceed north along Hancock St. to North Quincy High School.

Approximately 200,000 people are expected to line the 2.8-mile route which will feature more than 74 marching units, including floats, bands and returning favorites as well as some new attractions.

This year's parade theme is "Christmas Wishes on Parade." The parade will feature 19 floats, 21 bands, 20 specialty units and 14 color guards, more than last year.

"This is going to be the largest parade in the city's history," said Michael McFarland, first-year chairman of the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Committee.

He added that chairing the committee for the first time is quite enjoyable but takes a lot of dedication.

"It's been an exciting job," he said. "It's a tremendous undertaking."

George White, a member of the parade committee for 30 years and chairman for 15 before stepping down after last's year event will be the parade grand marshal.

Parade participants will include some new faces and attractions as well as some returning favorites. Among the new participants will be the Boston College Screaming Eagles Band (sponsored by Hibernia Savings Bank) and two Shriners Aleppo bands from Wilmington including an Oriental band and Minuteman unit with fife and drums.

Houghs Neck Community Center, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and the Grand Marshal Float.

And of course, Santa will wave to spectators from his float sponsored by the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee.

Floats will compete for eight awards and a total of $4,250 in prize money. The grand prize winner for

Santa Mail Box At City Hall Plaza

A "Santa Mail Box" for children to write letters to Santa will be placed at McIntyre Mall near City Hall Plaza Monday, Nov. 27.

Children can write letters to Santa and place them in the boxes. The letters will be mailed to Santa's North Pole address.

Float participants include Quincy College, Quincy Hospital, Citizens Bank, Star of the Sea Church, Thomas Crane Public Library, Woodward School, Jack Conway Real Estate, Koch Club, Quincy Partnership, Quincy 2000, Quincy Fire Department, Quincy High School, Quincy Point Congregational Church, North Quincy High School, Braintree Rifle and Pistol Club, Worcester Search Light and Power Company, state Sen. Michael Morrissey, the best overall float will receive the Fr. Thomas Tierney Trophy and $1,500 cash. Other cash prizes are $1,000 for first place, $750 second, $500 third, and $250 each for fourth and fifth places.

Other awards are the Mayor's Trophy for best Quincy float, best commercial float, and the Christmas Festival Committee Trophy for the best specialty unit.

Judging the floats will be Gilda Barclay of Residential Down, Commercial Remains Same No Real Estate Tax Rate Increase

Mayor James Sheets' proposal for no new property taxes for a second consecutive year has become reality.

In fact, the tax rates this year are even better than last year's, the mayor said at press time.

Sheets announced this week that the residential property tax rate will be $14.54 (per $1,000), four cents less than last year, while the rate for commercial, industrial and personal property (C.I.P.P.) remains at $30.58 for the third consecutive year.

Sheets received the figures from Board of Assessors Chairman Marion Fantucchio, he said.

The mayor said the city's total tax levy for FY96 is $78,808,815.81. Last year, the levy figure was $78,499,201.21, he said.

Sheets added, however, that the $309,614.60 difference is due to growth such as new businesses and buildings in the city which will not affect people's tax bills.

"It's the result of taxes the city is receiving that we didn't have last year," he said.

Sheets cautioned, however, that the city's residential and commercial properties were revaluated this year as they must be every three years by state law.

Properties whose values remain the same or decrease will result in either the status quo or a slight reduction in the average tax bill, he said. An increase in property value could still mean a minimal increase of a couple of dollars or so in a bill, he said, although the four-cent decrease in the residential tax rate could help to offset that for homeowners, he said.

Sheets said his proposal will be sent in its final form to the City Council for consideration at a special meeting scheduled for Nov. 27. The council must approve the mayor's proposed tax rates.

"We're very pleased there's no increase in the tax rate," he said. "We feel it indicates that the city is in a strong financial position, and we intend to keep it that way."

A strong fiscal year that resulted in a cash surplus of $5.7 million for the city has helped make it possible to hold the line on property taxes.

Sheets has credited a number of factors for this year's surplus. He said department heads and employees made sound decisions on employee health insurance and other city expenses that saved money, the city took in more automobile excise taxes, building and license fees than the previous year and the more stable economy has made it possible for delinquent property taxpayers to settle up with the city.

Sheets first announced it was possible there might not be a tax increase this year in the June 15 issue of The Quincy Sun, although he also said at the time that a small tax increase may be necessary.

In September, however, city officials learned that the city ended Fiscal Year 1995, which ended June 30, with the $5.7 million cash surplus, an amount $2 million higher than last year's surplus. Officials received the word from the state Department of Revenue, which certified the year-end balance.

The mayor said then he would use some of the $5.7 million to hold the line on property taxes. Another $1 million has been put in a "stabilization fund" which will be used mainly to

Curbside Leaf Collection Extended Through Nov. 25

Browning-Ferris Industries and the Quincy Department of Public Works have extended the city's curbside leaf collection an additional week.

The last week of collection, Monday, Nov. 20 through Saturday, Nov. 25, will be done on holiday schedule, according to officials.

Officials also said the unprecedented eighth week of collection is necessary because of leaves that have persisted on the urban tree cover due to a rainy October.

No Real Estate Tax Rate Increase

offset possible sewer rate increases.

In addition, Sheets plans to spend some of the money for city improvements.

The mayor's "no new taxes" proposal last year actually resulted in a one-cent increase in residential property taxes—from $14.57 the previous year to $14.58—but no increase in the commercial, industrial and personal property (CIPP) rate, which remained at $30.58.

The one-cent residential increase translated into a minimal increase of $3 on the average Quincy homeowners' tax bill. The previous year, the increase was $154.

Fantuccio said the last time the city had no property tax increase two consecutive times was in Fiscal Years 1975 and 1976.

She added that it has happened only twice before in the city's history: four straight years in 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946 and back-to-back years in 1955 and 1956.

City Hall Closed Thursday, Friday

Mayor James Sheets announces that City Hall and most city departments will be closed Thursday and Friday because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Sheets said the closing is being done in accordance with past practice over the last several years.

The mayor added that the police and fire departments and Quincy Hospital will remain open due to the nature of their services.

EXERCISE CONTROL OVER DIABETES

Millions of Americans have diabetes, but only about half of them know it. Once a diagnosis is made, sometimes during a routine physical exam, the immediate reaction is often one of panic. "How will ever cope?" wonders the new diabetic faced with an unfamiliar regimen of blood testing, diet, and, for some, insulin injections. While there is as yet no cure for the disease, the good news is that the person with diabetes can exercise control over it—literally. Regular exercise can pack a three-part punch against diabetes: It seems to reduce a person's need for insulin, it helps a person reach or maintain optimal weight, and it helps prevent atherosclerosis (a particular problem for diabetics). P.S. Diabetes is on the rise in the U.S., although the cause of the disease, and of the increase in it, are unknown.

Diabetes is a controllable disease, but it often needs special diets and special attention to one's health. Get the information you need to live a healthier life—no matter what your condition. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. 4 Council Mayoral Contenders

The City Council to be seated in January will have a new-look and will be given a good look-at during the next two years.

More than half—five—of the nine councillors will be new, the biggest turnover in 22 years.

And almost half—four—are considered strong potential mayoral contenders for the near future.

Mayors usually come out of the City Council. But it is somewhat unusual to have possibly four future ones serving on the council at the same time.

The four who will be closely watched by City Hall observers in the next two years are Paul Harold, Tim Cahill, Michael Cheney and—Dan Raymondi.

Harold, off his performance in this month's city election, probably would have to be considered the most likely successor to Mayor James Sheets somewhere down the road. Providing, of course, he wants to be mayor. He may have his political sights trained elsewhere—possibly Norfolk County district attorney.

Harold, who will be returning to the City Council after a 16-year absence, showed he hasn't lost the magic touch by topping the four-candidate at-large field by just two votes shy of a 2,000-vote margin.

And, he didn't campaign that hard.

The fact he was No. 1 with a vote of 12,244 came as no big surprise. He was a consistent strong votegetter while state senator.

And he carried Quincy by a wide margin against Gerry Studds in the Democratic primary for Congress in 1992.

Cahill, who had topped the at-large field for three straight elections, finished 1,998 votes behind Harold this time to take the second spot.

This will be Cahill's fifth term and he has already said it will be his last. Of the four potential mayoral candidates, he probably is the most likely to challenge Sheets with the others more willing to bide their time and wait for Sheets to leave office.

Cheney turned in his strongest performance to date as he won his sixth term to keep himself in the potential mayoral derby.

Cheney, who many thought was in a real battle for political survival with Larry Chretien, took the third spot with an impressive 10,080 vote—1,311 over Chretien and just 166 behind Cahill.

Raymondi is coming back to the council after 14 years—part of which time he served as Norfolk County treasurer and School Committeeman. He easily topped newcomer Mark Roberts by 1,524 votes to take the vacant Ward 2 seat he once held.

Raymondi ran for mayor in 1981, losing to Frank McCauley and many observers feel he is on the path to another bid in the near future.

In addition to Harold and Raymondi, the other three new incoming councillors are Patrick McDermott (Ward 3), Michael D'Amico (Ward 4) and Steve Durkin (Ward 5). Of the three, Durkin, who has been around the political block a few times as a school committeeman, would be the more likely to have future mayoral thoughts.

TOM GILMARTIN and his crystal ball seem to be getting better with age.

GILMARTIN

Gilmartin, who has been following city elections and making predictions since his days as Ward 6 city councillor back in the 1940s, called this year's city council election right on the nose.

Gilmartin this year concentrated on the city council races only and came up with all the winners.

He had the at-large field in exact order: Paul Harold, Tim Cahill, Mike Cheney and Larry Chretien.

He had all the ward contests correct and predicted close finishes in Wards 3 and 4. And they were, with Patrick McDermott winning the Ward 3 seat by 73 votes and Mike D'Amico taking the Ward 4 seat by 84.

MIKE CASALI, who had a distinguished 45-year career as a teacher, coach, guidance counselor—and kids' role model—with the Quincy public schools will be honored at a retirement toast-roast Saturday, 12 to 4 p.m. at the Cathay Pacific restaurant, Hancock St., North Quincy.

COUNCILLORS Peter Kolson and Bruce Ayers have another wager on their alma maters in Thursday's Quincy-North Quincy football game.

KOLSON

Kolson, who played for Quincy in the 1960s and Ayers for North in the 1970s, have a another luncheon bet on the game. Loser has to take the winner to restaurant of his choice in the other's ward.

Kolson, who won last year, says he has been getting in shape for this year's outcome.

"I've lost 10 pounds and expect to gain it back with a delectable meal in Ward 6," he says. "I'm looking forward to dining on lobster and shrimp and anything else that looks good. Bruce better bring his credit card."

"No way," says Ayers. "This year we will be dining for sure in Ward 1. And it won't be pizza or a cheeseburger. If Peter is planning on doing any stuffing, I hope it's his wallet."

Incidentally, in 1965, Kolson was co-captain of the Quincy team and wore No. 72. This year, his son, Peter, is a co-captain and is wearing the same number. (In that 1965 game, Quincy won 20-16.)

MILESTONE: Ed Spargo, a long-time newspaperman and old friend, will celebrate his 88th birthday with family and friends at a party Monday, Nov. 27 at the Common Market.

Scenes From Yesterday

Hancock Street, looking North, Quincy, Mass.

THIS IS A 1915 POSTCARD view of Hancock Street in Quincy Square. At that time the road was still dirt and the city couldn't use marked crosswalks for people to get from one side to the other. These pretty young ladies obviously felt that they could stroll across anywhere they wanted to, and did. Later in 1915 the city improved this section of Hancock Street by paving it with cobblestones. To this day, though, they are still trying to improve pedestrian safety in the crosswalks.

Seeks Mothers March Volunteers

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Every pregnant woman wonders "will my baby be all right?" What would you do to help the answer be "yes" for more mothers?

Right now, operators are calling on behalf of the March of Dimes asking people to donate 20 minutes of their time to be the Mothers March volunteers in their neighborhoods in January. Last year, more than $270,000 was raised by Mothers Marchers in eastern Massachusetts.

Contributions to this year's Mothers March will support Campaign for Healthier Babies programs such as Babies and You Prenatal Education Program and programs confronting domestic violence.

The March of Dimes is a national voluntary health agency whose mission is to improve the health of babies by preventing birth defects and infant mortality. Through its Campaign for Healthier Babies, the March of Dimes funds programs of research, community services, education, and advocacy.

4-Year High School Plan Under Study

By PAUL HAROLD

The School Committee this week instructed Acting Supt. Lawrence Creedon to take the first steps necessary to implement a four-year high school program in the city.

It was estimated that it would take nine months to survey both the educational and construction specifications required under the reorganization. Creedon emphasized the point that a reorganization would not meet the space needs of the school system. Enrollment was 9,267 students, an increase of 608 in the current year.

$400,000 VOTED FOR WELFARE BILLS

The City Council approved the expenditure of $400,000 for unpaid welfare bills. Deputy Welfare Director Joseph LaRaia said that the new phase of Medicare, giving benefits to children under 21, was the major cause of "sky-rocketing welfare costs."

Councillor George McDonald wanted further study on the appropriation, saying that there were "flagrant cases of profiteering and gauging on the welfare system from both recipients and professional sources."

COUNCIL MULLS PAY RAISES

The City Council met in closed session for two hours to consider pay raises for various employee groups and the impacts the raises would have on next year's tax rate.

The Police Betterment Association asked for a new salary schedule, beginning at $10,800. The current schedule gave patrolmen $6,700, $7,200 and $7,700 on a graduating three-year scale.

Sweet Potato Cakes

There are two new recipes that I'm using for Thanksgiving Day. One of them, my Pumpkin Pie Cake, was printed a few weeks ago in my column.

The other new recipe is for sweet potato cakes (or fritters). It not only is delicious especially if you like sweet potatoes as my family does, but pleasing to the eye. You can make them early in the day and then heat them up for dinner.

SWEET POTATO CAKES

2 medium sized sweet potatoes
1 egg
2 tablespoons flour (use a smidgen more if needed) salt and pepper to taste

1/2 cup milk
3 tablespoons oil (any favorite)

Shred the potatoes on a grater. In a bowl, add the rest of the ingredients (except the oil) and mix until well blended. (at this point, it should look like a pancake mixture) and ready to fry.

In the hot oil, place the potato mixture by tablespoons full and cook turning them until golden brown. Drain on paper towel and keep warm in a warming oven. Or use a microwave if you prefer.

This is the same recipe that I use for white potatoes, and one of our favorites. Happy Thanksgiving Day!

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Seventh Annual ART & CRAFT FESTIVAL

Sacred Heart School Hall
Hancock Street, North Quincy

Saturday, December 2, 1995
10:00 A.M. - 4:00 P.M.

Admission $1.00

Children under 12 free when accompanied by an adult

City Council President and First Night Chairman Michael Cheney announces that First Night Quincy buttons will be on sale for a one-time special price of $5 at the annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Sunday.

A First Night vehicle will proceed along the parade route approximately five minutes before the start of the parade and First Night Volunteers will walk along the parade route selling the buttons at the reduced rate.

This year, First Night Quincy will include 250 performing artists at 24 locations throughout the Quincy Square area. A parade is scheduled for 7 p.m. and a fireworks show at midnight.

First Night Quincy is a non-alcoholic family celebration of the arts held on

New Years Eve. Last year, between 18,000 and 20,000 people attended and took part in hat and mask making, face painting for children and adults of all ages and many other activities.

The annual International Food Festival, one of the highlights of the event, will be held this year in the Quincy Center for Technical Education (Vo-Tech School).

Performances will begin at 4 p.m. and will end at 11:50 p.m. just before the fireworks show. Among the area businesses that will participate this year are Computer Workshop, which will offer computer software demonstrations and Presidential Camera, which will capture special First Night moments on film.

More than 500 volunteers will assist in putting on this year's celebration.

BUSINESS SPOTLIGHT

Rogers Jewelry Puts Accent On Expertise, Customer Service

More than 45 years of expertise in jewelry, commitment to customer service, and community involvement await you at Rogers Jewelry, located in the Bank of Boston building, 1402 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Jeff Bertman, the third generation manager of Rogers, said, "Between my father, my mother, and I we have over 65 years of manufacturing, retail, and gemological knowledge available to anyone who wants to take advantage of it."

"I think I've worked here ever since I could see over the counter," Jeff said with a smile. Growing up around his parents, Mark and Isobel, he couldn't help but get attached to the business and the community.

Jeff Bertman is a 1987 graduate of the Gemological Institute of America (GIA) in California, where after a year of intensive study and a rigorous exam (where incorrectly identifying one stone means failure), he was awarded the degree of Graduate Gemologist. Only 7000 people worldwide hold this prestigious title and Rogers is proud to be the only store in Quincy with a graduate gemologist on staff.

The downtown store is unique in other ways. Rogers is the only jewelry shop in town to have set up a complete gemstone laboratory for testing, explaining, and appraising diamonds and various exotic gemstones such as Tsavorite (a bright green Garnet found in Kenya), Mexican Fire Opal (a fiery orange color), and Tanzanite (a truly beautiful red/blue hue).

The lab gives Rogers the capability to correctly grade and identify imperfections in diamonds, Ruby, Emerald, and Sapphire. "Saphs come in every color but one," Jeff points out.

"We are the experts when it comes to gemstones. We keep our microscope right out on the counter so we can show the beauty as well as the irregularities in gemstones, easily to our customers," Mark adds.

Rogers has a complete assortment of gems mounted and loose, as well as a large selection of gold jewelry in the latest fashions. "We feature Seiko, Citizen, and Cyma watches along with clocks and a full assortment of men's and ladies' jewelry and gifts," Jeff explains. "If we don't have it we are happy to order it at the in stock price. We offer the best quality jewelry at a fair price without raising up the prices to give 'unbelievable discounts.'"

"Our credo," Jeff continues, "is to treat our customers as we would like to be treated when we shop. We do the unusual, we give cash refunds on lay-a-ways, unworn jewelry, and even on unappreciated engagement rings."

Rogers' exclusive policy on lay-a-ways and returns are truly customer-friendly.

"We do 10 percent down, up to a year for lay-a-way with monthly payments. We also give money back if the customer changes his mind on the merchandise," Jeff says. "We do the same thing with merchandise purchases. If a customer returns something to us, we offer them their money back."

"We do that to keep our customers happy."

Rogers features an estate department filled with both the unusual and common at reasonable prices. "We also offer a loan service on jewelry whereby we take in gold jewelry and gemstones as collateral and loan money based on the value of the jewelry. We buy used jewelry over the counter, too," he adds.

Jeff is active in the jewelry industry and is immediate past president of the New England chapter of the GIA Alumni Association, a member of the Boston Jewelers Club, Jewelers of America, and is incoming president of the Massachusetts/Rhode Island Jewelers Association.

Besides his retail experience, Jeff's background includes over seven years in jewelry manufacturing. Before GIA, he spent three and a half years in New York City running a prestigious gold manufacturing company. Four years prior to that, he was an assistant plant manager at a men's jewelry company in Providence, R.I.

His expertise is also known beyond Quincy. Several years ago, Jeff led a group of gemologists who identified gemstones for Boston's Museum of Science for a six-month period.

Besides the jewelry business, the Bertman family name is virtually synonymous with community activism.

Jeff is a member of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy and a member of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association's Board of Directors and Promotions Committee. Mark is a member of the Quincy Rotary Club and was a founding member of the QCBPA. Mark Bertman was recently honored as the founder of the Quincy Partnership, a civic organization of local business and community leaders striving to improve the quality of life in Quincy. The Partnership is presently raising money to erect a statue in honor of Abigail Adams next year.

In addition, both Isobel and Mark are past directors of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. Isobel is a director of the Salvation Army, St. Coletta's of Braintree and is active as a volunteer at Quincy Hospital.

Jeff says his family enjoys golfing together. His other interests include skiing and camping.

Rogers is expanding its store hours to meet the shopping needs of customers during the hectic holiday season. Starting Thursday, Dec. 7 (Isobel's birthday) the jewelry store will be open 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday noon to 5 p.m.

Mark, Isobel, Jeff and their professional staff can be reached at 773-3636.

Rogers Jewelry is a member of the Independent Jewelers Organization, the largest independent jewelry buying group in the world. "It allows us to give customers exceptional values on our jewelry," Jeff points out.

Rogers Jewelry is also offering something else this holiday season. The store will give the first 50 customers who can identify what color sapphire is not found in a special jewelry polishing cloth.

Eight Semi-Finalists Selected For College Presidency

By MICHAEL WHALEN
A pool of 90 candidates interested in becoming permanent president of Quincy College has been narrowed down to eight semi-finalists.

And the presidential search committee charged with submitting a list of three to five finalists to the college's Board of Governors will do so after Dec. 14, according to Atty. Theresa Lord, chairperson of the committee.

Lord, who also sits on the Board of Governors, said the search committee met for four and a half hours last Thursday night to narrow the original pool of 90—which even included an applicant from as far away as Guam—down to eight. The following day, the committee met for seven hours to bring that number down to eight, she said.

Lord said six of the semi-finalists are from out of state and two from Massachusetts. She declined to comment on specifics, although she said there is at least one woman on the list.

Lord said the search committee will meet Tuesday, Dec. 12 and Thursday, Dec. 14 in Boston to interview the eight semi-finalists and narrow the list down to three to five finalists. The Board of Governors will then interview the finalists before selecting the president, she added.

Lord said she is excited about the list of semifinalists.

"They all look like real all-stars," she said. "There's a lot of great people on the list."

The Board of Governors has decided to appoint a permanent president to replace Interim President Linda Wilson, who announced earlier this year she will not seek a renewal of her one-year contract which expires Jan. 1.

Studds Financial Aid Forum Jan. 7

Congressman Gerry Studds announces that he will host his annual half-day forum Sunday, Jan. 7 to help students and parents cope with the costs of higher education.

The forum will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Harrington Center of the Massachusetts Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay. It is free and open to all residents of Cape Cod and the Islands and the South Shore.

"The cost of higher education today is staggering--and rising fast," said Studds. "More and more families and students unable to afford the costs of college without substantial financial aid. This forum can help make everyone aware of what type of help is available, and how to obtain it."

Studds said those who attend the conference can obtain a detailed information packet, containing financial aid guides from the federal government, brochures specifically for Massachusetts colleges and universities, workbooks, sample financial aid forms and information on scholarships and other aid available from private resources.

For more information, call Studds' district office at 1-800-870-2626.

QUINCY CRISIS CENTER Acting Director Merritt Nielson (right) accepts a $2,500 check from Don Laing, regional director of Natick-based American Medical Response, that will be used to help fund the center's efforts to help the needy for Thanksgiving. The donation was the result of the efforts of Quincy Commission on the Family Executive Director Linda Stice and the Family Council, the commission's advisory board, who worked to match service organizations with groups and companies willing to help out for the holiday.

Stice, Family Council Solicit Donations Service Groups Receive Help For Thanksgiving

A group of people associated with the Quincy Commission on the Family have succeeded in helping 10 food pantries and service organizations prepare for Thanksgiving.

Commission Executive Director Linda Stice and the Family Council, the commission's advisory board made up of members of a cross-section of families from throughout the city, worked to match the service groups with individuals or companies interested in helping.

Stice said she got the idea when she recently heard Merritt Nielson, acting director of the Quincy Crisis Center in Wollaston, speak of his concerns on WJDA Radio about providing a proper Thanksgiving meal for the area's needy.

"I called him while he was on WJDA and said, 'I'll see what I can do,'" she said.

Stice and Barbara Papile, chairperson of the Family Council, then did some research to see how many organizations provide Thanksgiving meals in Quincy. In addition to the Crisis Center, groups they found that do so are the Atlantic Neighborhood Center in North Quincy, Quincy Emergency Food Center on Granite St., Pantry Shelf in Wollaston, Seaside Advocacy Group in Germantown, The Salvation Army on Baxter St., Germantown Neighborhood Center, Houghs Neck

Community Center, Father Bill's Place and South Shore Elder Services.

In addition, Mayor James Sheets sponsors a meal for older residents at the Fore River Club House, she noted.

Stice said because of the generosity of those who responded, all of the above groups will now be able to provide decent Thanksgiving meals, although she added at press time that South Shore Elder Services still needs volunteer drivers to deliver meals on Thanksgiving Day.

Stice said among the most notable contributors are the Quincy Public Schools, which are cooking 40 turkeys for Father Bill's Place; SAR Engineering in Quincy, which is giving six Thanksgiving Day baskets to the Crisis Center and American Medical Response in Natick, which donated a check for $2,500 to the Crisis Center last week.

She added that she is pleased with the overall success of the effort.

"It was our first big project, and I'm proud of it," said Stice, who was named head of the family commission earlier this year. "Hopefully, we'll be able to do more in the future. Nobody in Quincy has to go hungry."

Those in need of a Thanksgiving meal can call Stice at 376-1421 or any of the above organizations.

Text Of Sun Publisher's Veterans Day Address

(In response to a number of requests we are printing the complete text of the address given by Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth at Quincy's Veterans Day ceremonies at the Adams Academy. Part of the address appeared in last week's issue.)

This Veterans Day, 1995—as you know—coincides with the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II—a war in which over 400,000 American soldiers, sailors and marines gave their lives and over 670,000 others were wounded.

Between Allied and enemy forces over 15 million were killed or missing in action.

To those of us fortunate to come home it was—WE THOUGHT—the war to end all wars. We never suspected that a Korea, Vietnam, Persian Gulf and all the skirmishes in between were yet to come.

There has been considerable criticism this year over how we ended World War II. We have Monday morning quarterbacks—a HALF CENTURY of Monday mornings later—who are telling us we were wrong.

We should NOT have used the atomic bomb, they say. . . We should have invaded Japan instead. . . It wouldn't have been too difficult because the Japanese were ready to quit fighting, anyway.

I just can't let this Veterans' Day go by without commenting on that.

To them, I say: "Were you there? We're you out there in the Pacific at the time?"

"And, before then, were you at Midway, Guadalcanal, the Philippines, the Coral Sea, the Marshalls, the Gilberts, the Mariannas, Iwo Jima, Okinawa and all those other islands where American blood was spilled for four years?"

Those of us who were out there found no fault with President Harry Truman's decision to use the bomb?

I remember when we heard the news about Hiroshima, it touched off a happy scene aboard my ship, the destroyer Cogswell.

I'm sure it was the same scene aboard every ship in the fleet and with our forces on Iwo Jima and Okinawa from where the invasion would have been launched.

My ship was among those that had been dodging Japanese suicide planes off Okinawa. And soldiers and marines had been fighting a fanatical enemy there.

None of us were looking forward to an invasion of Japan. Many who did come home would NOT have if there had been one.

We wanted to go home and get on with our lives. It had been a long, long war.

The bomb at Hiroshima and the one at Nagasaki eliminated the need for what would have been a very costly invasion.

The Japanese were even training young boys as suicide pilots and they had some 5,000 suicide planes waiting and ready.

They also had something else.

I was in a scouting party that landed at Yokosuka, a Japanese naval base town south of Tokyo before the formal surrender on Sept. 2, 1945.

In caves we found suicide speed boats which were to be piled with explosives to ram our ships and landing craft in an invasion.

And this—I'll never forget. The speed boats had 1936 or 1937 Chevrolet engines. And just down the street, believe it or not, was a Socony gas station.

It was almost funny. Can you picture suicide boats with American-made engines being wheeled down to an American company gasoline station to have their tanks filled up and then speeding out to sea to crash into American ships. An irony of war!

Don't let anyone kid you that the Japanese were ready to quit fighting.

They would have fought to the bitter end to defend their homeland.

The fact that it took two atomic bombs, not one, but two to convince them to surrender attests to their willingness to have fought on and on. Give them credit. They were a determined, tough enemy that believed dying was an honor.

There would have been a staggering loss of lives for them and for us if there had been an invasion.

I have never heard veterans of the Battle of The Bulge and the invasion of Normandy objecting to the use of the atomic bomb in the Pacific.

They had won their war in Europe and wanted to go home—not out to the Pacific to fight some more. They deserved to go home.

The critics concentrate on the atomic bomb but seem to overlook the rest of the war in the Pacific.

They seldom mention the attack on Pearl Harbor—not just an attack but a sneak attack that forced us into the war.

Do they ever think of all those sailors still entombed in sunken battleships at the bottom of Pearl Harbor?

Do they ever think of the Bataan Death March?

Do they ever think of the atrocities suffered by American prisoners of war?

Do they ever think of the Gold Star Mothers whose young sons never came home?

I interviewed a former Quincy boy—Major General Charles Sweeney—some years ago on an anniversary of the atomic bombs dropped at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. As you know, he took part in both missions and was the pilot on the second.

Would you do it again, I asked him.

"Yes," he said without hesitation. "I would do it again—under the same circumstances."

He still feels the same way.

Those circumstances were right a half century ago. And they can't be changed a half century later.

Another former Quincy boy—Congressional Medal of Honor winner Charles McGilvary, probably summed it up best when he recently observed:

"If there hadn't been a Pearl Harbor, there wouldn't have been an atomic bomb!"

Time is thinning out the ranks of the World War II veterans. We're not going to be around too much longer to tell it like it was.

Our schools should be teaching our young people about World War II. HOW it happened. WHY it ended and WHY it ended the way it did.

If television was around back then and brought World War II into living rooms like it does wars today, I don't think there would be much of an argument over how it ended.

And if we had it all on video tape for instant replay, we wouldn't have critics trying to tinker with history.

The sad thing about World War II is not the atomic bomb but that we thought it was the war to end all wars and it wasn't.

There may never be true peace. Hopefully, nuclear weapons won't have to be used again. And, hopefully, the circumstances to use them will never arise again.

World War II brought our nation together—united as it had never been before. And, sadly, has never been since.

Back then our flag was truly Old Glory and always treated with respect.

But for the past six years now, by a one vote margin in the U.S. Supreme Court, protesters have had the right to burn and abuse the flag as a so-called freedom of speech.

They can now do almost anything they want to do to it. They can spit on it, stomp on it, rip it to shreds, wrap garbage in it.

That may be right under the Supreme Court ruling, but somehow it doesn't seem right.

We have come a long way—in the wrong direction I think—since the days when Americans wouldn't let the flag even touch the ground out of respect.

Men have died in battle to keep the flag from falling to the ground.

The Citizens Flag Alliance of which some of you are members, is campaigning for a Constitutional amendment to protect the flag from abuse.

We can help by working to convince our representatives in Congress to vote for the amendment.

Opponents argue that if you take away the right to burn the flag as a freedom of expression it could lead to the loss of other freedoms such as freedom of religion, freedom of the press and the right to assembly.

I don't agree. I think it's the other way around.

If they can abuse the flag what else will they eventually be able to abuse? Desecrate a church, a synagogue, a hallowed cemetery as a freedom of expression?

As a long-time newspaperman, I certainly don't want to see censorship or cherished freedoms taken away. But protecting the flag is no threat to these other freedoms.

With freedom of speech and expression should come responsibility and respect.

You shouldn't have the right to run up a movie theater aisle yelling FIRE! just because you have freedom of speech.

I doesn't give you the right to stick your head inside a bank and yell holdup!

Or stand in Quincy Square and yell obscenities across Hancock St.

I don't think John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin had flag burning and lack of respect in mind when right here in Quincy they wrote the Massachusetts Constitution which became the model for the United States Constitution.

I don't think they had smut and pornography in mind as a freedom of speech.

If destroying a mail box is an offense, destroying the American flag should be, too. Our flag is more than a piece of cloth. It is the symbol of our country.

Anyone who desecrates the flag—I feel—also desecrates our country.

Some people say, "What's the big fuss?" Not many flags have been burned, they tell you. But I say to them that burning just one flag is too many.

I think if anyone who burns our flag had to live under the flag of another country for awhile, he would be darn glad to come home and give Old Glory a big salute. If not a big kiss.

This country—I'm sure we all agree—has some faults and problems.

The reaction to the verdict in the O.J. Simpson trial revealed a much wider division between whites and blacks than we thought. That gap has to be closed. Or, we are in real trouble!

The drug problem has mushroomed. We now have bombings like the one in Oklahoma City. You can be gunned down if you happen to be in the wrong place at the wrong time.

We can't even list the home address in a death notice in the newspaper anymore because someone will be breaking into your home while you're burying a loved one.

There are other problems. But, this country still has a lot going for it. It still is the greatest country. And you veterans helped make it great and keep it great.

Be proud to be a veteran. Be proud whether you were in a so-called popular war, an unpopular war or a so-called forgotten war.

It doesn't matter what kind of war. What matters is that you were there when your country called.

You did your job and did it well. But there is still a job to be done.

As veterans you have another important role: you are guardians of the cherished principles and ideals on which this country was founded.

Don't let anyone erode them. Abuse of the flag is a warning that erosion may have begun. Fight to protect our flag from abuse and stop the erosion from spreading.

As bad—if not worse than a sneak attack from without is an enemy sneaking within.

Thank you.

Masonic Lodge Awards $500 To Djerf Preschool

The Quincy Masonic Lodge A.F. & A.M. recently awarded $500 to Djerf Christian Preschool, according to Jeanne Satterlund, school director.

The donation was made possible through the Rural Lodge's charity fund for good work within the community, Satterlund said.

"We are planning to use this award to supplement our scholarship fund and purchase additional equipment," she said. "Our tuition rate is one of the lowest in the Quincy area and a portion of our students receive financial aid to attend."

The Djerf Christian Preschool has serviced families for 26 years at its Roberts Street location. Owned and operated by Faith Lutheran Church, the program currently has enrolled 64 children ages 3-4 in various programs.

The Djerf school is also part of the state Department of Education's Community Partnership Grant Program. In collaboration with the Quincy Public Schools, students are provided an extended-day program to support their development.

"Children and families today need quality early childhood programs in which to grow," said Satterlund. "Our purpose is to create a caring environment where children can learn basic skills, small and large motor skills as well. Put simply, we want our children to learn that this world is a good place and that it can be a caring and loving world."

"We help them to develop social skills of getting along with each other—ways of sharing and expressing healthy feelings. Our purpose is to help children grow in a creative, healthy and loving space."

Merry Beth Rucker Director Of QVNA Patient Services

Merry Beth Rucker, RN recently joined the staff of Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, Inc. as the new director of Patient Services.

In this position, Rucker is responsible for both the day to day management of all clinical operations and for internal and external program development.

Rucker will focus on program development to "increase the depth, breadth, and scope of patient services" and customize network relationships through the at-home continuum of care. Rucker worked as a nurse in hospital and homecare settings before moving into management. She most recently served as nurse manager at Mount Auburn Home Care in Cambridge.

In addition to the new director of Patient Services, the new management team at Quincy VNA has added a new management staff as well as promotions within. Several QVNA nurses have moved into management positions. Linda Beaton, RN is the quality improvement manager. Lynne Ricardo, RN assumed a nurse manager position, while Joanne O'Neill, RN became the home care aide manager.

Susan Kestler, RN is now the staff development manager after working many years as a nurse manager at the QVNA. Maria Kane, RN., and Donna Sherrill, RN recently joined the staff as nurse managers. Patricia McHugh, RN is a weekend nurse manager.

Adams Visitors Center Re-Opens After Shutdown

After a six day shutdown, the temporary spending measure by Congress to reopen Government operations has allowed the Visitor's Center, 1250 Hancock St. at The Adams National Historic Site to open its doors again Monday.

According to Caroline Keinath, chief of interpretation at the center, all offices were closed except for one person representing the site maintaining the building.

An educational program offered to the school community had to be cancelled last week, but will resume this week, Keinath said. The program is primarily targeted for students in grades 4 and 5, she added.

The center includes a time line exhibit and slide program of the Adam's family which Keinath said was important "because the two Adam's birthplaces and the tour at the First Parish church in Quincy Square" closed for the winter on Nov. 10.

The center's hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday through April and then summer hours are resumed seven days a week.

Fr. Bill's Place Seeks Food Donations, Volunteers For Thanksgiving Dinner

Father Bill's Place in Quincy is seeking food donations and volunteers for its annual Thanksgiving Community Dinner Thursday.

The homeless shelter is in need of 40 turkeys

(cooked if possible) as well as a variety of vegetables, desserts, beverages and other holiday foods.

Volunteers are needed between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. to cook and stuff turkeys, bake desserts, and deliver meals. All food ingredients can be supplied. Those interested in volunteering should call in advance as spaces are limited.

For more information, call Laurie Boisvert or Jim Carras at 770-3314.

To Examine Depth Of The Problem Alcoholism Hearing At City Hall Nov. 30

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A unique public hearing dealing with the problem of alcoholism in the Quincy community will be held Thursday, Nov. 30 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

The event is being headed by Impact Quincy in conjunction with the City of Quincy and a number of other community groups.

Impact Quincy Executive Director Mitch Finnegan said the purpose of the hearing is to get a sense of the magnitude of the problem in the city, adding that he believes Quincy is the first community in the nation to take such action.

"We're not different from any other community in that we have this problem," he said. "The real difference is, we're going to do something about it. We're looking at this as a very positive step."

Finnegan said about 15 residents and representatives from various community groups will testify on what they know about the depth of the problem in the city.

"It (alcoholism) affects crime, education, family life," he said. "It affects every facet of life in the community."

Mayor James Sheets, whose office also is taking part in the new effort, agreed.

"We have to make young people aware of the dangers of alcoholism," the mayor said. "I think we do a better job here in Quincy than most cities of preventing the sale of alcohol to minors, but it's still a major problem."

Finnegan noted that although alcohol abuse treatment and prevention activities are already offered through the community and health education through the Quincy schools, the public hearing will be the first attempt to look at the problem on a community-wide basis and to find a broader solution to it.

He added that the idea for the hearing came from the Quincy Housing Authority, which also is involved in the effort. The authority originally had asked the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) to take a look at the problem in the QHA's facilities but later decided to contact Impact Quincy about reviewing the situation on a larger scale, according to Finnegan.

Among the other groups involved with the initiative are Bay State Community Services, Father Bill's Place, Manet Community Health Center, Quincy Faxon Detox, Quincy Health Department, Quincy Hospital, Quincy Police Department, South Shore Elder Services and South Shore Mental Health Center.

Sheets said following the testimony, a panel he has appointed composed of members of community groups and experts who deal with the problem will work to develop an action plan for providing solutions to alcohol abuse problems in Quincy. As part of its commitment, MHFA will provide matching funds and in-kind services to help with the development of the plan, he added.

The hearing will be broadcast live on QCTV's Channel 3 on Continental Cablevision. For more information about the event, call Finnegan or Steven Ward at Impact Quincy, 472-6027.

Pedestrian Injured Near MBTA Station

An 85-year-old Quincy man was injured when he was struck by a pickup truck Monday while crossing the street near the Quincy Center MBTA Station.

Quincy Police Sgt. Hugo Cardarelli said

George Neamtu of 400 Adams St. was hit at 10:13 a.m. in the vicinity of the T station by a 1988 Ford pickup truck being driven by Patrick Gannon of West Elm Ave. Neamtu was taken to Boston City Hospital following the accident, according to Cardarelli.

The sergeant said at press time he was unaware of the extent of Neamtu's injuries. A hospital spokeswoman said Neamtu had been operated on and was in stable condition.

Permit Sought For Town River Yacht Club Plan

Town River Yacht Club is seeking permission from the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers to reconfigure its existing float dock system at the Town River in Quincy.

The existing docks presently encroach into the federal channel. The proposed reconfiguration would minimize the encroachment but would not eliminate it entirely.

In conjunction with its plan, Town River Yacht Club is pursuing deauthorization or modification of parts of the federal channel, and Corps of Engineers permit which may be granted would be invalid until such time as the deauthorization or a channel modification is approved by Congress.

The application for the federal permit was filed with the Engineers in compliance with Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899 which provides for federal regulation of any work in, under or over navigable waters of the United States.

To assist in evaluating the proposed dock system reconfiguration, the Engineers are soliciting public comments. Written statements should be forwarded to their office no later than Dec. 7.

For more information, contact Ted Lento at New England Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 424 Trapelo Rd., Waltham, MA 02254-9149.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Seasonal Statistics On Real Estate Activity

By ART FOLEY

What time of the year is the most real estate sold? "Everything sells in the spring."

"Nothing sells between Thanksgiving and Christmas."

"Nothing moves in the winter."

These are comments frequently heard in the real estate corner. In an effort to put some of these questions to rest, I ran some statistics to determine what kind of activity is experienced at different times of the year.

When a property closes the actual offer and acceptance is when the activity takes place; therefore, the closings are stepped back two months to reflect the actual activity. The transaction numbers are an average per month for the last three years: (see chart)

Month & Transaction Totals	3 Month Totals	6 Months Totals
March 119	366	721 (57%)
April 133
May 144
June 134	355	541 (43%)
July 119
August 102
September 115	296
October 99
November 82
December 74	245
January 90
February 81
Totals 1262

It is interesting to note that the traditional assumption that there's more activity in the spring and less around the holidays is not as dramatic as one might think. The best six months, March through August, has 57 percent of the sales while September through February has 43 percent of the sales—there is certainly a difference but it's not as great as many of us might think.

The most active month in June and the least active is December, 135 versus 74; a reduction of 45 percent which is significant but not overwhelming.

I think the important thing to remember is there is always activity, always people buying and selling. If you wait until the spring to sell thinking that's when there's more activity, think again. One theory is that while there are less people looking during the winter and holiday months, those that are looking are serious and more focused and may be a better buyer for your property.

Prepping The House For Winter

By MATTHIAS MULVEY Inspector of Buildings

Well, the summer is over. It always goes too quickly. With the change of seasons, our thoughts should be turning to making sure the house is in good shape for the cold weather months ahead.

Below are listed a few items to check:

1) Is the furnace or boiler in good working order? Items to check:

• All pumps/circulators properly lubricated.

• Hot air furnace fan belts in good condition.

• Firebox/chimney clear of soot and ashes.

• No combustible materials stored on or near heating units.

• Boiler/hot water heater drained down to remove sediment.

• Thermostats clear of dust.

• Furnace filters replaced every month during heating season.

• Duct work/radiators vacuumed to clear away any dust.

• Proper adjustment of burner guns for optimum efficiency.

• It is best to have a professional clean and adjust your heating system.

2. Insulation: Wherever possible, insulate the house such as unfinished basements, heating supply and return heat piping or duct work, hot water pipings, attics, etc. If you insulate an attic, you must ventilate.

3. Windows: Make sure all windows and storm windows are in good working order.

4. Exterior: Make sure all gutters and conductor pipes are clear of debris. Check roofing, siding and chimneys for any maintenance needed. Check and trees and shrubbery to make sure they are trimmed away from the house. Patch any cracks or holes in walkways or driveways.

5. Have your winter tools/supplies in order such as a broom, shovels, sand or salt. It also makes sense to keep your car's ice scraper and a can of lock de-icer in the house. You may not be able to get into the car to get your tools to clean it if the lock is frozen.

6. Make sure the batteries in your smoke detectors are fresh.

Proper maintenance of your home will ensure a safe heating season for you. If you have any questions or need any additional information, please contact a Quincy building inspector at 376-1452 between 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. daily or call the building inspector in your own town if you live outside of Quincy.

Site Receives $50,000 Grant Public Hearing Nov. 27 On Tide Mill Proposal

A public hearing regarding proposed development at the Southern Tide Mill in Quincy will be held Monday, Nov. 27 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said the hearing pertains to a request from Twiss Realty, a division of Stop & Shop Corp., for a PUD (Planned Unit Development) permit to build at the site. The proposal includes "a couple of restaurants" and other development, Shea said.

The tide mill has also received a state grant, according to officials.

Secretary of the Commonwealth William Galvin, Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin, have announced that the tide mill has been named the recipient of a $50,000 grant from the Massachusetts Preservation Projects Fund.

The Quincy project is among 32 across the state to be awarded a grant for the repair and restoration of deteriorating historic structures.

"I am extremely pleased that my office will be able to fund 32 projects representing a total of $1053,000 in state monies," Galvin said. "The response from Massachusetts cities and towns for the rehabilitation of historic properties has been overwhelming. Our office receives numerous requests daily for funding."

Southern Tide Mill was awarded the $50,000 grant for the acquisition of the endangered property for use involving preservation and passive recreation. It is located on a five-acre site and is considered one of the best preserved tide mills remaining along the New England coast and in the U.S.

The tide mill initially was constructed between 1802 and 1808.

"In this round of grants, state dollars will serve to spearhead revitalization efforts, create jobs, and stimulate the economy in numerous Massachusetts communities," said Galvin. "State funding for historic preservation continues to be well spent."

The Massachusetts Preservation Projects Fund was designed to benefit State Register properties in public and non-profit use. It is matching grant program for up to 50 percent of the total project cost. One feature of the program allows applicants to request up to 75 percent of total construction costs provided they establish an endowment fund for the long-term maintenance of the grant-assisted property.

Ski Conditioning Program At YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will offer a ski conditioning program beginning Nov. 28.

The program is an eight-week exercise class designed for skiers of all abilities to improve their physical condition, reduce risk of injuries, strengthen all major muscle groups, and improve their cardiovascular fitness for the upcoming season.

The class will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. with an optional workout on Saturdays. Registration has begun.

QC-Wollaston Assns. Want Marina Bay Land As 'Open Space'

The Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Parks Associations want Lot 23 at Marina Bay which had been the proposed site of a planned housing and health care complex to be restored permanently to its former open space status.

Arthur Chandler, president, requested Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers Monday to introduce an order in the City Council to have the land changed back from planned unit development.

Continuum Health Care Corp. had planned to build a large complex including a 40,000-square-foot medical office building, 120 units of housing for the elderly and a 132-bed nursing home. But the plans were suddenly withdrawn in mid-October.

Chandler told Ayers his associations "stress the necessity of taking Lot 23 permanently out of harm's way by rezoning it to open space."

He added: "With so many undeveloped acres available elsewhere at Marina Bay, the associations say it is totally unnecessary to sacrifice the wildlife habitat and bird sanctuary environment which must be protected for posterity."

New Quincy High School Auditorium Dedicated

LOUISE DU ART, a member of the Quincy High School class of 1968, reminisces during recent auditorium dedication at the school. Du Art, known for her impersonations, has performed in theater, television, around the country and in her own one-woman show in Atlantic City, N.J.

AMONG THOSE ATTENDING the recent Quincy High School auditorium dedication were School Supt. Eugene Crendon (left) and Mayor James Sheets. More than 500 parents, city officials and alumni were in attendance.

RICHARD HEBERT, a member of the Quincy High School Class of 1979, belts out a song at the recent dedication of the school's new auditorium. Hebert has appeared on several television shows and is currently starring in the Broadway version of "Sunset Boulevard."

CHER IMPERSONATION is performed by Louise Du Art at the school's recent auditorium dedication.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL held a dedication ceremony recently for its newly-renovated auditorium. The QHS Chorus was among the acts that performed at the event.

JOINING TOGETHER for the finale of the dedication of the new $500,000 auditorium at Quincy High School are members of the school's Drama Club and Chorus.

William Hickey Promoted To Marine Major

Marine Maj. William E. Hickey, son of William and Elizabeth Hickey of 37 South St., Quincy, was recently promoted to that rank while serving with Headquarters and Support Battalion, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Hickey was promoted based on job performance and proficiency in military requirements among other things. The 1973 graduate of Scituate High School, joined the Marine Corps in March, 1977. Hickey is a 1989 graduate of the University of North Carolina, Wilmington, N.C., with a BS degree.

School-Business Partnership Celebrated

More than 100 school staff and members of the North Quincy-State Street Bank and Trust and Boston Financial Data Services Partnership heralded in their seventh year as school-business partners, during a recent ceremony.

NQHS Principal Peter Chrisom greeted the assembled guests with an acknowledgement of the importance of the school-business partnership to the school community. He acknowledged the "extraordinary", guidance and leadership of State Street Partnership Chairperson, Barbara Clarke. He also spoke of the school as microcosm of society; the bonding between the academic and private enterprise, and the exciting partnership initiatives scheduled for this academic year.

George A. Russell Jr., senior vice president of State Street Bank, described the signing as a celebration and a new beginning. He reaffirmed State Street's long term commitment to the partnership.

George Bowman, junior vice president of the bank, spoke of the partnership members being "charged up" to prepare our students to be winners who are prepared for tomorrow's challenges. The "charge" according to Bowman, is to prepare students "to communicate, participate and think critically".

Paul O'Neil, senior vice president of Boston Financial Data Services, drew comparisons between the diversity and progress in Boston Financial Data Services and North Quincy High. He spoke of the importance and emphasis on Technology in the partnership.

School Supt. Eugene Crendon underscored the importance of this model partnership. He stated that other city partnerships are built around this flagship partnership. Crendon also acknowledged the synergy between the partnership members and the tremendous work involved in a successful partnership.

LORETTA T. DeGRAZIA (left), owner-president of East Coast Petroleum, celebrates the company's 10th anniversary from her new offices in North Quincy assisted by staff members Vincent Falcone, Gerry Kramer, and Robin McDonald, all of Quincy. The unique cake was designed and baked by the Veneto sisters of Ginger Betty's in North Quincy.

Don't Let Quincy's Record Fool You

By KERRY BYRNE

The Quincy High School football team entered the season with a new coach and a slew of underclass starters and first-year players. To no one's surprise, they've marched through the campaign winning three battles and falling in six.

But don't let that 3-6 record fool you. The Presidents beat the teams they should have beat. As for the teams they lost to, well there's the story of the season.

Quincy faced a schedule that was no less than brutal. The six teams they lost to (East Bridgewater, Barnstable, Weymouth, Falmouth, Bridgewater-Raynham and Marshfield) are a combined 43-9-2 this year. Five of those nine losses were amongst each other, as were the ties (B-R vs. Falmouth, 0-0).

Of those six clubs, two (EB and Barnstable) are assured Super Bowl berths following perfect 9-0 seasons. Marshfield has been one of the most awesome teams in eastern Mass., averaging 34 points per game during its seven-game win streak. The Rams will go to a Super Bowl with a win over Duxbury on Thanksgiving.

It is doubtful that any other team in the region faced such a gauntlet week after week. It was certainly a trial by fire for what was an inexperienced club when the season began. Only five of the players who will take the field against North Quincy Thursday did so in the Turkey Day game last season. To throw in a cheesy metaphor, it is in such fire that iron is forged.

"The more powerful teams with the big lines gave us trouble because we just didn't have the experience," said Quincy coach Peter Chella. Chella has appeared in the Thanksgiving Day game as a player and assistant coach. This will be his first year as the top dog.

"We tended to be more vulnerable to the larger, stronger lines," he said. "Against the teams that were our own size I thought we fared pretty well."

A win Thursday will give the Presidents a perfectly respectable fifth-place, 4-4 record and make the season struggle little more than a learning experience for both the players and coach.

The Presidents had been moving the ball with great success against Falmouth and Silver Lake before taking their lumps against Barnstable.

"Our offensive line is blocking real well, with the exception of the Barnstable game," said Chella. "But you can take that game and throw it out. That team was the strongest one I've seen in years."

"I think we can move the ball against North Quincy, but they can to. I think it will be one of those last second nail-biters with the team who gets the ball last winning."

Quincy will rely on the trench work of Don McCarthy, Jason Little, Pete Kolson, Dan Nichol, Greg Fernald and Jay Fennelly to make things click offensively. The crew has gelled nicely and will be a force next year with juniors McCarthy and Little

Thursday, this group will have combined for eight Thanksgiving Day starts.

"For the first time in a long time we have a bit of a size advantage," said Chella. "But I don't know what that will mean once we step on the field."

Look for Quincy to keep things on the ground with their multiple formations and option packages.

They can go deep, however, with speedy wideouts Eric Nunez and Mike Sheffer. Sheffer has not been called upon often but is a threat on any given play and a dangerous kick returner.

The defense is primed with all the players healthy for the first time in several weeks. In particular, that means middle linebacker Bill Dunn who has a fought a variety of ailments which kept him off the field on numerous occasions during that stretch.

"We have a healthy defense for the first time in a long time," said Chella. "What we have to watch out for is Brian Walsh. No matter what you do he can bounce off a couple of people and make things happen. You're not going to stop him 100 percent of the time. We just want to stop him as much as possible."

Scott MacPherson, Steve Wiltshire, McCarthy, Kolson, Fennelly and Little are the stoppers up front. Dunn, Jon Ryan, Mike Russo and Bob Walsh have become a solid linebacking corps.

Sheffer is the top secondary player as he leads the Old Colony League in interceptions.

Jekyll & Hyde Season For Red Raiders

Which North Team Will Take Field?

Come Thursday the Red Raiders may walk away with the whole darn Turkey Day bird. Or they may be force fed a large helping of crow.

It all depends on which club steps on the field. It's been that kind of year for the North Quincy High School (3-6) football team. In their three wins, the Red Raiders beat their opponents by an average of 20 points. In their losses they were beat by an average of 20 points. Only two of their nine games were decided by less than three touchdowns.

It's safe to say there have been a lot of early exits from the stadium, either way, when North Quincy has played. One way or another, the Red Raiders camp expects a lot of points to be put on the board on Thanksgiving Day.

"I expect this to be a more wide open game than we've played in past years," said North Quincy coach Ken McPhee. McPhee has led his club into 14 battles against the Presidents and has walked away with a 7-5-2 record.

"It will be wide open, but I also expect a tight game. I know our kids are ready to play and they'll be rise to the occasion," he said. "It will be an entertaining game for two 3-6 teams."

Like Quincy, North Quincy entered the season with a totally revamped team. Of this year's players, only Tim Zaniboni and Brian (Muskie) Walsh started in the Thanksgiving Day game last season.

If the Red Raiders are able to put a bevy of points on the scoreboard, as they did in averaging 32 points in wins over Plymouth South, Don Bosco and Taunton, it will be due to a two-pronged ground/air attack.

J.R. Rendle has developed into a fine passer with superb touch. For the most part, he will look to get the ball into the hands of Matt Kieilty, Tom Coughlin or Charlie Plaskasovitis. Also look for swing and screen passes to Walsh and Sean Johnson out of the backfield.

Johnson and Walsh will be called upon to do the bulk of the ground work. Walsh, a 5-foot-6-inch, 175-pound fireplug, will be the X factor in the game.

If he has a breakout performance, as he did last week against Taunton with 161 yards on 15 carries, it could spell doom for the Presidents. The junior has been nearly unstoppable with an average of almost 7 yards per carry. He has, depending on who you talk to, 700 to 800 yards rushing in just five and a half games. Either way its impressive.

His much ballyhooed

mid-season absence may have benefitted the Red Raiders in a big way. Instead of relying on just one man to carry the load, McPhee was forced to diversify his attack. As a result a new slate of offensive performers emerged, not the least of which was Johnson. The senior running back had several big games and will provide an outside threat to counter any Quincy focus on Walsh.

Rendle also benefitted. Instead of serving as a hand-off machine, he was called upon to put the ball in the air more often and it allowed him to hone his passing skills.

Burly backfield mates Zaniboni and Chris Ritchie will be called upon to do the lead blocking.

The Red Raiders offense will be fronted by a small but tenacious (certain sports scribes, searching for a comparison, might say Bulldog-like) front five in Eric Malames, Steve Stentiford, Joe McCarthy, Norm Connell and Paul Picciano. Look for Malames and Stentiford to lead NQ's usually well-executed package of counter plays. Picciano, a co-captain and emotional leader, has displayed a knack for trench warfare throughout the campaign.

On the defensive side of the ball, sophomore strong safety Steve Rose, who transferred from Barnstable this year, has been one of the great surprises for the Red Raiders. He is all football player with a nose for the ball. He proved his mettle playing a good portion of the season with a broken wrist and his arm heavily wrapped from hand to elbow.

Free safety will be done by committee with Rendle, Paul Greeley and Tim Semchenko sharing the load.

Zaniboni and Ritchie are the stoppers at line-backer in the base 5-2 defense.

Plaskasovitis and McCarthy have had strong seasons along the defensive line.

NORTH QUINCY QUARTERBACK J.R. Rendle hopes the same smile will appear on his face come noon on Thanksgiving Day. Rendle has shown superb accuracy throughout the season and threw for two TD to lead his club to a 35-16 win over Taunton last week.

JUNIOR QUARTERBACK MARK Glynn will be making his second Turkey Day start at the helm for the Presidents. He scored a touchdown in last year's 21-14 win over North Quincy. Glynn has five TD runs this year in engineering Quincy's option attack.

Rendle, Glynn Have Different QB Styles

Senior J.R. Rendle will quarterback North Quincy and Mark Glynn will call the signals for Quincy on Thanksgiving Day.

Rendle is making his first start in the Turkey Day donnybrook. He has developed a remarkably deft scoring touch for a player with just one year of experience at the helm. The target of most of his throws have been receivers

Matt Kietly and Tom Coughlin and tight end Charlie Plaskasovitis.

The NQ field general is hitting stride at the right time. He is coming off his finest performance of the season as he completed 7 of 9 passes and threw for two touchdowns in a 35-16 win over Taunton.

Glynn has not been called upon to throw the ball much in his two years leading Quincy, but he has turned into a swift and intelligent option quarterback, as evidenced by his five rushing touchdowns this year.

Glynn ran for a score against North Quincy last year.

Look for Glynn to attack the corners along with Kevin Connolly while Bill Dunn will pound from tackle to tackle.

Excitement, Last-Second Drama Mark Q-NQ Series

For sheer excitement and last-second drama, few football rivalries can match Quincy-North Quincy.

Close games have defined the series, especially in recent years.

Ten of the last 12 meetings have been decided by less than one touchdown and conversion.

In 1985, 1987, 1989 and 1993 the outcome was in doubt until the final play of the game.

In 1984 and 1994 the Presidents grabbed interceptions in the final minutes to thwart comeback efforts by North Quincy.

In 1975 the Red Raiders

won the only overtime game in the series, 15-8.

Of the 62 meetings between the Red Raiders and the Presidents, 34 have been decided by one touchdown and conversion or less.

The margin of victory has been greater than two scores in just 17 games.

NQ 1966, 1992 Teams Had Perfect Records

North Quincy has twice entered the Thanksgiving Day game with a perfect record, 1966 and 1992.

Ken McPhee had a role in both as a starting guard on the 1966 club and the coach of the 1992 team.

The 1966 team, coached by the late Carl Leone, had a 9-0 record, won the Greater Boston League title, shared the Class A crown with Arlington and shut out Quincy, 8-0.

The 1992 team had an 11-0 record, won the Old Colony League title, beat Arlington in the Div. 1B Super Bowl and shut out Quincy, 20-0.

QUINCY JUNIOR running back Kevin Connolly is the leading scorer among both teams with 10 touchdowns and 60 points going into the Turkey Day showdown. Two weeks ago he exploded with one of the best performances in the Old Colony League this season as his four touchdowns and 208 yards rushing lifted Quincy to a 32-22 win over Silver Lake.

SEÁN JOHNSON has been one of the great surprises for the North Quincy football team. The senior runs like a deer and is tied for the team lead with four touchdowns. Last week he made a great catch for a score which broke the back of the Taunton defense in NQ's 35-16 win.

Presidents running back Kevin Connolly is the leading scorer going into the Thanksgiving Day classic between Quincy and North Quincy.

The junior has scored ten touchdowns and 60 of Quincy's 123 points in nine games. He exploded against Silver Lake with four of those touchdowns.

Connolly, among the leaders in the Old Colony League in scoring, is making his first appearance in the Turkey Day game.

Quarterback Mark Glynn, also a junior, is second on the Quincy club with five rushing touchdowns and 30 points.

The Red Raiders have spread the scoring wealth among 10 players. Topping that list are senior Sean Johnson and junior Brian Walsh. The running backs have each scored four touchdowns for 24 points.

QUINCY HIGH School fullback and middle linebacker Bill Dunn, a co-captain, will be making his third start in the Thanksgiving Day classic. He came up big last year with a long run in the fourth quarter which gave the Presidents a first down and allowed them to run out the clock in their 21-14 win.

RED RAIDERS fullback and linebacker Tim Zaniboni looks the part of a football player: hairy arms, cut above nose and steely eyes. The co-captain is the fireplug on the North Quincy defense.

MIKE SHEFFER is Quincy's deep threat and most dangerous cover man in the secondary. His interception which set up one touchdown and kick return for a score lifted the Presidents to a 21-14 win over Plymouth South earlier in the season.

The Series Record:

Quincy 30, North 27, 5 Ties

Entering the the 63rd meeting between Quincy and North Quincy, the Presidents hold the edge with 30 wins.

North has won 27 times. Five games have ended in ties. The contests in 1934, 1937, 1940 and 1983 were scoreless affairs. The 55th meeting in 1987 ended in a 14-14 tie.

The series was last deadlocked going into the 1950 game.

Last year's win by Quincy broke a string of three straight North Quincy victories.

The Presidents have not won back-to-back Turkey Day games since 1977-79 when they put together a stretch of three victories.

Who Has The Advantage?

Picking a favorite in the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day game is always difficult, and this year is no exception.

Quincy appears to have a slight edge, though certainly not enough for it to be considered an upset if they lose.

The Presidents have a bit more size up front and have been more consistent through the season. The Red Raiders have had games where they looked like world beaters, only to lose big in their next outing. However, the end results have been the same as both sport 3-6 records.

The Red Raiders biggest advantage comes in the form of Brian Walsh. He will be the single most dangerous player on the field Thursday.

Both clubs have lost to Barnstable, Weymouth, Falmouth and B-R and both have posted wins against Taunton and Plymouth South.

The only difference against a common opponent was versus Silver Lake. The President topped the Lakers, 32-22, while the Red Raiders fell, 26-21.

North Quincy looked stronger than Quincy in games against Plymouth South, Barnstable and Taunton. The Presidents played better than the Red Raiders in games against B-R and Falmouth.

Sullivan Quincy's Best Turkey Day Coach

Bill Sullivan is Quincy High School's most successful head coach in Thanksgiving Day games.

He went 6-2 against North Quincy as a head coach from 1952 to 1959.

Sullivan led the Presidents to five consecutive wins from 1954-1958, the longest win streak in series history.

He lost to the Red Raiders in 1953 and 1959.

Sullivan was an assistant to Munroe MacLean from 1939 to 1951.

North Won Only Overtime Game

North Quincy won the only overtime game in the history of the series, 15-8, in 1975.

The win set up the Red Raiders' first Super Bowl appearance.

North had a 9-1 record, losing only to Brockton.

They won two other games in overtime that year, both on field goals by Ed McAleney.

McAleney was inducted into the Quincy-North Quincy football Hall of Fame last year.

GETTING TO THE BOTTOM LINE OF A LEASE
If you want to know how to arrive at the monthly payment on a car lease, start with the gross vehicle cost (known as the capitalized cost). This amount is similar to the negotiated selling price in a sale and may include license fees, registration fees, and other fees. Then, from the capitalized cost, subtract trade-ins or advance payments to get your net cap cost. From that, subtract the residual value (the guaranteed price of the car at the end of the lease) to get the depreciation that you will pay during the lease. Add the lease charge, which is roughly equal to the interest charges on a loan and may also include administrative fees, monthly sales and use taxes, and special lease insurance. Finally, the sum of the depreciation and the lease service charge is then divided by the total number of monthly payments to get the monthly payment.

HINT: It is vitally important to know the capitalized cost if you are ever going to be able to figure out the bottom line of your lease.

AtLEE & WALTS SUNOCO, we want you to well informed about every system in your car whether or not it is leased. Our friendly ASE Certified staff here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550) will answer all your questions. Give us a try. We'll earn your trust! We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted autos and trucks.

Series Has Wealth Of Upsets, Fantastic Finishes

The Red Raiders and Presidents have engaged in a series of epic battles over the years. Impressive is the number of times a very good team - whether it be North or Quincy - played their toughest game of the year on Thanksgiving; or the number of times a poor team rose to the occasion against their arch-rival.

This cliché certainly holds true: 'On Turkey Day the records go out the window.'

Following is a summary of some of the best of the 62 games played between Quincy and North Quincy. Note the amazing string in the mid-1960s and again in the 80s.

NQ 6, Quincy 0

NQ entered its first game against Quincy undefeated, but was considered a huge underdog against the more established Quincy football program. Arthur (Bat) Nelson threw a scoring pass to Walter Joly in the fourth quarter to give the North boys the win.

Ecstatic Red Raiders fans took to the streets and paraded back to their high school.

Joly had replaced injured North superstar Walter (Cap) Bryan.

NQ 6, Quincy 0

Frank Driscoll blocked a Quincy punt in the waning moments of the game to set up Jimmy McLellan's 15-yard scoring pass to Billy Phinney as the underdog Red Raiders again numbed the Quincy faithful.

Quincy 19, NQ 0

This time the Presidents entered the game as the underdog, but, as has become commonplace in this game, they pulled off the win for their first victory in the rivalry.

Lanny Lombardi scored twice and Jack Pettinelli once to lead Quincy.

NQ 7, Quincy 0

The Red Raiders entered the game heavily favored but the Presidents were ready for the challenge. A 38-yard pass from Dave Burke to Paul Clem set up Robert (Scotty) Whitelaw's 5-yard touchdown run late in the fourth quarter.

NQ 7, Quincy 0

The underdog Red Raiders kicked off to open the game and Dave Burke fell on the ball in the end zone for the only score.

The loss ruined powerful Quincy's chances for a Class B championship.

The undefeated Red Raiders took an early 6-0 lead in front of 20,000 spectators.

The Presidents stormed back with two touchdowns by sophomore Charlie Sacchetti to ruin NQ's flawless record.

Quincy 32, NQ 19

In perhaps the wildest game in the series, Quincy's Tony Quintiliani stole the ball from a North runner and returned it 75 yards for the first of eight touchdowns in the contest.

Once-beaten North entered the game a huge favorite but needed a Fran Lacey 5-yard TD run with 50 seconds left to secure the win against the highly-charged Presidents.

Many a Quincy fan is still bitter about the 'Phantom Whistle' play: Early in the game, NQ's Tom Kiley was bottled up at the line of scrimmage. Thinking the play was over, the Quincy players headed back to the huddle. Meanwhile, Kiley had pitched to Billy Curran who raced down the sideline for a long score.

Quincy 12, NQ 8

Bobby Graham electrified the crowd as he sliced his way 70 yards through the Red Raiders defense for a dramatic fourth-quarter score to give the Presidents the win.

Quincy's Vin Vecchione and NQ's Dick Wanless both scored on runs of over 50 yards in the big-play battle.

Tom Malvesti threw two touchdown passes to lead Quincy to a 20-0 lead in the fourth quarter.

A furious North rally, sparked by Dave Zink and Richie Wanless TD runs, fell just short and the Presidents held on to win.

NQ 8, Quincy 0

Veterans' Memorial Stadium was mobbed by 15,000 who came to watch the undefeated and untied Red Raiders pound the Presidents.

The legions were held in suspense until the fourth quarter when Don Meyer ran 16 yards for the game's only touchdown, giving North a share of the Eastern Mass. Class A title.

Quincy 21, NQ 8

A strong North club entered the game with a shot at the Greater Boston League title.

They led, 8-7, at the break, but second-half TDs by Ken Prouty and Steve Carrera gave Quincy the upset victory.

Quincy 16, NQ 6

One of the best Quincy squads in history entered the game undefeated and untied but needed an 87-yard Steve McCarthy punt return and a Bill Maver field goal - both in the final quarter - to fend off the upset-minded Red Raiders.

1974

Quincy 14, NQ 13

Preston Carroll scored two second-half TDs and a two-point conversion for the Presidents.

NQ's Brian Doherty threw a 63-yard scoring strike to Brian Donaghy in the fourth quarter to bring the Raiders to within one. In a bold but correct decision, they went for the win but were unable to punch in the two points.

NQ 15, Quincy 8

The Red Raiders were undefeated and untied but the Presidents would have none of that talk.

NQ was forced to battle into overtime - the only one in the rivalry's history - in order to gain a Super Bowl berth. Brian Doherty scored both touchdowns for North Quincy.

Quincy 13, NQ 7

The Raiders led 7-0 in the fourth quarter but touchdowns by John Cahill and Mighty Midget Tom Brennan gave the Presidents the victory for first-year coach Tom Fitzgerald.

1984

Quincy 14, NQ 12

Defensive tackle John O'Callahan returned an interception for what proved to be the decisive TD for the Presidents.

A late interception by Bill Shaughnessy thwarted a North comeback bid as Jack Raymer earned the win in his first Turkey Day game as Quincy coach.

NQ 7, Quincy 6

Both teams entered the game with poor records - Quincy was winless - and the game was played under what many consider the most miserable conditions in the history of the series. But that didn't prevent a dramatic game as the Red Raiders stopped a two-point conversion in the fourth quarter to seal the win.

1987

Quincy 14, NQ 14

The Presidents entered the game winless against a powerful Red Raiders club.

Quincy QB Chris Noble led an 80-yard drive in the final two minutes and threw to Sean Munroe for the tying touchdown with one second left in the game. The try for two was stopped.

Quincy's Dave Spencer and Sean Thompson played heroic defense as the Raiders scored on returns of an interception (Matt McNamara) and a kickoff (Paul McCormack).

NQ 27, Quincy 26

In the second-highest scoring game in the history of the series (Quincy beat North, 44-20, in 1955), the Red Raiders batted away a pass in the end zone on the game's final play to hold on to the victory.

North's Dan Gilmartin and Quincy's Mark Bogan each ran for over 160 yards.

The game was played on the Saturday following Thanksgiving due to blizzard conditions on the holiday.

The highly-favored Presidents entered the game with just one loss but found themselves trailing, 17-0, in the second quarter.

Mark Bogan - in what may be the greatest single performance in Q-NQ history - scored all three TD for Quincy. He also had three fourth-quarter touchdowns called back by penalties. Two were interception returns.

Ho Hum Season In Old Colony League

It was a surprisingly predictable football season in the Old Colony League this year. To call the OCL slate ho-hum or boring would be about accurate: there were no upsets, no surprises, no Cinderella Northwesterns going undefeated and no let downs from the favored clubs.

Barnstable, the pre-season favorite, marched through the schedule with a perfect record.

The rest of the pecking order was firmly established with each team losing to the teams with better records and beating the teams with lesser records.

The only bumps during the season, if you can call them such, were a 0-0 tie between third-place Falmouth and fourth-place Bridgewater-Raynham, and Silver Lake's win over North Quincy.

Quincy played the schedule like a drum. Their biggest loss of the year was to Barnstable as they fell by 41 points. Second-place Weymouth beat Quincy by 28; the margin against third-place Falmouth was 17. The fifth-place Presidents fell to fourth place B-R by a 6-0 score.

Quincy beat Plymouth South, Taunton and Silver Lake.

First Turkey Day Game

The first Quincy-North Quincy game played on Thanksgiving Day, and the first played at Veterans' Memorial Stadium, was in 1938.

Before that the game was played on Armistice Day. The rivals first played at Comin's (now Rotary) Field before moving to Pfaffman's Oval in 1935. The Oval became the stadium in 1938.

Quincy won that first Turkey Day game, 19-0.

It was their first win in six Armistice Day tries against North Quincy. Before that they had lost three times and tied twice.

Football

North JV's Edge Quincy

The North Quincy High School JV football team completed a Saturday sweep of Quincy in the Thanksgiving Day preview with a 14-6 win.

The Red Raiders (6-4) were led by the two-way play of Tim Semchenko and Jim Finn.

The two combined for the winning points and accounted for three of North Quincy's five interceptions.

Semchenko completed a 43-yard pass to Finn for the game's first score in the second quarter. They hooked up again on the two-point conversion pass as their club took an 8-0 lead.

Aaron Marshall gave North Quincy a 14-0 lead with an 18-yard run in the fourth quarter. The try for two failed.

The Presidents (2-8) attempted a rally with Kevin Moore connecting on a long touchdown pass to Kevin McPartlin late in the contest.

Semchenko kept the Quincy offense at bay with two interceptions. Finn, Marshall and Pat Egan each picked off one pass.

Marshall's INT of a swing pass set up his own touchdown run.

Chuck O'Brien and Sean Donovan also played superb defense for the Red Raiders.

Shaun Faherty had a strong game running the ball for Quincy. His long run the third quarter put the Presidents deep into North territory but they were unable to capitalize.

NQ Frosh Awaken In Second Half, Win 22-6

The North Quincy High School freshman football team topped Quincy, 22-6, in a hard-fought battle Saturday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The teams waged a stout defensive struggle in the first half as they entered intermission tied, 0-0.

The Red Raiders took charge in the second half with quarterback Chris Bregoli taking the ball around right end from 5 yards. The try for two failed.

They added a second score when Bregoli threw to Frank McNamara from 15 yards away. They connected again on the conversion.

Pat Dolbear ran in the final North Quincy touchdown and Bregoli threw to Joe Wilson who made a juggling catch in the corner of the end zone for the two-point conversion.

"We made a couple of mistakes early on, but then got things going after making some adjustments at halftime," said Red Raiders freshman coach Ryan Craig. "We put it together and were able to pass well. Nobody's really been able to stop our passing game all year."

Tom Daley carried the ball in on a sweep for the lone Quincy touchdown. John Katsarikas and Nathan DeRosario also ran well. Quarterback Kevin Shaw led the team well against swarming defensive pressure.

The Presidents threw convention out the window with repeated fourth-down attempts as they tried to eke out a score. One first-half Quincy drive began deep in its own territory and lasted several minutes as the Presidents converted on two fourth-down tries. However, they were unable to advance beyond the 50 as their final fourth-down attempt was unsuccessful.

The NQ defense was led by Kenny Maher, Steve Powell, Craig Bigham, Corey Awed, Steve Ryan, Chris Carthas and Ron Logan. Wilson and McNamara made interceptions.

NQ Cheerleading Team Invited To Florida Citrus Bowl

The North Quincy High School cheerleaders have been invited to appear in the Florida Citrus Bowl in Orlando on New Year's Day.

Fundraising efforts will determine if the squad is able to make the trip.

The Red Raiders earned the honor with a first-place finish in the Universal Cheerleading Association-sponsored Emmanuel College cheerleading competition.

The event was held Nov. 12 at Boston College High School and North Quincy competed against Division 2 all-state cheerleading teams.

The Red Raiders are:

co-captain Beth Crowley, co-captain Meg Goodwin, Jodie Mackie, Lisa Slade, Elizabeth Tufts, Judy Wong, Melissa Debonis, Bridget Shaunessy, Erika Thompson, Katie Zuffante, Sarah Boston, Christina Ladopoulos, Rachel Leschmier and Julie Walsh. The mascot is Molley Finnegan and the team is coached by Susan Dillon.

Volleyball

NQ Falls In Title Game To Undefeated Barnstable

If it were any other sport, or any other team, it would mark the end of a stellar season. For the North Quincy High School girls volleyball team, playing in the Division I state championship game is old hat. And losing in that game is one step short of the goal set by the powerhouse Red Raiders squad at the beginning of each season.

Saturday night at Assumption College in Worcester, North Quincy (21-4) lost to Barnstable (25-0), 3-1, in the state championship match.

It marked a disappointing end for the NQ seniors who were freshman when the team last one the state title in 1992.

It was also the second time in as many years that the Red Raiders lost to an undefeated opponent in the title contest. Last year the loss came against New Bedford.

Barnstable and North Quincy have combined to win four of the last five state championships in girls volleyball. The Red Raiders won in 1991 and 1992 while the Cape team last won in 1993. In 1993, Barnstable advanced with a win over NQ in the semifinals.

Barnstable certainly had North Quincy's number this season. As Pilgrim Conference opponents the clubs met twice during the regular season. Barnstable won both outings, 2-0.

The Red Raiders, who had rolled through the sectional tournament and in the state semifinal against Dracut, continued their outstanding play with a firm 15-8 win over Barnstable in game one of the best-of-five match.

It was the only game they managed to steal from Barnstable in their three meetings as the tall, powerful Cape club stormed back with three consecutive victories.

North Quincy had a shot to take a 2-1 lead with a tremendous comeback effort in the third game. Barnstable led 10-1, but the Red Raiders, led the serving of Kerry Ginty and the spectacular front court play of senior co-captain Linda Jellison, forged a 14-14 tie.

The threat ended as Barnstable star Cathy Harrington slammed home two straight points, giving her club a 16-14 win.

Barnstable went on to win the fourth and final game, 15-8.

The Red Raiders advanced to the title game with a 3-1 (14-16, 15-12, 15-10, 16-14) win over Dracut in the semifinals.

Co-captain Sara Stanton played a spectacular match against Dracut with 18 kills to spark North Quincy.

Erica Crawford, Kerry Jellison and Rachael Repoff were among the many Red Raiders who played fantastic volleyball throughout the tournament and the regular season.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

We have many things to be grateful for at Thanksgiving time... especially in this time of world turmoil and unrest. Freedom, our most precious gift, we take for granted most of the time... We can say what we want, go where we please and worship as we please. More than half the world cannot exercise these privileges.

Yes, Thanksgiving is truly an American holiday and we should not only give thanks for our bountiful blessings, but be willing to share what we have with those less fortunate than ourselves... not only in material blessings, but in giving of ourselves.

Our earliest settlers in 1620 knew this and after that first terrible winter when many died, they planted their food and had a successful harvest. They gave thanks to God for their bounty and shared it with the Indians.

Today this tradition must continue more than ever.

Let us not only give thanks for our own good fortune, but share with others our blessings. This is the true meaning of Thanksgiving...

OBITUARIES

Esther M. Hurley, 102 Worked In City Treasurer's Office

A funeral Mass for Esther M. (Gump) Hurley, 102, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

Mrs. Hurley died Nov. 16 at the Crestview Health Care Facility in Quincy after a brief illness.

She worked as a clerk in the Quincy city treasurer's office for 26 years beginning in 1934 after the death of her late husband, John J. Hurley, a Quincy city councillor. Mrs. Hurley retired 32 years ago.

When she entered the working world to support her only child, John Hurley Jr. of Abington, few women were in the work force.

Arthur W. Gerstel Jr., 73 Independent Contractor For 40 Years

A private funeral service was held for Arthur W. "Bud" Gerstel Jr., 73, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy.

Mr. Gerstel died Nov. 17 at Medplex of Weymouth.

He was an independent contractor for 40 years before retiring eight years ago and a member of the Painters' Union.

A Navy veteran of World War II, he enlisted in the service after graduating from high school. He served in both the European and Pacific Theatres and was a crew member aboard the USS Milwaukee when the ship was delivered to the Russian government under a lend-lease program.

An accomplished athlete, he played in the CYO League for Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck under Fr. Peter Hart and was also a champion ping-pong player in his teens.

She was a past president of the Emblem Club, the women's division of the Quincy Elks Lodge, and played organ for the group.

Mrs. Hurley loved music.

Born in Dorchester, she moved to Quincy when she was a child. She lived in Merrymount for more than 50 years before moving to the nursing home seven years ago.

She is also survived by four grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren, and three great-great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Mr. Gerstel was educated in Quincy schools and a graduate of Quincy High School. A lifelong resident of the South Shore, he lived in Quincy before moving to Weymouth 22 years ago.

He is survived by a son, Mark S. Gerstel of Burlington; three daughters, Karen Abell of Braintree, Monica Gerstel of Quincy and Kimberly Gerstel of Braintree; four grandsons, Jason Abell of Marshfield, Joshua Abell of Burlington, and Aaron and Adrian Gerstel, both of Burlington; a brother, Edward R. Gerstel of North Quincy; two sisters, Pauline C. Bolger of Dorchester and Norma A. Powers of North Quincy; and his former wife, Claire (Yenulevich) Johnson.

Private burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Union Congregational

As part of its ongoing centennial celebration, Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston, will go back in time this Sunday with an old time church service at 10 a.m.

The theme will be that of a 19th century camp meeting, complete with 19th century gospel hymns and some period costumes.

A special Advent Bible Study entitled "Portraits of Christ in the Old Testament" will take place at the church Sundays at 7 p.m. from Nov. 26 through Dec. 17. The series will be led by Rev. John Swanson, pastor, in the Guild Room. Refreshments will be available.

Public Hearing Dec. 4

Average $30 Tax Bill Hike Seen For Homeowners

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy homeowners will pay an average $30 higher tax bill despite a four-cent decrease in the tax rate under Mayor James Sheets' proposed tax plan for Fiscal Year 1996.

Officials said the $30 is the result of an increase in city property values.

The City Council will hold a public hearing Monday, Dec. 4 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall to give residents the opportunity to be heard on the matter.

The council briefly discussed Mayor James Sheets' proposed FY96 property taxes of $30.58 (per $1,000) for CIPP and $14.54 for residential property Monday night. Last year, the rates were $30.58 and $14.58 respectively.

Board of Assessors Chairman Marion Fantucchio presented the figures to the council Monday night at a special meeting.

Among those who expressed satisfaction at the mayor's proposal was Councillor Timothy Cahill, who said the reduction in the residential tax rate and the stability in the commercial rate is largely the work of the City Council for its work on the annual municipal budget.

"I think the council deserves a lot of credit," said Cahill. "This is an example that the council has done what we're supposed to do."

Cahill also called the increase in property values "a good sign" for the city.

Sheets made good on his promise earlier this year to hold the line on property taxes for the second consecutive year. However, this year all of the city's residential and commercial property was revaluated as required by state law every three years.

As a result of increase in property values, the average Quincy homeowners' tax bill will increase $30 despite the fact that the mayor held the line on taxes this fiscal year. Last year, the increase was only $3.

However, the previous year when the city was unable to contain the tax rate because of budget restraints, the increase was $154.

The owner of an average single-family home, valued at $140,900 will pay $2,049 this fiscal year. Last year, the average homeowner's tax bill for a home valued at $138,450 increased from $2,016 to $2,019.

Sheets has attributed the new rates to a couple of factors, but mainly an increase in state aid that left the city with a cash surplus of $5.7 million as well as cost savings in government made possible by the cooperation between himself and the City Council.

Sheets also has said the increase in property values is a good sign for Quincy.

Under the new rates, business owners will pay about 37 percent of Quincy's tax levy of $78.8

Chiccino To Replace Yaeger As Personnel Director

Quincy Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger has resigned and will be replaced by longtime Quincy Savings Bank official James Chiccino effective Dec. 1, according to Mayor James Sheets.

Yaeger, who has worked for the city 16 years and has served as personnel director since the beginning of the Sheets administration in 1990, has accepted the position of manager of employee and labor relations with Harvard Pilgrim Health Care.

Sheets said Yaeger has been a valuable city employee and team player who was instrumental in labor relations that resulted in the city switching to a single health care provider a couple of years ago, a move the mayor has attributed to saving millions of dollars for the city.

"She's an exceptionally talented person," he said.

Sheets said Yaeger is perfect for her new position because she worked as a health benefit coordinator before becoming personnel director.

Yaeger could not be reached for comment at press time.

Sheets said he recently got to know Chiccino when the latter helped the city during its recent problems with Norfolk Bristol-ASA Ambulance Systems of America. The company, which provides service to the city through Quincy Hospital, recently paid the city $500,000 after it was discovered it

Recreation Dept. Program To Expand

The Quincy Recreation Department will supervise recreation programs in all neighborhood school gymnasiums on an expanded schedule for the 1995-96 winter season.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said the highly successful After School, Evening and Saturday Programs will utilize the new gymnasium at the Parker School and reopen its program at the Beechwood Knoll while expanding its highly successful Evening Gym Programs from eight gyms to 13 when the schedule is fully implemented.

The After School Programs are for elementary age participants from age 8 through Grade 5. The Evening Programs are for middle school and high school students. Programs are co-recreational.

All programs will have a walk-in registration at each location and is open only to Quincy residents who may attend the location of their choice or register for multiple sites on different days. Programs are free of charge. Assorted gym activities such as floor hockey, tag football, and basketball will be conducted under supervision of leaders from the Quincy Recreation Department staff.

The program begins this week and will continue until early April. The expansion of the program was made possible through the efforts of Mayor James Sheets and the City Council who provided the Recreation Department with an additional $200,000 from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account to expand on the program that started in eight gyms last winter with funds from free cash and the federally-funded Community Development Block Development (CDBG) program.

Welch also noted that the program was expanded without disruption of long-standing youth groups who have conducted programs in school gymnasiums for many years.

"It was important to the goals of this program not to duplicate existing efforts, but to provide new opportunities for increased recreation."

The schedule for After and Evening Programs is as follows:

•Atherton Hough School: Monday, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school students and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school students; Tuesday, 3 to 5 p.m. for elementary, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school.

•Beechwood: Monday, 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. for elementary, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school.

•Bernazzani: Wednesday, 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. for elementary, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school.

•Lincoln-Hancock: Thursday, 2 to 4 p.m. for elementary.

•Merrymount: Wednesday, 2 to 4 p.m. for elementary, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school.

•Parker: Monday and Wednesday, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school. (Elementary schedule to be announced.)

•Point-Webster: Monday, 2 to 5 p.m. for elementary, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school.

•Snug Harbor: Monday, 3 to 5 p.m. for elementary, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school; Tuesday, same hours for middle and high school only.

•Wollaston: Thursday, 3 to 5 p.m. for elementary, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school.

•Sterling: Tuesday, 5 to 7 p.m. for middle school and 7 to 9 p.m. for high school.

Welch stressed that the only reason some of the above schools seem to have more hours is because some of the other schools already have existing programs that also can be utilized.

The Saturday schedule is offered at Atherton Hough, Atlantic, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Point-Webster, Snug Harbor, Squantum, and Wollaston.

Welch said the general Saturday hours are 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. with elementary school students participating from 8:30 to 9:45 a.m., middle school from 9:45 to 11:15 a.m. and high school from 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

"Although some adjustments may be made at each site to accommodate difference in attendance by age groups," he added.

$84,985 Drive Planned To Fight Alcohol Abuse

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A campaign to raise $84,985, or $1 for every Quincy resident, is part of a new initiative headed by Impact Quincy to help deal with the problem of alcohol abuse in the city.

Impact Quincy Executive Director Mitch Finnegan said the Alcohol Action Group—which is made up of representatives from Impact Quincy and a variety of community organizations—will begin the fund-raising campaign in January. The goal of the campaign is to put the group in a position to attract some major funding sources after it raises the $84,495, he noted.

"The idea behind the $84,495 figure is that alcohol abuse is a problem that affects the entire community," said Finnegan.

Finnegan said the group is waiting until January to begin the campaign because it does not want to compete with The Salvation Army and other organizations that raise funds during the Christmas season.

He added that there currently is no formal plan to raise the money but that the group plans to appeal to different people and agencies for cash and in-kind services.

A recent report by the Alcohol Action Group—compiled from statistics obtained from the state Department of Public Health, Quincy Police Department, Quincy District Court and other sources—states that "the Quincy Housing Authority has already committed $4,000 in financial support and additional resources in in-kind services, Impact Quincy has committed $10,000 in combined support to the effort, and the Massachusetts Housing Finance Authority (MHFA) has demonstrated its commitment by meeting this $84,985 goal.

"It is hoped that the [Alcohol Action Group's] Advisory Board will assist in identifying sources of support to reach the goal," the report continues.

The group plans to hold a public hearing to receive testimony and collect data on the subject of alcohol abuse tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the City

Quincy Alcohol Statistics

Statistics compiled in a report by the Alcohol Action Group indicate that the problem of alcohol abuse in Quincy is a widespread one that cuts across age and gender barriers.

Among the findings:

•Deaths of Quincy residents from cirrhosis of the liver, an alcohol abuse-related disease, were higher than the state average for those ages 20-64 in 1990 and 1991.

•The Quincy Police Department estimates that 37 percent of all calls for service are alcohol-related. The report adds, however, that "it should be noted this estimate is made in the absence of a specific monitoring protocol, the presence of which would undoubtedly yield higher numbers."

•The rate of admissions of Quincy residents to state-funded substance abuse treatment is 2,283 per 100,000 population. The statewide rate is 1,435 per 100,000.

•In 1993, 1958 Quincy residents entered publicly-funded substance abuse treatment programs. "This does not include those receiving private treatment, and represents only approximately 20

Public Meeting Dec. 5 On Old Colony Line

The MBTA, at the request of the mayor's office, will hold a community meeting in regard to Old Colony Line construction Tuesday, Dec. 5 at 7 p.m. in second floor conference room at New City Hall.

It will be the first in a series of meetings with citizens regarding the construction schedule and impacts of the Old Colony Commuter Rail Line.

William Gregoli, manager for the Quincy portion of the project, will be present and will receive input from residents and answer their questions.

On Dec. 6 the MBTA's contractor, J.F. White Contracting, Co., is scheduled to begin construction of a 600-foot long retaining wall which will be placed between the existing Red Line tracks and the proposed Old Colony tracks. Citizens whose dwellings lie between 419 and 373 Newport Ave., and between 43 and 90 Old Colony Ave., will be affected by the first phase of construction. Work is scheduled to take place between 9 p.m. and 5 a.m. Monday through Friday and 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday.

Officials said: "Because the MBTA and the city have discussed how to best mitigate construction impacts from the work, the MBTA, instead of pile driving, will auger and place the piles used to support the wall. The method makes every attempt to keep noise to a minimum."

Augering will begin at the south end of the work area and proceed north. The work on this portion of the line is expected to take 15 to 20 days, depending on weather.

When the first work phase is completed, the city has asked the MBTA to convene another meeting of citizens further down the tracks to share information and schedules for the next phase of construction. The mayor's office is hoping the MBTA will continue to conduct such meetings until the Old Colony track and cable is laid and the Quincy Center Commuter Rail station and garage are completed.

Ballots With Photos?

Election ballots with candidates' photos on them may be a thing of the future.

Some voters who went to the polls in Quincy's city election earlier this month think it's a great idea.

That was their reaction when they saw the special ballots used in the Kids Vote program in the same election.

All of the 24 candidates for mayor, city council and school committee had their photos beside their names on the ballots used by students from kindergarten through high school participating in the non-partisan voter education program held in Quincy, the first in Massachusetts.

"They liked the idea," says City Clerk Joseph Shea. "It puts a face with a name. They felt it would help them know the candidate a little better."

Will ballots with photos become a reality some day?

"I don't know," says Shea. "They do that in other countries. But we couldn't do it on our own here in Quincy. It would be up to Secretary of State William Galvin's office. But I'm going to mention it to him. You never know."

The kids liked it, too. Sample comments, overheard by poll workers: "She's pretty" . . . "He's good looking" . . . "He looks like my grandfather" . . . "He looks scary."

Both Shea and Harold Crowley, Kids Vote program coordinator in Quincy, were pleased with the way the program went.

"Better than our fondest expectations," Crowley said. "There are things we can do to improve it, but it went very well."

"No question about it," says Shea. "For a first time event, it was a booming success."

Some 9,400 kids registered to vote and 4,737 or 48 percent cast ballots. Shea feels if it hadn't been for the heavy rain, the kids turnout would have been 50 percent.

He notes that the Kids Vote program was also held for the first time in communities in Connecticut where 10,000 youngsters registered. But, only 25 percent actually voted.

"We did considerably better," he says.

Shea also credits the program with the registration of some 650 new Quincy voters—many of them signing up for the first time because of their children's participation in the program.

"Some of the kids just stayed on their parents until they registered," muses Crowley. "And then they made sure they voted."

Here are some of the kids comments and observations of poll workers:

Youngster to parent: "You don't need to go with me. I know what I'm doing."

Twelve or 13-year-old trying to vote twice. When told she couldn't vote a second time, she smiled and told the volunteer she was just checking to see if they were doing their job.

Kid voter, motioning to an adult volunteer wanting to help, to move away: "My vote is secret."

Kid voter who became indignant when she learned a candidate was unopposed and thus would win automatically: "It just isn't right."

The soaking wet adult who came into a polling place to cast his ballot just five minutes before closing time. He said his kids had been screaming at him all evening insisting he vote. The only way he could get them to leave him alone was to walk up to the voting place in the pouring rain to vote.

Kid Voter proudly arriving at the check-in table: "I brought my Mom to vote."

The kids who knew all the candidates and passed information about them on to their parents.

Kid voting assisting their parents as they voted—even making suggestions as to who they should vote for.

The large number of Asian youngsters who appeared at the polls accompanied by their parents, who unable to vote themselves because they are not American citizens, watched with pride as their children cast their ballots.

The seven or eight-year-old, who informed a poll worker he "stayed awake all night thinking about who I was going to vote for."

The Kids Vote program appears to have put some zing in what has been voter apathy.

RECEIVED A COUPLE of letters from readers about two recent columns that stirred fond memories for them.

Morris (Duke) Goldberg of Locke Rd., Newton, a member of the North Quincy High School class of 1943 responding to the "One More Time" column sent along a few things he would like to do or see one more time:

"Marching down Hancock St. from Veterans Memorial stadium to the steps of NQHS after beating Quincy on Thanksgiving Day.

"Playing basketball in the Sunday School league at the old Y (on Washington St.) and Newt Fitts doing the timing and Dave Lubarsky coaching the championship Beth Israel team (circa 1942) and Crum Crofts running the Sunday School and Church Leagues.

"Seeing Two-Gun Baker on his motorcycle pull up in the field next to our house at 10 Pierce St. to talk to my father over the picket fence.

"Playing at the old NQHS gym where you had to shoot low to stay under the rafters and where John Mullarkey (coach) would rap you across the legs with his lanyard if you didn't hustle.

"Going on trips with Archie Briggs (scoutmaster of Troop 11) to his shack in Eastham and visiting all the points of interest on Cape Cod and then being sent a beautiful album of all the pictures he took during those trips. (What a guy!)

AND Olive Anderson, now living in Pompano Beach, Fla. wrote regarding the column on Lady Bird Johnson's first visit to Quincy in 1967.

Mrs. Anderson recalls she was a waitress at the Neighborhood Club back then and was asked to be Lady Bird's server at the luncheon at the Adams Mansion:

"She was most gracious and put me at ease. I was nervous but not about serving the President's wife but the fact that if I dropped one of the Adams antique china ware my name would sure be 'mud.'

"I was the one who had to pick up the broken glass and dry the rug where Mrs. Homans (Abigail Adams Homans, Brooks Adams niece) had knocked it on the floor by waving her arms around to express some point.

"All in all it was a memorable time in my life that will never be forgotten.

"When Lady Bird arrived back at the White House she sent me a large framed picture of herself in color in appreciation of my efforts. It is something my children, grandchildren and great grandchildren can talk about for many years."

ULCERS IN THE FAMILY

Quit blaming your stressful job or your passion for curry chicken. If you suffer from stomach ulcers, the cause is more likely to be your own family. Evidence is mounting that as many as 90 percent of all stomach ulcers can be attributed to the contagious Helicobacter pylori. It isn't certain how this bacterium is spread, but it appears that the bug is passed orally among family members, as through kisses or contaminated bathroom cups. Once ingested, the pest burrows into the stomach lining, where it works its misery unaffected by the strong digestive juices that wash around it. The result is almost always gastritis (inflammation of the stomach lining), and in some 20 percent of cases, a stomach ulcer.

P.S. Family member of someone with an ulcer are three times more likely to develop ulcers than people without such family history.

Stomach problems are no picnic, but today a great many medications and adjustments to diet can really improve one's comfort and health. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I care about your well-being. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Call 472-2550 for an appointment.

Light Attendance, Mostly Opposition At Tide Mill Hearing

The proposed Tide Mill Plaza near Field Street and Southern Artery met mostly opposition from residents at a joint public hearing of the City Council and Planning Board Monday night.

Five residents spoke against the proposal and another signed in opposition while only one person spoke in favor. There was a light turnout at the hearing that some in attendance attributed to an article in Monday's Patriot Ledger that stated the hearing would take place the following night.

Among the concerns voiced by opponents were traffic and the opinion that the city does not need another shopping plaza. Two members of the Friends of the Southern Tide Mill also said they want to see the seven-acre site turned into a park that will draw tourists to the historic park.

Twiss Realty Co., a development arm of Stop & Shop, presented its plan for the $2.6 million project Monday night. The proposal includes shops, restaurants and a pier for commercial fishing and lobster votes, but no grocery stores.

Officials did not say what retailers are interested in the mall but noted that despite previous rumors, Philadelphia-based auto parts giant Pep Boys will not be part of the waterfront mall.

Atty. Carl Johnson, speaking for the company, also said the shopping center would create 100 union construction jobs and 200 permanent jobs as well as about $130,000 in tax revenue.

Shop & Shop bought the property in 1992 and began moving forward with its building plans last year.

The Planning Board is expected to decide whether to recommend the project to the City Council within the next two weeks. It will then be up to the council to give final approval for a special permit.

If the council does not approve the project by the end of the year, Stop & Shop will have to resubmit its plans after Jan. 1.

Board Adopts New Rules Regarding Handling Of Customers

The Quincy License Board approved new rules and regulations pertaining to the conduct of employees of establishments licensed by the board in the city of Quincy at Tuesday's meeting.

According to Chairman Joseph Shea, policies and procedures will be updated and completed by January.

The following are two of the regulations adopted by the board with about 13 more to follow, Shea said.

•Licensees shall instruct their employees and security personnel that they are not to make bodily contact with a customer unless to protect other customers or themselves from body blows from an unruly patron.

In all other circumstances, employees and security personnel are to call the police to have the customer removed when they are being disruptive and they are unable to convince the customer to leave the premises voluntarily.

•Licensees shall call the police and an ambulance and take all other reasonable steps to assist customers or persons who are injured in or on the licensee's premises or whose injuries have occurred outside the premises but have been brought to the attention of the licensee.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Post Office Ready For Holiday Rush

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy Post Office Supt. Frank Anselmo said he was confident the Quincy Post office would be ready to handle an anticipated 700,000 pieces of Christmas mail daily—an increase of 10 percent over last year.

Nov. 30 - Dec. 6
35 Years Ago

Some 450 people would be hired for the holiday season to supplement the regular staff of 210, with 33 additional trucks, according to Michael Grenier, head of parcel post.

The Quincy Post Office handles mail for Quincy, North Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth. The $1,500 in decorations for the lobby were donated by downtown merchants.

DELLA CHIESA PLEDGES TRANSIT FIGHT

In a special session of the legislature, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa (who was also a state representative) pledged a last ditch fight against Gov. Furcolo and Boston Mayor John Collins' Old Colony bill.

"Three times we have blocked attempts to foist such a rapid transit plan on Quincy and the South Shore and we will continue to fight," he said. South Shore legislators opposed the state purchase of the Old Colony tracks for fear the line would become, under state operation, a deficit-ridden Metropolitan Transit Authority.

NINTH ANNUAL SANTA CLAUS PARADE

The city's ninth annual Santa Claus parade under the direction of Fr. Thomas Tierney of St. John's, had 50 bands and floats. Colonel Walter Fuller was parade marshal and Cong. James Burke and Mayor Della Chiesa were special guests.

An estimated 75,000 people lined the parade route, making it the largest parade in the city's history.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro Reflects On 14 Years Of Service

'I Always Did The Best I Could To Help People'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Q. Let's begin by talking about your work at the Adams Mansion. What do you recall about those days?

A. It was just the most beautiful place in the world to go to work. I enjoyed going to work there, and you just can't imagine people saying, "I like to go to work." But I enjoyed going to work. It was that kind of a place. It was beautiful; I think probably the most beautiful park service and beautiful house in the National Park Service, inside and out. Excellent place. I really enjoyed every minute of it.

Q. And the people?

A. Of course, you see people from all over the world who come to visit, and that's the good part of it. People come there not because they have to, but because they want to. So I really enjoyed every minute of working there.

But unfortunately, it got to a point in my life when I said, "Well, now I have to make a move." I was a councillor then, and I said, "I really need more time to do my council work." So I retired from there.

Q. You're 72 now, and you were 58 when you first ran for office. That's kind of a late age for a first campaign.

A. It's quite old to first get into politics. Today, young people get in it, and that's the best way, except if they had youngsters. See, I didn't have any little kids, so it wasn't a problem. I can't see—and I don't mean to be critical of anybody else—but it's got to be difficult, if you have little kids, to be a politician. Because you're out almost every night of the week, and there's always something to do.

Q. As a lifelong resident of Quincy Point, you had also been involved in other things, as well.

A. Mainly the Ward 2 Civic Association, which is still together. That's very important to me, and hopefully when I'm all through with my council work, I'll spend more time with the association, which I've neglected to some degree while I was a councillor. We did a lot of things to brighten up the Ward 2 area of this city, and I hope to continue doing that.

Q. What was the best part of serving on the council?

A. Well, I like people. I enjoy people, and when I can do things to make people happy, that's the most enjoyable part of being a councillor. It may sound corny, but that's the way I feel. There are times that you can't do something for somebody that you'd love to be able to do—that's when it hurts. But when you get all these little things done, and people having problems with this or problems with that and you can do it, and help them out, that's the rewarding part of it. There's nothing else, as far as I'm concerned. I mean, what other people think, that's up to them.

A lot of people think you do it for money. The money we get would probably end up being about 5¢ an hour, if you figured out the time we have to spend. And that's no baloney. You figure, my phone rings constantly, day or night—it doesn't matter what time it is. While I was sick in bed (after suffering heart attack and stroke last year), the phone was ringing to do this and do that. And I was fortunate that I had people who could help me.

I have a partner, in Betty (his wife), who is a partner in the full sense of the word. I mean, I don't have to worry about anything, because Betty can help me. She did a lot of things for me on the telephone that I couldn't do. Betty was a big help to me.

Q. And the worst part of the job?

A. Well, the worst thing that happened, of course, was the (Fore River) shipyard (being closed in 1986). When General Dynamics did that, that was worst thing that happened. That brought a lot of problems. When the MWRA came in (in 1987), that was terrible. That was really tough to handle, but we managed. Of course, I had nothing to say about it. (Former) Mayor (Francis) McCauley just did it, himself; he wanted to do it, and he did it. And we had to deal with it the best we could.

It was tough to lose the shipyard, and to get a sludge plant (in its place). That was not easy. That was the worst part of my

WARD 2 CITY COUNCILLOR Ted DeCristofaro, first elected in 1981, announced in March that he will not seek re-election to an eighth term. DeCristofaro, 71, plans to keep busy in the future by becoming more involved in other community activities and spending more time with his wife, Betty.

FULL NAME: Theodore Paul DeCristofaro

AGE: 72

ADDRESS: 1000 Southern Artery; previously lived 70 years at 17 Murdock Ave. in Quincy Point
EDUCATION: 1941 graduate of Quincy High School

OCCUPATION: Ward 2 city councillor, first elected in 1981; did not seek re-election to an eighth term in the fall election. DeCristofaro, who previously held several full-time positions, worked 25 years for the National Park Service at the Adams Mansion in Quincy, from which he retired in 1985

FAMILY: married to the former Betty Petzoldt. They have four children: Ted DeCristofaro Jr. of Kingston, Dr. Richard DeCristofaro of Hanover, Ruth McGinness of North Weymouth and Donald DeCristofaro of Pembroke years of being a councillor.

Then, of course, after that, Procter & Gamble went out (last year). That was another kick in the butt that hurts. Because these were places that were important, not only to Ward 2, but to all the South Shore. Those hurt, and to deal with those two situations was tough to do. But we managed.

Q. Wal-Mart was a controversial Ward 2 issue last year as well.

A. That was difficult to work with. It's hard to explain to people—the people who live in those (nearby) condominiums (at The Falls) didn't want Wal-Mart, but they didn't know that the people in back of them who had already lived there didn't want those condominiums to be built, either. So it worked both ways. You try to please everybody, and it's not possible.

Q. What's your greatest accomplishment as a councillor?

A. This is the point I'm trying to make. It's not one thing; it's the fact that everybody who called Ted DeCristofaro got an answer. I got back to them; if they had a problem, I did the best I could to help them out. So there's nothing big, to me, that's the biggest part of it—dealing with people. I think I dealt with the people as well as anybody could possibly do. So it's not a big thing, but it's an important thing. People are important.

Those are the things I consider accomplishments. Nothing monstrous. But people are important. And that's what I was all about.

Q. One of the reasons you decided to step down as Ward 2 councillor was concern for your health. How are you feeling now?

A. I feel very good right now, but I still have to be very, very careful. Stress is the tough thing. Every one of those big issues like Wal-Mart, those make it stressful, and that's what could put me back again. So I have to be very careful.

I've been very fortunate. I don't want to get started on that, but I have been very fortunate. With the prayers that were said for me all over the South Shore (when he was hospitalized last year)—every church that you could name, I think, mentioned me in their prayers—and I think that made a big difference. Besides that, I got about 900 cards, and every one of those cards had a little prayer in it, and I think it all added up. I was very, very lucky.

Q. What will you miss most about being a councillor?

A. I'll miss dealing with the people. There are lots and lots of nice people, believe me. I've even had to deal with people that I know never liked me—because of something that I didn't do for them—but I still deal with them the best that I could. And that's what I'll miss, dealing with the people, because I like people.

Q. When you made your announcement about retiring from the council, you spoke of your love for the city. Someone recently told me, "There are two people who love this city so much they could never leave" (Mayor) Jim Sheets and Ted DeCristofaro." Is that true?

A. Well, it's true as far as I'm concerned. I hope it's true as far as the mayor's concerned, because he has stuck to this city. I think he has a lot of faith in this city, and he's done a lot for it. I don't think he'd want to leave it either. I know I wouldn't want to leave it; I love this city too much to leave it.

Q. What do you love about it?

A. I love living here. I love the people of this city, I love what happens in the city, I love how the city looks, and I'm not going to go on about the government, but I think we have a good city government. I never want to leave this city.

Q. What plans do you and Betty have for the future?

A. We're going to do as much traveling as possible. We've already taken a few trips—we went to Montreal for a weekend, we went to a resort in New York for four days, and that was fun; we went to the music festival they have up in Lenox, we were there overnight, and that was nice. So we're going to take some more trips. Not necessarily big, expensive trips, but we're going to do as much as we can.

Q. You also mentioned earlier that you'll be more involved with the Ward 2 Civic Association. How about the park at Washington Street and Baxter Avenue that was named in your honor last year?

A. I'm going to be working up the corner (at the park). I was down there recently; my wife and I walked down.

Q. You must have been honored when they named that after you.

A. That was really one of the biggest things in my life, because who in the name of God ever envisions anything named after me? Especially a little beautiful area. So that really was a tremendous day for me, and my family. Because I told my family, my kids, "that says 'Theodore,'" but it (also) says 'DeCristofaro'; that means it's the DeCristofaro family. So anybody with that name, this is part of them.

Council On Aging To Discuss 1996 Plans At Meeting Today

The Quincy Council on Aging will meet today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. in the second floor conference room of Quincy City Hall annex.

COA Chairman John

Noonan urges all board members to attend to continue discussion of plans for special events in 1996. One possible event is the Quincy Council hosting a conference on aging and senior advocacy groups in the Quincy-South Shore area.

Such a regional conference would be a follow-up to the 1995 White House Conference on Aging held last May in Washington, D.C. The purpose of the regional conference is to discuss on the local level the many resolutions adopted at the Washington conference and to take appropriate action as to their adoption as part of the national policies on aging for the next decade.

Quincy COA Executive Director Brian Buckley and Chairman John Noonan attended the Washington conference as alternate delegates and media representatives.

At issue is the future of Medicare, Medicaid, long-term care, and national health insurance.

Chiropractic Update

by Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

ARM & SHOULDER PAIN

Arm and shoulder pain can have a number of causes, but the large percentage of cases are caused by misalignment of one or more spinal bones (vertebrae), improper posture, spinal curvatures, occupational stresses, or injury to the spine. Any of these conditions may cause irritation or impingement of the nerves supplying the arms, shoulder, and neck. Arm and shoulder pain does not always mean trouble where the pain is felt.

The degree of pain may vary between slight and intermittent, to excruciating. But do not be fooled by the degree of pain, sometimes a slight pain goes along with a serious condition while intense pain may be a symptom of nothing more than temporary muscle soreness caused by a weekend of unusual activity.

It should be apparent to anyone that arm and shoulder pain may indicate a serious condition. But whether the problem is serious or not, the pain can become quite debilitating. Fortunately, the doctor of chiropractic is eminently qualified to correct arm and shoulder problems. The chiropractors' education and experience have been directed to such problems that involve the spine, nerves, muscles and joints of the human body.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Morrissey, Mariano Want Shipyard Asbestos Removed

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Ronald Mariano have expressed optimism that asbestos finally may be removed from the Fore River shipyard.

The legislators report that House Bill 5572 was reported favorably by the House Committee on State Administration. Testimony of Morrissey, Mariano and other South Shore public officials and citizens convinced the House Committee on State Administration to report the bill favorably, they said.

H.5572 is an act authorizing the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to dispose of property in the shipyard. The money will be used to remove asbestos and other hazardous waste from the Fore River shipyard.

The legislation was sponsored and submitted by Gov. William Weld. H.5572 also has the support of several South Shore legislators.

"This will be the first step to make the Quincy shipyard marketable as a productive commercial property," said Morrissey.

"This property could then be added to the city's tax rolls, and new industry at the site would hopefully further provide economic benefit to the citizens of Quincy and the South Shore," added Mariano.

Asbestos removal is considered crucial to the renovation of the Fore River shipyard. Officials have said the removal of asbestos and other hazardous waste will make the shipyard easier to sell and reopen, providing thousands of jobs to area residents.

"This bill will start its way through the legislative process now that the committee has given it approval," said Morrissey.

Christmas Parade Draws Huge Crowd

QP Congregational, Fire Dept., QCBPA Big Float Winners

Floats by Quincy Point Congregational Church, the Quincy Fire Department and Quincy Center Business and Professional Association were the big winners in the 44th annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Sunday which attracted an estimated 250,000 spectators.

Parade Committee Chairman Michael McFarland said the parade attracted a quarter of a million people.

Children and adults of all ages lined Hancock St. from Quincy Center to North Quincy High School to watch this year's event, which featured more than 74 bands, floats, color guards and specialty units, under sunny but chilly skies.

Following the two-hour parade, an awards ceremony was held at North Quincy High School for the float, band and color guard winners.

Quincy Point Congregational took the grand prize of $1,500 cash and the Fr. Thomas Tierney Trophy.

The fire department received the $1,000 first prize for its float entitled "Clara's Christmas Wish."

The QCBPA won the Mayor's Trophy for Best Quincy Float.

Other cash winners included the North Quincy High School Alliance Against Racism (with the theme "Wishing For a United Community"), second prize, $750; Houghs Neck Community Center and Woodward School, third prize (tie), $375 each; Quincy High School, fourth prize, $250 and Quincy Hospital, fifth prize, $250. Bonkers #19 won the specialty category float trophy and Jack Conway Company won the commercial category trophy for its float entitled "All I Want for Christmas is My Two Front Teeth."

The awards ceremony also featured presentations to the top bands and color guards. Band winners included:

•Division I: Norton High School took first place as well as best drum major, best color guard, high music score and high general effect. Bourne High School, which won best percussion score, took second place. Holbrook High School was third.

•Division II: Immaculate Heart of Mary took first place as well as high general effect and best percussion score. Douglas High School, which won best drum major, took second place. Third place went to Chicopee Comprehensive High School. North Quincy High School won best color guard and high music score.

•Division III: David Prouty High School took first place as well as best drum major, best color guard, best percussion score and high general effect. Abington High School, which won high music score, placed second. No third place award was given.

•Division IV: New Bedford High School made a clean sweep, winning first place, best drum major, best color guard, best percussion score, high music score and high general effect. No second or third place award was given.

Senior color guard winners were Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, first place; Silver Dolphins, second place and Cambridge Police, third place.

Includes $866 Matching Donation From Quincy Partnership President Sun Readers Raise Over $2,500 For Abigail Adams Statue

Quincy Sun readers have raised more than $2,500 for a bronze statue honoring Abigail Adams, including a matching donation of $866 from the president of the Quincy Partnership which is planning the statue.

To date, the fundraising effort has reached $2,517. Of the total amount, $866 was contributed by 26 Sun subscribers between Oct. 5 and Oct. 15. That amount was matched by Edward Keohane, president of the Quincy Partnership and a Sun subscriber, for a total of $1,651 during that 10-day period.

"I'm thrilled to do this," Keohane said as he presented a check for $866 to Maureen Rogers, treasurer of the Quincy Partnership, at the statue's future site near United First Parish Church on Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

Keohane had pledged to match the contributions made by Sun readers during October "dollar-for-dollar."

Another $785 was donated by 40 Sun subscribers after the Quincy Partnership announced plans for the statue earlier this year to account for the total to-date figure.

While most of the recent donations were submitted by Quincy residents, a few contributions were made from former residents living out-of-state and overseas. One came from Okinawa, Japan and another from Exeter-Devon, England.

Maureen Rogers, treasurer for the Quincy Partnership, said the donations from Sun readers "is an extra bonus for the partnership because we didn't expect it."

"We're glad that the people of the City of Quincy and beyond, former Quincyites, are contributing to this very significant statue," Rogers said.

Keohane agreed.

"It's kind of nice that the City of Quincy, which is really known as a city of people, is resurrecting the thought of Abigail Adams and her child and her family. It's far more meaningful because people are contributing to it."

"Every dollar taken in goes directly to the statue fund. Everyone involved, except for the sculptor, is volunteering their time," he added.

Sun readers who contributed a combined $866 are:

Dr. Allan H. Yacubian, Wollaston.

Margaret W. Gladstone, Quincy.

Kathy Casey, Wollaston.

Miriam Luoma, Quincy.

Dorothy Mercier, Quincy.

Robert Jack, Charlotte, North Carolina.

Donna Schmidt, Kadana AFB, Okinawa, Japan.

Robert Day, North Quincy.

There were also two anonymous donations sent to the Partnership.

Two former Quincy residents expressed their appreciation to the partnership for remembering and honoring a woman of Abigail Adams stature in the "City of Presidents" with her own statue. They enclosed a brief note with their contributions.

Ruth O'Connell of Centerville wrote, "I lived in Quincy (Wollaston) for 43 years before and after my marriage. My late husband and I raised our five children to love and appreciate the city and its historical significance."

"Abigail Adams statue is a cause well-worth honoring; her feelings about women were truly before their time."

Polly Dredge of Springfield, Virginia, said, "I'm happy to enclose a small contribution toward the $60,000 needed to complete the Abigail Adams statue. As a former Quincy resident and a current Quincy Sun subscriber, I still have fond memories of my years there, and have always been proud of Quincy's heritage."

"Thank you for a wonderful idea to recognize an important woman in U.S. history."

The "bigger-than-life" bronze statue design depicts Abigail with her young son, John Quincy. Abigail has one hand on John Quincy's shoulder and the other is holding a book.

The partnership said the design is appropriate because it exemplifies Abigail as a "single mother" raising young John Quincy and being a mother was among her greatest attributes. Her husband, John Adams, spent much of his time away from his family serving abroad as a diplomat in and after the Revolutionary War.

"The hand on John Quincy's shoulder shows the power she (Abigail) gave to him," Keohane said, adding Abigail looks "much warmer" with John Quincy at her side.

EDWARD KEOHANE, left, chairman of The Quincy Partnership, presents a $866 donation to Partnership Treasurer Maureen Rogers to benefit the organization's fundraising drive for its Abigail Adams statue. Looking on is Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth. Keohane's gift matches the amount recently contributed by Sun readers toward the statue.

The Partnership said including John Quincy Adams puts the sixth U.S. president much more into the public eye. Keohane said the city does not have an appropriate memorial to him, either.

The statue will most likely be erected on Hancock St. outside the United First Parish Church also known as the Church of Presidents because that was the house of worship for the Adamses. Also, the tombs of Abigail, her husband, second President John Adams; their son, sixth President John Quincy Adams, and his wife, Louisa Catherine, are in the crypt of the church.

The pew in which John Quincy Adams worshipped is still there today.

Partnership officials anticipate approval for the site from the city. The land is owned by the city.

"The site was discussed by the partnership as a favored site. City officials don't have a problem with the site," Keohane said.

The Partnership, which hopes to unveil the statue next fall, has commissioned noted sculptor Lloyd Lillie to create the statue. The statue is believed to be the first in the nation honoring a First Lady.

After a recent benefit dinner at the Adams Mansion, the Partnership reached the half-way point to its $60,000 fundraising goal. The annual John Adams Birthday Dinner raised approximately $8,000 to bring the total fundraising effort to $30,000.

Sun readers can continue to contribute to the effort by sending a check payable to The Quincy Partnership Abigail Adams Statue, to P.O. Box 488, Quincy, MA 02269. A donation coupon also appears in this issue of the Sun.

Wollaston Business Association Holiday Celebration Saturday

$1,000 In Prizes To Be Awarded At Wollaston Festival

Nearly $1,000 in prizes will be awarded during the 10th annual Afternoon in Wollaston holiday celebration on Saturday.

A total of 23 Wollaston Business Association members have included coupons in this week's issue of The Quincy Sun which can be dropped at the appropriate businesses during Saturday's festivities. A drawing for the winner will be held at each store at the end of the event.

Afternoon in Wollaston will feature special offers from Wollaston businesses and, of course, an appearance by Santa Claus himself. What better way to kick off the season?

Event Co-Chairperson Lynne Houghton of Hunneman & Company-Coldwell Banker said participating merchants will begin their special offers around noon.

Children will delight when Santa Claus arrives on the scene by fire truck at 5 p.m. Shortly after his arrival, Santa will pose for pictures with children at S & S Beale Street Diner where free hot chocolate will be served. Those interested in having a picture taken with Santa should bring their own cameras.

Houghton said the area will be decorated with wreaths and banners that will give the shopping district a festive holiday atmosphere.

Free lollypops for the children will be available at S & S Beale Street Diner and balloons will also be handed out to the children by a number of area businesses.

The festivities will end at 6 p.m. when participating businesses from the Wollaston Business Association draw the prizes from the coupons.

The participating merchants and their prizes are: Barry's Deli, 21 Beale St., free lunch for one for a week.

Beale St. Fish Market, 35 Beale St., $15 gift certificate.

Blackwood Pharmacy, 663 Hancock St., $25 gift certificate.

Brigham's Ice Cream, 13 Beale St., free ice cream cake ($15.95 value).

Century 21 Annex, 49 Beale St., special holiday surprise.

Community benefactors, sponsors, volunteers and other supporters of Beechwood Community Life Center in Quincy were honored recently.

"We celebrated our first year 'On the Bay' (at 440 East Squantum St.) with thanksgiving and appreciation of community-wide support," said Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals. "Beechwood's first year at the new site has been filled with planning, development and construction. We have a beautiful new gym floor, new air conditioning, and have upgraded our classrooms."

Beals added that through fund-raising and volunteer efforts, Beechwood has built a new preschool "play tower," completed a custom-designed outdoor playground for infants and toddlers in the center's care called a "hangar." Both playground units have an "aviation" theme, she noted, in keeping with the site's rich aviation history.

The center, in celebrating its first anniversary at its new location and 14th anniversary overall, also recently showed a Project Outreach video that introduced "Stand Up for Quincy" as the center's new song.

Recognized for outstanding leadership contributions to the center were Mayor James Sheets, Ward 2 City Councilor Ted DeCristofaro, Bruce MacKilligan, regional president of Bank of Boston, South Shore and Ed O'Leary.

Sponsors of development honored were Bob Curry, Dan Flynn and Charles Simpson of the Development Committee;

Rev. James Workman and James Bristol of the Harold Brooks Foundation, Hibernia Savings Bank Board Chairman and CEO Mark Osborne and MacKilligan who was recognized both as Bank of Boston president and as a member of the Harold Brooks Foundation.

Propose QSD Park Be Named For Wollaston Assn. Founder

The Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Associations propose that an MDC mini-park planned at the former Kent Carpet Co., property in Quincy Shore Drive be named in memory of the late Anna E. Lucey.

The associations have asked MDC Commissioner David Balfour to name the park at Quincy Shore Drive and Davis St. after Lucey who founded the Wollaston Park Association in 1956.

Lucey spearheaded a successful petition campaign to have the land along Quincy Shore Drive from Black's Creek to Beach St. re-zoned to Residence A.

The re-zoning saved the area's open-space character from commercialism and the threat of Paragon Park-like roller coasters and other amusements.

The City Council voted for the re-zoning which in later years prevented the construction of high-rise apartments which Wollaston residents opposed.

Sen. Michael Morrissey, a member of the Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Associations is assisting in the effort to have the park named for Lucey.

The landscaped mini-park will have benches where residents, joggers and visitors can rest and enjoy the view of Quincy Bay.

Eastern Connection

Grand Opening Held At 100 Penn St. Building

A grand opening was held recently for the new 100 Penn Street Building in South Quincy.

Tenants at the 30,000-square-foot complex include Lumber Liquidators, R. F. and B. Lumber Co., Homans Associates, which offers industrial insulation and HVAC (heating, venting and air conditioning) products; Resource Net International, a paper products and graphics store; North American Security, and Eastern Connection, a courier service which delivers packages from Maine to Virginia.

City Councillor Timothy Cahill, who works for North American Security and Eastern Connection, said Wang Computers will also be leasing more space at the site in the very near future. Although the building is already 100 percent leased, room will be made for Wang by rearranging the spaces of one or more of the existing tenants, he added.

Cahill said Bob Ronayne, the current owner, bought the building last year from the Antonelli family associated with the former Antonelli Iron Works.

Cahill added that the site is perfect for North American Security and Eastern Connection, which moved to the new location from a business-zoned parcel in a residential area at 3 Malden St. in West Quincy because of concerns from neighbors. North American Security provides investigations, security guard staffing, armed delivery and other security needs, but is also franchised to deliver packages under the Eastern Connection name, he explained.

The new location provides the company, which has six vehicles that cover 13 routes south and west of Boston, with better highway access, more parking and other benefits, he said.

"It's better for us," said Cahill, who is in charge of the company's courier division.

Realtor Helps Plant 'Tree Of Life' At City Hall

On April 27, 1983, Weymouth Realtor Maryrose Mirick, a former Quincy resident, received an early Christmas present from her sister—a new kidney and the chance for a new life.

Now, 12 years later, Mirick and the National Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts and Rhode Island are displaying a holiday "Tree of Life" to raise funds to send herself and 50 other local transplant recipients to the third annual U.S. Transplant Games.

"I've been overwhelmed by the support I've received from the community," said Mirick, co-owner of Mirick Real Estate and a Kidney Foundation staff member. "Everyone has contributed to help make the 'Tree of Life' a reality."

Mirick said the "Tree of Life," an artificial Christmas tree, will be placed in Quincy City Hall. For every pewter ornament sold to benefit the Transplant Games, a purple ribbon will be placed on the tree in honor of a person of the buyer's choice.

Proceeds from the sale of the $5 ornaments will be used to send transplant recipients from Massachusetts and Rhode Island to the U.S. Transplant Games, a four-day Olympic-style event to be held next August in Salt Lake City.

"With the cost of air fare and accommodations, it costs about $3,000 to sponsor one transplant athlete to the games," said Mirick, who hopes to compete in the swimming and 5K road race events.

Mirick said Quincy was chosen for the tree's location because it was centrally located in a part of the state into which the National Kidney Foundation was expanding its outreach. In addition, Mirick has strong ties to the area: a Quincy native, her father, the late John Sullivan, was a longtime member of the Quincy School Committee.

LOCAL REALTOR Maryrose Mirick, formerly of Quincy, displays the pewter ornaments being sold through the National Kidney Foundation. Proceeds from the sale of the ornaments will help sponsor 50 local transplant recipients' participation in the U.S. Transplant Games.

"Having grown up in Quincy, I felt very comfortable calling people and asking for their support," she said. "And the response was more than I could have ever imagined."

In addition to receiving permission from Mayor James Sheets to erect the Tree of Life in the lobby of City Hall, the project was aided by several local businesses which provided free or discounted services in creating both the ornaments and the tree, which Mirick said was scheduled to go up this week.

The National Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts and Rhode Island is a non-profit educational and research organization dedicated to the eradication of kidney disease. According to Julie Clinton, director of patient services and public relations, the Transplant Games are just one of the foundation's services, which include an organ donation program and educational seminars for transplant recipients.

Ornaments for the "Tree of Life" project may be purchased in the City Hall lobby Thursdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. throughout the holiday season or by calling 1-800-542-4001.

million. As was the case last year, the city has opted to tax commercial, industrial and personal property at 169 percent of the levy which is less than the maximum of 175 percent required under state law.
Commercial property accounts for about 22 percent of the total value of Quincy real estate.
Homeowners will pay about 63 percent of the levy, despite the fact that residential property accounts for about 78 percent of the total value of real estate in the city. The residential factor in the levy is 80.3561.

Property taxes are the largest single source of revenue for the city's budget, which was $135.8 million this year. Local receipts, including sewer and water bills, excise taxes and other fees amount to about $33.6 million, while state aid amounts to about $34 million.

Weld Guest Speaker At Chamber Breakfast Today

Gov. William Weld will be guest speaker at the 7:44 Breakfast of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce today (Thursday) at 7:44 a.m. at Lantana in Randolph.

had mistakenly billed more than 120 Quincy residents.

The mayor said Chiccino, 52, who served Quincy Savings Bank from 1974 until it was replaced by Citizens Bank earlier this year as a consumer loan officer, assistant treasurer, assistant vice president and vice president, is more than qualified for the personnel job.

"We're pleased we had someone like Jim Chiccino who could just step right in and fill the position," said Sheets.

The mayor added that Chiccino has been working with Yaeger in recent days in order to become acquainted with the position.
Chiccino said he is thrilled with the new opportunity.

"I've very, very pleased with the fact that I've received the position," he said. "I've lived and worked in Quincy for 23 years, and it was my desire to stay here. I look forward to continue working with the public under the Sheets administration."

The personnel director's position pays an annual salary of $54,500.

Santos, Sheffer Provide Heroics

Quincy's 9-7 Win One For The Books

By KERRY BYRNE

Add another chapter to the history of the Quincy-North Quincy football rivalry.

On the first page put the name Tim Santos, whose field goal with 13 seconds left gave Quincy High School a 9-7 win on Thanksgiving Day. Add the name Mike Sheffer, whose big plays set up both Presidents scores.

Don't forget to mention North Quincy's Paul Picciano, who lay stunned after the game, having left it all on the field with an inspired defensive effort, only to see his club fall short.

Add the names of the seniors from both teams who put on a tremendous display of high school football.

"This was just great football," said Quincy coach Peter Chella, who closed out his first campaign as head coach with the dramatic win. "We were up against it, but we were able to overcome with good defense and some breaks."

It was the type of game people have come to expect on Thanksgiving Day when the Quincy Presidents (4-6) face the North Quincy Red Raiders (3-7). Of the last 13 meetings, only two have been decided by more than one touchdown and conversion, with each one seemingly more exciting than the last.

What we have never seen, not in the last 13 games, not in the 63 games that have been played between the two football teams, is a game decided by a last-second field goal. Until this year.

Leading 7-6 in the final minutes, the Red Raiders had the Presidents on the ropes. A 10-minute Quincy drive had just stalled with no points to show for it. North Quincy took over on its own 12. Aided by two Quincy penalties the Raiders were able to move out of dangerous territory.

by yet another penalty against the Presidents defense. North Quincy pounded out one more first down to move the ball to midfield as the two-minute mark approached. But a couple of plays later the ball came loose and junior defensive tackle Don McCarthy, who played perhaps his finest game of the season, pounced on the pigskin at midfield.

With 2:05 left the Presidents took over at the 50. Running back Kevin Connolly (23 carries, 127 yards) was stopped for a loss of 1. On the next play quarterback Mark Glynn was sacked by Brian Walsh for a loss of 11. On third down a Glynn pass fell incomplete.

Facing fourth and 22 with 54 seconds to play the Presidents were desperate. They had completed just one pass all morning, a 12-yarder to tight end Jon Ryan in the first quarter. But Glynn dropped back and threw a short pass to Sheffer. The speedy senior grabbed the ball and raced all alone down the right sideline for a 57-yard gain that put the ball on the 5. In one instant the tide had turned. It was the longest play of the game and may have been Quincy's longest pass play of the season.

Connolly rushed for 1, forcing Glynn to down the ball to stop the clock. Enter Santos and the field goal unit. With 13 seconds left the junior made good on a 20-yard kick that gave his club the wild 9-7 victory. It was the first field goal Santos, normally a blocking back in Quincy's fullhouse backfield, had ever attempted.

"I wasn't even thinking. I just blocked out everything," said Santos. "I concentrated on keeping my head down and following through. Jay (Little) made a good snap and Mark (Glynn) made a good hold. I just happy

KEVIN CONNOLLY CRASHES through the middle of the North Quincy defense. Quincy's junior running back was the leading offensive force in the game with 127 yards on 23 carries. Chris Ritchie grabs him from behind as Steve Rose (No. 25) is taken out at the knees.

NORTH QUINCY RUNNING back Brian Walsh finds a gap in the Quincy defense as Shaun Faherty moves in to make the tackle.

QUINCY BALLCARRIER Bill Dunn gets set to collide with North Quincy defensive back Steve Rose.

AT HALFTIME QUINCY fans sat on their hands with their club trailing, 7-0....

...WHILE THEIR NORTH Quincy counterparts whooped it up with the tomahawk chop.

PRESIDENTS QUARTERBACK MARK Glynn looks downfield for an open receiver. Glynn did not have his best outing on Thanksgiving Day but made good when it counted with a 57-yard completion to Mike Sheffer that set up the Tim Santos' game-winning field goal.

TWO SPEEDSTERS GET set to clash. Quincy's Mike Sheffer tries to put on move on North Quincy's Sean Johnson during a punt return. Sheffer had two long returns during the game, one of which put the Presidents in position to score their first touchdown.

this happened for the seniors."

Despondent North Quincy coach Ken McPhee blamed himself for allowing the Presidents to get into field goal position. "I blew it," he said. "We weren't in the right defense (on the long pass play to Sheffer). I should have had them in something else. I'm telling you, it was my fault not the kids' fault."

North Quincy took a 7-0 lead in the second quarter when Brian Walsh followed left-side linemen Eric Malames and Steve Stentiford from 1 yard and Jim Finn kicked the extra point. The score was made possible by an interception by Mike Ferguson which put the ball on the Quincy 15.

The Red Raiders defense, led by Tim Zani-boni, Chris Ritchie, Steve Rose and Picciano, played rock-solid throughout the contest. Picciano had one sack, one fumble recovery and was in the Presidents backfield for most of the game. He also recovered a fumble by his own team.

It took a dazzling 48-yard punt return by Sheffer in the third quarter to put the Presidents in position to score. His return, which was made possible by the blocking of Bill Dunn who took out two players with one well-timed shot, put the ball on the North Quincy 12.

Two plays later Connolly crashed in from the 1 as Jay Fennelly and Jake Drohan cleared the path. The extra point try was botched, setting up the late-game Quincy heroics.

If there was one key to the game, it was the play of the Presidents defense which held the Red Raiders to 124 yards and just 34 in the second half. Linemen Scott MacPherson, Pete Kolson, Dan Nichol, Steve Wiltshire, Little and McCarthy bottled up the front line as they held Walsh to his lowest average of the season with 71 yards on 22 carries.

"I thought the lines on both sides of the ball played well," said Chella. "But credit has to go to our defense, they won it for us."

Linebackers Dunn, Ryan and Mike Russo played tough football. Dunn and Ryan made numerous big hits while Russo made one of the best defensive plays of the day when he blitzed and dumped quarterback J.R. Rendle for a 16-yard loss which knocked the Red Raiders out of Presidents territory.

Kolson nailed Rendle for an 8-yard loss.

Quincy defensive backs Connolly, Sheffer, Ed McGee and Shaun Faherty played standout football, as did their North counterparts Rose, Rendle, Ferguson, Matt Kietly, Paul Greeley and Tim Semchenko.

Both quarterbacks were held to just two completions.

Charlie Plaskasovitis, Joe McCarthy, Tom Coughlin, Norm Connell, Sean Hughes and Chris Koch played hard-nosed defense for North Quincy.

Red Raiders running back Sean Johnson picked up 40 yards on three dazzling runs in the first half. His third carry late in the second quarter went for 15 yards and diked out not only the Quincy defense but most of the several thousand in attendance. On third and 13, Rendle dropped back as if to pass, only to get swarmed under by Quincy's Nichol and Russo. As the quarterback fell to the ground he somehow managed to get the ball into Johnson's hands.

Johnson swivel-hipped his way downfield for 15 yards, putting the ball on the Quincy 30 and giving his team a first down. However, time in the half expired before the Red Raiders could make good on the threat.

Quincy offensive linemen Drohan, Nichol, Greg Fernald, Kolson, Little and Fennelly paved the way for the 203 yards of offense their club racked up before penalties.

NORTH QUINCY'S Sean Johnson motors down field for one of his long pickups on Thanksgiving Day. The senior was one of the Red Raiders most dangerous players throughout the season.

Santos Joins Short List Of Field Goal Kickers

When Tim Santos split the uprights with a 20-yard field goal to give Quincy at 9-7 Thanksgiving Day win over North Quincy, he became the first young man in the 63-year history of the rivalry to decide a game in such fashion.

He also joined a very short list of players who have even kicked a field goal in the Quincy-North Quincy football game.

Bill Maver was the first to do it with a 29-yard boot for Quincy during a 16-6 win in 1970.

Kim Derbes did it in 1973 with a 27-yard kick, but his Quincy team lost, 20-10.

North Quincy's Ed McLaney kicked two field goals in 1976 in a 24-0 romp by the Red Raiders. His tries were good from 26 and 42 yards.

It is believed a North Quincy player kicked a field goal in the mid-to-late 1980s, though as of press time we were unable to find his name or the exact year.

Paul Hunt and Veterans Services Director Hank Bradley collected over $650 from the fans to help finance the memorial.

The memorial will be dedicated to the 38 Quincy residents who gave their lives in that war.

Anyone else who would like to contribute should contact the Veterans Services Department at 376-1192.

Pee Wee House*Paquette Scores Five In 5-4 Neponset Win

Jon Paquette single-handedly conquered Colonial Federal with five goals to lead his Neponset Valley Survey club to a 5-4 win in the Pee Wee House League.

Paquette was set up twice by both Matt Miller and Joe Cox. With one assist each were Rob Rice, Duncan Devlin, Anthony Tufo and Adam Caturus.

Matt Moriarty, Dan Jones, Matt Glynn and Peter Turowski netted the Colonial goals. Assists were made by John Walsh, Billy Barrus, John Ryan, Jones and Moriarty.

Joe Thorley's four goals were the difference for M. Sugarman Co. in its 9-6 win over Keohane's.

Martin McGrath also had a big outing with two goals and three assists. Keith Walsh, Jon Tallent and Joe Callahan lit the lamp once each. Assists were handed out by Kris Farr, Billy Eastwick, Colin Maxey, Thorley and Tallent.

Brian Keefe notched a hat trick to pace Keohane's. Tom Maloney netted two while Steve Romanowski scored one goal. Setting up goals were Mike Doyle, Mark Tetreault, Chris Anderson, Mike Maguire, Kevin Egan and Romanowski.

Glenn Liberatore had a superb day with four goals as Mike Morrissey Club had its way in a 6-1 win over Skinner's Winners.

Jim Mateu and Matt Petit also tallied in the winning effort. Steve Ricciardi set up two goals while single assists were made by Alex Booker, Matt Conso and Paul Garvey.

Pat Laher scored for Skinner's off a pass from Tom Costa.

In last week's Pee Wee House League games:

Brett Keyes scored four times to lead Morrissey Club to a 7-4 win over Keohane's.

Mark Tetreault scored all four Keohane's goals.

Pat Lahar had a hat trick and Kevin Patten chalked up two goals and two assists to power Skinner's Winners in a 9-5 win over Colonial Federal.

Jon Paquette posted a hat trick to help Neponset Valley Survey skate to a 4-4 stalemate with Sugarman Co.

Pee Wee House League standings:

Morrissey Club, 4-0-1; Sugarman Co., 3-1-1; Skinner's, 3-2; Neponset Valley, 2-2-1; Keohane's, 1-4; Colonial Federal, 0-4-1.

JUST GETTING WARMED UP

It used to be that car owners were advised to let their engines idle until they were thoroughly warmed up before driving away in the morning. Now, it is known that an engine under load will warm faster than one which is cold idling. As a result, the lubrication system operated more efficiently, the engine-management computer steps down from a rich mixture sooner (decreasing unburned fuel), and peak combustion is attained more rapidly. Thus, long idling periods are now discouraged in favor of starting the engine and allowing it to idle only as long as it takes for the oil-pressure warning light to go out. This should be no longer than about 30 seconds, after which time the car should be driven moderately for the first few miles.

HINT: Full-throttle acceleration should not be attempted until the engine is warmed up completely.

Squirt House*Walsh Hat Trick Eclipses Quincy Sun

Tommy Walsh posted a hat trick for Green Environmental as it eclipsed Quincy Sun, 8-3, in Squirt House League play.

Gene Nazzaro and Steve Dunn each added two goals and an assist in the winning effort. Andrew McAllister scored one goal.

Lighting the lamp for Quincy Sun were Kyle Carmody, Ryan Feldhoff and Danny Coughlin. All three had assists as well.

Ryan Conley had two goals and an assist to lead Burgin Platner to a 6-3 win over Doran & Horigan.

Billy Barter also had three points with one goal and two assists. Lauren Struzik, Lisa Turowski and Jeff Butts netted goals. Assisting were Brendan Conley, Mike Griffith, Keith Flaherty and Dan Donovan.

Chris Gates, Daniel Duval and Mike Donelin tallied for Doran. Andy Pangraze made two assists while Jeff Bossart and Mike Nord each set up one goal.

Five players scored for Granite Auto Electric in its 6-2 win over Johnson Motor Parts.

Kristen DiMattio lit the lamp with both Johnson goals.

In last week's Squirt House League games:

Pat Maxey scored twice as Doran & Horigan edged Quincy Sun, 4-3.

Steve Dunn had a huge game with five goals and one assist to lead Green Environmental to a 10-4 win over Granite Auto Electric.

Ryan Conley posted a hat trick as his Burgin Platner squad skated past Johnson Motor, 7-3.

Squirt House League standings:

Green, 7-1; Burgin, 6-1-1; Granite Auto, 5-2-1; Quincy Sun, 2-6; Johnson Motor, 2-6; Doran, 1-7.

Mite House*McDonagh, Doherty Blank Samoset

Stephen McDonagh was rock-solid between the pipes as Doherty & White blanked Samoset Pharmacy, 3-0, in Mite House hockey action.

Bret Martinson took care of the offense with a pair of goals. Mike MacPherson scored once and had an assist. Also assisting were Steve Anderson and Pat Mullen.

Mike Calley and Andrew Donovan lit the lamp two times each as Barry's Deli cruised past Paul Harold Club, 6-2.

Levi Silverman and Mike Powers also netted tallies for the winners. Setting up goals were Powers, Calley, Brian Carney, Mike Gillespie, Ryan O'Keefe, Kevin Nee and John Clark.

Joe Canavan and Mike Lohnes scored for Harold Club. Assists were handed out by Rob DeAngelis, Dom McDougall and Noah Gimlewicz.

Chris Tufo posted the week's only hat trick but it wasn't enough as his Purdy's Ice Cream club skated to a 3-3 tie with Lydon Russell.

Tufo was aided by the stickwork of John Kurpeski, Mike Little, Mike Arrufat, Mike Marshall and David Arrufat.

Bob Newcomb netted two to lead Lydon. Jeff Bailey also tallied. Mike Faherty was the top playmaker with two assists. Single assists were dished out by Mike Gibbons, Dan Giannotti and Ted Finnegan.

In last week's Mite House League games:

Bret Martinson and Joe Morris each scored twice to lead Samoset Pharmacy to a 6-2 win over Barry's Deli.

Mike Faherty scored both Lydon Russell goals while Rob Gagliardi and Tyler Paggiari scored for Doherty & White as the two clubs battled to a 2-2 tie.

A hat trick by Glenn Gibbons sparked Paul Harold Club to a 7-2 win over Purdy's Ice Cream.

Quincy Youth Soccer

The Quincy Youth Soccer League fall season came to a conclusion two weeks ago with the final rounds of the playoffs and championships games.

Under 10 Girls:

Coach Bob Croke's Telephone Workers Co-op team captured the division title with a hard-fought 3-2 win over Peter O'Connell.

Erin Croke sparked the win with two goals while Ashley Ridge added one goal and an assist. Also assisting for the champions were Mary Gardiner and Kaitlin Terwilliger. Keeper Christine Brewster played well, as did Kristen Gallagher, Nora DiBona, Jennifer Madden, Marissa Powers, Erin Malone and Christina Cattaneo.

Courtney Riley and Katie Kisieliu netted the O'Connell goals. Kaitlyn Faherty assisted on both tallies. With superb efforts were keeper Amanda Saylor, Beth Goodrich, Allison Coughlin, Genevieve Hommez, Danielle Thomas, Jennifer Gordon, Brianna McKim and Stacey Doyle.

Under 10 Boys:

Coach Bob Perch's Northland Seafood club edged Harry's Pizza, 2-1, in the division championship game.

Jason Perch scored both Northland goals. He was set up by Darren Burke once and scored on a breakthrough. Burke played an excellent game. Also looking sharp were Pat O'Donnell, Teddy Falwell and Justin Petkins.

Richard Stone netted the Harry's tally. He was aided by Jon O'Connor. Steve Kelly and Matt MacNeil played well for coach Malcolm MacNeil's club.

Under 12 Girls:

Coach Mary MacTaggart's Quincy Rotary club ended its undefeated campaign with a 2-1 win over Bank of Boston.

Katie Markhard and Kellee Conley scored the winning goals. Keeper Kathleen McCarthy, Jennifer Higgins and Beth Houghton played superb games.

Beth Bloomer scored for Bank of Boston after being set up by Erica Donadio and Jessica Courtney.

Bank of Boston dominated throughout the game but was unable to net the necessary goals. Playing well for coach Jim Timmins' team were Katie Timmins, Jessica Jacques, Kahli Dearani and Meghan McLean.

Under 12 Boys:

Brian O'Hanley netted an equalizing goal with just two minutes to play and teammates Matt Conso and Billy Gardner scored in an overtime shootout as Quincy Sun topped Mayor Sheets, 3-1, in a dramatic title contest.

James LaFleur scored the Mayor Sheets goals with a well-placed penalty kick.

Quincy Sun was coached by Bill McGinnis. Bill Bent led the Mayor Sheets crew.

Under 14 Girls:

Coach Bill Eaton's DeWare Funeral Home squad posted a 2-1 win over Della Barba, CPA in the division championship game.

Tama Baker and Janelle Hersey netted the title-winning goals for DeWare. Setting up the scores were Kelly Raymer and Maureen Holleran.

Kristin Coughlin, Kerry Eaton and Sarah Houghton played well for the champs.

Jill Nicholson netted the lone goal for coach Jack Lee's Della Barba team. Great games were played by Julie Keane, Katie Kelly and Kristin Lee.

Under 14 Boys:

Steve Rochon ended the season with what was, for him, a ho-hum three-goal game to lead his club to a 5-3 title-clinching win over Labor Guild.

Charlie Acton added the other two goals for the winners. Dave Rochon and Paul Cremin each made two assists while Anthony Capano handed out one assist. Playing well for coach Arch Acton's champs were Viet Phan, Matt Petit and keeper Paul Skarzenski.

Chris Roach booted two goals for Labor Guild and P.J. Leth added one. Roach and Mike Campanale each had an assist. Ryan Graeber, Joey Flynn and Paul Burke played well for coach Mike Campanale's squad.

Long-Time Quincy Coach, Mentor Finnegan Honored By Coaches Hall Of Fame

Martin C. Finnegan, former Quincy Public Schools Athletic Director and long-time teacher and coach, was inducted into the Massachusetts State Basketball Coaches Association (MSBCA) Hall of Fame recently in a ceremony held at Boston University.

Finnegan began his career in 1950 as a student-teacher, choosing to come to Quincy so that he would have the opportunity to work under legendary Quincy High School basketball coach Monroe MacLean.

He taught at Central Junior High for a year then moved to Quincy High School. His four decades teaching physical education were spent primarily at QHS with several stints at elementary schools throughout the city. He also served several times as an acting assistant principal and dean of students at QHS.

Finnegan served as MacLean's assistant boys basketball coach from 1950 to 1959. He succeeded MacLean as head coach in 1960 and remained in that position until 1973.

During his years at QHS, Finnegan also served as either a head coach or an assistant in football, baseball, tennis, golf and boxing. After a 10-year hiatus he briefly returned to coaching in 1982-83 to lead the girls basketball team.

In 1963 the MSBCA was formed in a Quincy High School classroom with Finnegan one of the founding members. The first coach inducted into its Hall of Fame was MacLean.

Finnegan was nominated and presented for induction by Joe Amoroso, who served as Finnegan's assistant coach in 1972-73 and succeeded him had head coach the following year.

In presenting him for induction, Amoroso spoke of Finnegan's close ties to MacLean. "Monroe MacLean had no sons of his own, but if anyone was as close to him as a son, it was Marty Finnegan," he said.

Amoroso spoke of some of the great teams coached by Finnegan, including the legendary "Firehouse Five" in 1963.

"But more important than the victories on the court were the many lessons that Marty taught both his players and colleagues," said Amoroso. "Marty always saw coaching as the highest form of teaching, and some of his lessons are still with me today, such as 'there is no I in Team,' and you never stay on the floor any longer after a win than you do after a loss."

Amoroso said that Finnegan's attitude towards coaching was epitomized by the establishment of the Michael C. Finnegan Memorial Award, presented each year to the Quincy High School basketball player who has demonstrated outstanding achievement off the basketball court. The award was established 34 years ago in memory of Finnegan's first son, who died of cancer in Finnegan's second year as head coach. The prestigious honor is the oldest continuously presented award in the Quincy High School athletic program.

Amoroso also spoke of Finnegan's service to athletes throughout the state as one of the founders of the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association's Chemical Health Program. Finnegan traveled throughout the state for many years, speaking to thousands of high school athletes and their parents and coaches about substance abuse issues.

In accepting the award, Finnegan thanked Amoroso and the other members of the MSBCA board, including John Franceschini, Quincy Public Schools Director of Health and Physical Education and QHS basketball coach.

Finnegan spoke of his good fortune in having a mentor such as MacLean, the coaches he has had the pleasure of working with, and of the role the family plays in a coach's life.

"While we as coaches ask for sacrifice from ourselves and our athletes, no one sacrifices more to make a coach a success than his or her family," said Finnegan.

Finnegan introduced his family and friends in attendance, including wife Norma; daughters Christine Koenig and Patricia Finnegan; son Mitch, a former QHS football and basketball coach; and extended family members John Allen, Leo Wesner and Barbara and Bill Egan.

KERRY BYRNE

I've been to most of the largest football stadiums in America.

Among them, the University of Michigan's stadium seats 103,000 and usually draws a couple thousand more than that. Neyland Stadium at the University of Tennessee holds about 98,000. Same for Beaver Stadium at Penn State University.

I've yet to make it to the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, which holds over 100,000. Maybe this year.

At Michigan, Tennessee and Penn State, not to mention at most other stadiums in football-mad parts of the country, people come together in campers days, sometimes even a week, before the game. Beaver Stadium is surrounded by massive fields which double as parking lots as far as the eye can see. The area needed to park vehicles for 98,000 people is eye-popping.

Neyland Stadium is on the banks of the Tennessee River. The Tennessee becomes clogged on game day as people travel by boat from across the state for each and every home game. The streets of Knoxville overflow with people.

At Michigan, people pay outlandish fees for the privilege of parking on frat house lawns on game day. The highway off ramps are clogged for hours as hordes of motorists file into the town of Ann Arbor.

Even at Foxboro Stadium, which holds but 61,000 for Patriots games, the traffic is incredible. Route 1 is a quagmire for hours as people shuffle into town.

So anyway, all this is running through my head before the big annual Quincy Christmas Parade, which, in a very big stretch, is like a football game because of all the marching bands. Sunday morning I woke up, got out of bed, dragged a comb across my head. Made my way downtown to Hancock St. I was a Sunday driver, yeah. About 11 o'clock in the morning and I make it across town in seconds flat, with not a soul to be seen. They're nowhere, man. So I say to myself, "Gee Kerry, take your time, don't worry, but in just an hour and a half, 250,000 people will crowd the Hancock St. sidewalks to see the annual Christmas Parade."

I continued to converse with myself. "A quarter of a million people along a three-mile parade course. That's over 83,000 people for each mile - 41,500 for each side of the street. There are 5,280 feet in a mile. So for each foot of sidewalk, people will be packed eight-deep along the entire three-mile stretch. Wow!"

I fell into a dream. I was gripped by the magnitude. I got misty-eyed and dizzy, the way you get when you look at the stars on a clear, cold night and ponder your puny, insignificant space among the cosmos: "The amazing things is how they all get here so gosh darn-it fast."

"Let's see," I said to me. "Assuming all 85,000 residents of Quincy walk to the parade, and they bring 5,000 of their closest friends; hmmm...that leaves another 160,000 unaccounted for. Say 40,000 take the subway or bus." I then pictured the crushing mobs along the Green Line when the Red Sox play at Fenway Park, which holds 33,000. I'm sure the MBTA was advised to put on loads of extra trains to handle the swarms that would be filing into Quincy on this beautiful day for a parade.

"That accounts for all but 120,000. They would drive their cars, beep, beep...beep, beep, yeah. Four people per car, 30,000 cars. All trying to park in a city of 16 square miles." That works out to 1,850 cars per square mile. That's four or five cars for every garage space, side street spot and undefended tract of front lawn in the city.

Yet they manage to pull it off. Over 250,000 people line the streets of Quincy on parade day without any of the logistical problems that plague other large events around the country. No overflowing heaps of garbage, no massive traffic jams, no riots. Just 250,000 people in the heart of Quincy enjoying what was is otherwise a rather fine parade and outstanding family event.

Very strange.

Now to actual sports news:

The Assumption College hockey team, the Ice Dogs, boasts two young Quincy men on its 1995-96 roster, forwards Matt McGowan and sophomore Lee Hughes.

McGowan is a 5-foot-11-inch, 175-pound junior from Boston College High School, by way of Adams Shore. He is majoring in communications.

Hughes, a 6-foot-1-inch, 170-pound sophomore, played his high school hockey for coach Tom Benson at North Quincy. He is majoring in pre-med studies.

Last season the Ice Dogs finished with a record of 12-11-3. Their 8-4-2 record in the ECAC Central was good enough for second place.

Hibernia Bank Donates B.C. Hoop Package To Library Project

The Hibernia Savings Bank has donated a Boston College basketball package as a silent auction item benefiting the Thomas Crane Public Library's fund raising project.

The package includes a luxury box for eight at the Conte Forum Saturday, Dec. 23 when B.C. plays Hartford. It also includes complimentary food and beverage service and parking. The value of this package is approximately $500.

The silent auction is being conducted in the lobby of the main library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center. Bidding starts at $100 and bids must be increased in $25 increments. A bidder has only to note the date and bid on the bid sheet and then fill in a bid slip with name and phone number. The slips will be secured in the library office until bids close Dec. 9 at 5 p.m. The winning bidder will be notified by phone.

The silent auction is a prelude to the exciting goods and services auction being planned for April 11, 1996 by Sandra and Frank McCauley who chair a committee of volunteers. Jane and Vincent Sullivan have donated their services as auctioneers. A silent auction for two tickets to the Boston Symphony will be held in January.

Fund Raising Committee Chairman James Pansullo said the committee is grateful to Hibernia Savings Bank for donating the Boston College basketball package and to the anonymous donor of the symphony tickets.

Youth Hockey

Squirt B's Stay Unbeaten With 10-2 Win

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B team, sponsored by Continental Cablevision, squashed Belmont, 10-2, in a recent game.

The Squirt B's remain unbeaten in the young season. Nick Manning held the fort in goal. Justin Swierk led the team with four goals while Rob Mooney netted three.

Quincy wasted no time against Belmont with five first-period goals. Josh Giordani set up Swierk for the first goal.

Swierk and Ryan Tobin posted unassisted tallies to give Quincy a 3-0 cushion.

Giordani added the next goal as he took a pass on the fly from Brendan Craig and slammed it past the goal keeper. Mooney closed the period with a goal assisted by Dan Sullivan.

Belmont stormed back with a pair of goals in the second. Swierk answered the challenge less than a minute later with his third tally of the contest.

Mooney was the next to take it to the hole with a goal assisted by Ken Young and Sullivan. Swierk closed his awesome day with a short flip to the shelf following a pass from Craig.

Quincy took a 9-1 lead when Mooney completed his hat trick at the end of the second period. He was assisted by Sullivan and Richard Stone.

Ryan McFarland scored the only Quincy goal in the third period following a pass from Stone.

Defensive strongmen Matt Alleva and Big Bad Bob Donovan had no trouble holding the blue line. Also playing big-time hockey were ironmen Jake O'Donnell and Sean Moriarty, and power forwards Pat Clifford and Liam Powers.

Mite A's Down Belmont; Fall To Charlestown

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A team, sponsored by Northland Seafood, got caught upstream without a paddle in an 11-7 loss to Charlestown.

The Quincy Mites never let up, but the fast-moving, hard-hitting Townies had the upper fin in this one.

Kevin (The Shark) Richardson had a day to remember as he lit the beacon five times with four of the goals unassisted.

Mark Lewis lit the lighthouse once thanks to an assist from The Shark and Andy Patten.

Patten brought the crowd to its feet late in the game with an beautiful unassisted tally.

The Northland forwards kept the pressure on the Charlestown goalie only to be hooked each time. Jonathon (Jaws) O'Connor attempted to take a bite out of the goalie, only to be turned away by a quick glove hand.

Super Dave Oronte came close but his hard shot ricocheted off the crossbar and the sound could be heard throughout the arena. Also getting good scoring chances were Danny (The Heater) Reggiannini, Mike McKeon, Alex Shaffer and Paul Lennon.

The defense was led by Brianna Nolan, Myles (Barracuda) Clancy and Matt (Flash) Haskins.

Also playing good hockey were Billy Jones, Brendan Linnane and goalie Pat Maloney, who pulled a number of pucks out of the air with his quick glove.

In earlier games, the Mite A's dunked Belmont,

7-2, and skated to a 4-4 tie with Brookline.

Leading the tidal wave of goals against Belmont were Patten and O'Connor with two each. Paul Lennon, Richardson and Oronte netted single goals. Lewis handed out two assists and Reggiannini made one.

Scoring for Quincy in the tie were Linnane, O'Connor, Shaffer and Richardson. Assisting were McKeon (2), Richardson, Lewis, Linnane and Patten.

Offense Sparks Squirt A's In Three Victories

The Quincy Squirt A team, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, posted wins over Belmont and Canton in recent weeks.

They also edged Milton in a non-league encounter.

Quincy wasted no time in the 8-2 win over Belmont.

Billy McKeon drew first blood with the first of his three goals. Single tallies were recorded by Miah Hasson, Matt Germain, Brian O'Hanley, Matt Grazioso and Ryan Donahue.

McKeon and Germain set up two goals each, with single assists going to Michael McGonagle, Timmy Duggan and Matt Lavery.

Solid performances were turned in by Andy Ross, Bryan Cooper and Stephen Kelley on defense, and by Jamie Chiochio and Billy Ryan at forward.

Eleven of Quincy's 15 players figured in the scoring in a 10-1 win over Canton.

McKeon again led the scoring with four goals and one assist. O'Hanley recorded five points with one goal and four assists. Single goals were tallied by Germain, Lavery, John Chevalier, Chiochio and Duggan.

Donahue and Grazioso posted two assists each. Single assists were handed out by Ross, Cooper, Chiochio, Lavery, Ryan and Chevalier.

Hasson and McGonagle had strong games.

Goalie Bruce Maggio played well in both victories.

In other games, the Squirt A's lost to South Boston, 3-1, tied Charlestown, 8-8, and beat the Randolph Mohawks in an exhibition match, 4-2.

Gregory, Sorrento Lead Pee Wee A Team

The Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee A team, sponsored by Quincy Elks, handed Belmont its first loss, 9-2, behind the outstanding goaltending of Matt Gregory.

Charlie Sorrento led the Quincy offense with two goals and three assists. Danny Kennedy added two goals and two assists.

Both Ryan Doyle and Mark Gibbons had a goal and assist.

Jordan Virtue, Scott

MacDonald and David Germain had one goal each.

Frankie Curreri played a great defensive game while adding six assists. Defenseman Dominic Papile set up two goals while fellow blueliners Paul Campbell and Shaun Richardson added one assist each. Mark Giese and Steven Goff also played well.

Jim Cashins helped keep the pressure in the Belmont zone.

Brookline attack. Steve Maggio, Paul Fasoli and Nick Puopolo had outstanding efforts.

Clifford The Spark In Mite B Win

Brendan Clifford's goal and assist sparked the Killer Bees as they stung Brookline, 3-1.

Justin Thorley and Matt

Jones added one goal each for the Quincy Mite B team.

Assists were credited to

Paul Noonan, Paul (Dirk) Graham and Jarrod Swierk.

Domestic Violence- 'The Hidden Crime'

As many as four million women in this country suffer some kind of violence at the hands of their husbands or boyfriends each year.

Very few will tell anyone—a friend, relative, a neighbor or the police.

Victims of domestic violence come from all walks of life, all cultures, all income groups, all ages, all religions. They share feelings of helplessness, isolation, guilt, fear and shame.

DON'T IGNORE THE PROBLEM

- Talk to someone. Part of the abusers power comes from secrecy. Victims are often ashamed to let anyone about intimate family problems. Go to a friend or neighbor, or call a domestic violence hotline to talk to a counselor.

- Plan ahead and know what you will do if you are attacked again. If you decide to leave, choose a place to go, set aside some money. Put important papers together—marriage license, birth certificates, checkbooks—in a place where you can get them quickly.

- Learn to think independently. Try to plan for the future and set goals for yourself.

IF YOU ARE HURT, WHAT CAN YOU DO

There are no easy answers, but there are things you can do to protect yourself.

- Call the police. Assault, even by family members, is a crime. The police have information about shelters and other agencies that help victims of domestic violence.

- Leave, or have someone come and stay with you. Go to a battered woman's shelter—call a crisis hotline in your community or a health center to locate a shelter. If you believe that you, and your children, are in danger, leave immediately.

- Get medical attention from your doctor or hospital emergency room. Ask the staff to photograph your injuries and keep detailed records in case you decide to take legal action.

- Contact your family court about a protection order (209A).

THE HIGH COST OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

- Men and women who follow their parents' example and use violence to solve conflicts are teaching the same destructive behaviors to their children.

- Jobs can be lost or careers stalled because of injuries, arrests or harassment.
- Violence may even result in death.

SOME SIGNS OF ABUSE

Does the person you love...

- "Track" all your time?
- Consistently accuse you of being unfaithful?
- Discourage your relationships with family and friends?
- Prevent you from working or attending school?
- Criticize you for little things?
- Anger easily when drinking or using other drugs?
- Control all finances and force you to account in detail for what you spend?
- Humiliate you in front of others?
- Destroy personal property or sentimental items?
- Hit, punch, slap, kick, or bit you or the children?
- Use or threaten to use a weapon against you?
- Threaten to hurt you or the children?
- Force you to have sex against your will?

IF YOU FIND YOURSELF SAYING YES TO ANY OF THESE—IT'S TIME TO GET HELP.

Vincent DeSantis In Persian Gulf

Navy Seaman Vincent J. DeSantis, son of Vincent J. DeSantis of 106 Sachem St., Wollaston, is currently halfway through a six-month overseas deployment to the Persian Gulf aboard the dock landing ship USS Comstock as part of the USS New Orleans Amphibious Ready Group (ARG).

DeSantis is one of 917 Sailors and Marines aboard the ship who departed San Diego in June along with the other amphibious ship and the 11th Marine Expeditionary Unit.

So far in the deployment, DeSantis and shipmates have participated in several training exercises with forces from Jordan. The exercises increased operational readiness between the countries, and served as a deterrent to Iraqi aggression.

A 1989 graduate of South Shore Vocational Technical High School in Hanover, he joined the Navy in July 1994.

A Thought For The Week

GRANDMOTHER'S ARE SPECIAL.

... A grandmother is a lady who has no children of her own, so she likes other people's children. A grandfather is a man grandmother. Grandmothers don't have to do anything except to be there. They are old, so they shouldn't play hard or run. It is enough if they drive us to the market where the pretend horse is and have lots of dinner ready for us. They take us for walks and show us things like pretty leaves and caterpillars. They never say "hurry up." Sometimes they are fat, but not too fat to tie the kid's shoes. They wear glasses and they can take their teeth and gums off. It is better they don't typewrite or play cards with anyone but us. They don't have to be smart; only answer questions like why dogs hate cats or why God isn't married. They don't baby-talk like visitors do because it is hard to understand. When they read to us they don't skip words or mind if it is the same story again. Everybody should try to give a grandmother, especially if they don't have television, because grandmas are the only grown-ups who have got time... And this, of course, goes for grandpas, too...

We wanted to share this with you. It was given to us by a friend who clipped it from a club bulletin... Enjoy it? We did!

Quincy Group To Cheer Hospitalized Veterans Sunday

Quincy will be well represented among those bringing holiday cheer to veterans at the West Roxbury VA Hospital Sunday.

Local groups are participating in the Disabled American Veterans Day at the hospital starting at 1:15 p.m.

The Quincy High School ROTC members will bring shaving materials and other gifts collected by them.

The Quincy Salvation Army Corps. band and Glad Tidings church singers will entertain. Captain Scott Kelly, commanding officer, will also deliver gifts from the Quincy Salvation Army unit.

The DAV state department will deliver gifts and refreshments and the Quincy Emergency Management Agency will bring candy to the patients.

Joseph Dennehy of Quincy, VA Volunteers representative, organized the Quincy participation in the Hospital Day.

USPS Contest Rewards Early Holiday Mailers

U.S. Postal Service's District Manager/Postmaster, Paul W. Lanzi announces a mail early contest for the holidays, the busiest time of the year.

Postal customers who reside in ZIP Code areas beginning with 021 or 022 can qualify to win one of 20 giant stockings stuffed with valuable merchandise.

"Our goal is to help our customers handle the holidays," said Lanzi. "Encouraging early greetings will help customers cross one more thing to do off their list and maybe even make their gift list shorter."

To enter, postal customers simply mail 10 or more of their holiday greetings before Dec. 9 along with an entry blank. Entry blanks are being delivered to everyone in the greater Boston metro area this week.

To be eligible you must deposit your mail in a post office that serves ZIP code areas beginning with 021 or 022, Lanzi stated.

Council Wants MWRA To Pay $2M Annually For Use Of Shipyard

The City Council passed a resolution Monday night in favor of the city moving into a new agreement with the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority that the MWRA begin paying the city more than $2 million a year for its use of the Fore River shipyard.

Council President Michael Cheney, who introduced the petition, said the resolution will be drafted into the form of a home-rule petition to be considered by the council at a future date. A petition also would require the signature of Mayor James Sheets and approval by the state Legislature.

The shipyard, located in Quincy Point, was purchased by the MWRA in 1986. Cheney noted that as a state agency, the authority is not subject to local taxes and thus is not taxes for its use of the shipyard.

Cheney said if the city were collecting taxes on the site--as it did before the MWRA purchased the shipyard--Quincy would be collecting $2,092,038.20 a year in tax money. He added that he and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro want the MWRA to begin making an annual minimum payment of that amount in lieu of taxes annually.

Cheney said the $15,810,007.44 the city has lost in the last nine years cannot be regained, but any money Quincy gets in the future could be used to help offset MWRA water and sewer rates.

He added that his petition is not the first of its kind. The City of Boston found itself in a similar situation with the Massachusetts Port Authority in the past, Cheney said, and Massport now pays Boston $11.5 millions annually in lieu of taxes.

Same As Union Employee Increase 11% Non-Union City Pay Hikes Asked By Sheets

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets has proposed an 11 percent pay raise over the next three years for department heads and other non-union city employees, the same offered to Quincy's union workers.

"I think it's fair," the mayor said this week of the proposal. "That's what we offered the union members. We're in good financial shape, and when you have good people (working for the city), you want to keep good people."

Sheets said it will cost the city roughly $2.3 million in Fiscal Year 1996 to give raises to all non-union and union employees. It will cost a little more than that over the next two fiscal years as the raises increase, he said.

Sheets stressed, however, that this year's municipal budget will not be affected because the money is already available in the city's reserve for appropriation account.

The proposed non-union raises, like those offered to the unions, must be approved by the City Council. If the council does so, seven non-union employees will make more money than the mayor's current annual salary of $62,500 by FY98: the police and fire chiefs, whose salaries will peak at $81,120; city auditor, public works commissioner and data processing director, $70,742; transportation director, $69,628; and planning director, $65,172.

A complete list of the proposed raises can be found in a legal notice on Page 25 of this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

Currently, the two chiefs, auditor, DPW commissioner and data processing director already make more than the mayor, while the transportation director makes the same salary as Sheets and the planning director $58,500. Salaries for the school superintendent and other employees of the Quincy Public Schools are not included in the city budget.

Sheets said the non-union raises, like the union raises, generally break down to 3 percent the first year and 4 percent in each of the next two. The two chiefs, he noted, will get a little more so that they will earn more than deputies and captains in their departments, who are all union members.

Non-union employees were offered an average 8 percent increase last year in order to "bring them up to par" with union workers, Sheets said. Previously, they went five years without a raise, he noted.

Now, Sheets said, the city can simply offer the same raises to all Quincy employees, union and non-union alike.

Average Residential Bill To Increase $30 Council Approves FY96 Property Tax Plan

The City Council Monday night passed Mayor James Sheets' proposed property tax plan for Fiscal Year 1996.

As a result, Quincy homeowners will pay an average $30 higher tax bill despite a four-cent decrease in the tax rate. Officials said the $30 is the result of an increase in city property values.

The FY96 property tax rates have been set at $30.58 (per $1,000) for CIPP (commercial, industrial and personal property) and $14.54 for residential property. Last year, the rates were $30.58 and $14.58 respectively.

At a public hearing Monday night, one person spoke in favor of the new tax rates and one in opposition.

Susan Freeman of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce said that by keeping the CIPP rate at the same level, the city will be able to draw more businesses into Quincy.

"Quincy is a great place for business," she said.

Former mayoral candidate Roger Lyons disagreed, however, saying businesses still pay too much in taxes.

A third person, Joseph J. Collins of 108 Warren Ave., questioned the recent assessment of the value of his home but said nothing about the new tax rates.

Board of Assessors Chairman Marion Fantucchio first presented the new figures to the council last week at a special meeting.

City officials have called the increase in property values that resulted in the residential increase "a good sign" for the city. Fantucchio said last week it is impossible to come up with a figure representing the impact of the increase on the "average" Quincy business because businesses in the city are so diverse.

Sheets made good on his promise earlier this year to hold the line on property taxes for the second consecutive year. However, this year all of the city's residential and commercial property was revaluated as required by

Stop & Stop Plans Parking Garage Purchase

Stop & Shop is interested in purchasing the parking garage that its employees currently use located behind the company's corporate offices on Hancock St. in Quincy Center, according to Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor said this week the company has about 34 years left on a 50-year lease through which it pays the city $60,000 annually for the use of the garage. However, since it costs the city approximately $90,000 a year for the operation and maintenance of the garage, there is an annual loss of $30,000 in taxpayer money, he added.

Sheets the company has expressed interest in purchasing the garage, and the city is willing to sell to avoid future financial loss.

"We're selling it to save money," he said. "The sale is designed to save money for the taxpayers."

The City Council approved the future sale of the site Monday night. Sheets said a provision of that action is that the city cannot accept less than $1 million for the garage.

The mayor also noted that the city will have to go through its regular bid process before Stop & Shop or anyone else can purchase the land.

"Anyone can bid on it," he said.

Sheets estimated that the garage includes about 600 spaces, most of which are used by Stop & Shop employees.

He added that because it was originally constructed through federal Urban Development Action Grant dollars, any money the city receives for selling the garage must be used for similar UDAG projects.

Pneumonia Vaccination Clinic Dec. 14 At Health Center

The Quincy Health Department will conduct a pneumonia vaccination clinic on Thursday, Dec. 14 from 2 to 3 p.m. in the John F. Kennedy Health Center auditorium, 1120 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The clinic is for adults 65 years of age and older and certain adults at increased risk. The Quincy Health Department has received a limited supply of pneumonia vaccine from the state Department of Public Health.

The pneumonia vaccine should only be administered once in a lifetime for healthy people.

Certain individuals will need to be re-vaccinated again if their original vaccination was administered more than six years ago.

People should receive the pneumonia vaccine if:

- They are over 65 years and have not previously been vaccinated.

- They have been previously vaccinated more than six years ago and have chronic heart or lung problems, including asthma, diabetes, liver problems, cerebral spinal fluid leak.

- Their immune system is weakened due to removal of a spleen, kidney failure, cancer, organ transplants that weaken the immune system and HIV infection or AIDS, if they have not received the vaccine in the last six years.

People should not be vaccinated if they have been previously vaccinated with no underlying medical conditions.

Consult a physician prior to attending the clinic. Those with concerns or questions regarding the vaccine can call the city's public health nurse at 376-1284 prior to coming to the clinic.

Additional clinics will be scheduled depending on the amount of vaccine available.

Volunteers to help are also needed.

Mariano Offering Senior Info Booklet

State Rep. Ronald Mariano has announced that his office is now offering a free booklet that provides useful and important information for Massachusetts' senior citizens.

The booklet, entitled "Helping Low Income Elders Apply for SSI", is a user-friendly "how to" booklet that provides practical information on who qualifies for SSI and how to apply.

"Unfortunately, many seniors do not realize that they may qualify for additional benefits under the Supplemental Security income program created in 1974. SSI aims to ensure a minimum standard of living for low income people who are either 65 and older, blind or disabled," said Mariano.

Copies of the booklet created by the Gerontology Institute at the University of Massachusetts at Boston, are available by writing to Mariano at the State House, Room 33, Boston MA 02133 or calling him at 722-2060.

Mariano Has Vice-Chairman Votes

Ron Mariano will be elected vice chairman when the new School Committee is seated in January.

Mariano, according to reliable sources, already has four firm votes to assure him of the vice chairmanship.

In addition to himself, he has Linda Stice, Sean Barry and JoAnn Bragg in his camp giving him the four votes that are needed.

MARIANO

McCAULEY

Former Mayor Frank McCauley, who is returning to public life and to the School Committee, was interested in the post and reportedly could count on three votes: his own, Mayor James Sheets and newcomer Christine Cedrone.

Bragg reportedly was the swing vote that gave the vice chairmanship to Mariano.

Mariano is mid-way through his second four-year term on the board and will be starting his seventh year in January.

If McCauley had put it together he would have had the distinction of having served as both chairman and vice chairman of the School Committee. As mayor he was chairman of the board by virtue of his office as is Sheets right now.

THE INAUGURAL CEREMONIES for Mayor Sheets, the City Council and School Committee will be held Tuesday, Jan. 2 (10 a.m.) in the new auditorium at Quincy High School.

Traditionally the ceremonies are the first Monday in January but the first Monday this January falls on New Year's Day, a holiday. So they will be shifted to Tuesday.

Incidentally, this will mark the second time that Sheets, who will begin his fourth term, will take his oath on Tuesday instead of the first Monday in January.

His first term inaugural in 1990 also was on Tuesday with New Year's Day falling on a Monday that year too.

He's the only mayor in Quincy's history to be elected to two terms unopposed and he might very well be the only one to twice take his oath on a Tuesday instead of a Monday.

TONY SICILIANO, Deputy Director of Quincy's Emergency Management Association, had a close call when he fell inside the entrance to new City Hall during last week's snow.

He slipped on the wet lobby marble floor and fell over backwards. Fortunately, he instinctively braced himself with his elbows which kept him from hitting his head on the floor.

He was taken to Quincy Hospital by ambulance where x-rays showed nothing broken but he suffered a shaking up and bruises. He was required to wear a neck brace which he hopes to shed this week.

Siciliano, who has helped many others in times of emergency, now knows first hand how it feels to be helped. He commended the ambulance crew and Quincy Fire Department for their first-class aid.

CITY CLERK Joseph Shea wasn't as lucky. He fractured four bones in his right foot when he fell six feet from a step ladder while preparing to string Christmas lights outside his home, landing on a cement stoop. He's hobbling around City Hall and at times, spinning around in a wheel chair.

IF YOU THINK bankers are a bit on the stuffy side, you don't know Bruce MacKiligan, South Shore regional president of the Bank of Boston.

You should hear him sing and play the piano.

He did both at a recent celebration at the Beechwood on the Bay Center where he is active as a member of the Board of Directors.

Bruce pitched in at the piano and did a few solo spots (right on key) with a chorus of youngsters and staff members in the debut performance of Quincy's new song "Stand Up For Quincy." The song, which salutes all sections of the city, was written by Sharron Beals, Beechwood's executive director. Nice lyrics, nice tune.

The song will be performed again Dec. 11 at 6 p.m. at City Hall with Bruce and the Beechwood chorus.

FACTS ABOUT ADULT FEVER

Few things get a parent's attention as fast as a child's fever. When adults run elevated temperatures themselves, though, they usually think it is no big deal.

The truth is, fevers CAN be a big deal to adults if you don't know what to watch for. A doctor should be called if an adult has a temperature of 103 degrees or higher, if a fever of 101 degrees hangs on for more than three days, or even if a slight fever (below 101) lingers on for a few weeks. Certain symptoms that occur along with a fever may also signal more serious problems. These warning signs include severe head or body aches, stiff neck, coughing up sputum or blood, excessive sleepiness, blood in stools, difficulty breathing, rash, or vomiting. P.S. Consult a doctor immediately if a fever is accompanied by an infected wound.

While many of us have great concerns for our children, we are not always as careful when it comes to ourselves. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I specialize in the prevention and treatment of heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Broad Meadows Observes 'Great American Smokeout'

Broad Meadows Middle School, with support from Impact Quincy, recently observed "The Great American Smokeout."

Students were taught about the dangers of smoking during their health classes and carried the information over for the nation-wide event.

There was also a student-produced newscast video announcing a contest on Nov. 16 the day of the Smokeout.

The children were asked to enter it and create a project (song, role-play, rap, poem, dance, cheer, poster, etc.) with the anti-smoking theme.

During lunch that day, prizes were given including t-shirts, baseball hats, water bottles, gift certificates from Mc-Donalds, and Friendly's) to follow-up with two large incision victims speakers.

Thanks Participants In NQHS Child Growth Program

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As this is a time for reflection and acknowledging all that we have been given, it seems most fitting to offer our sincere thanks to the Quincy elementary schools and day care centers where our North Quincy High School students have had a unique opportunity to become involved in the lives of young children.

Since 1972, the North Quincy High School Child Growth & Development Program has grown and changed to meet the needs of our students and community.

What has not changed is the invaluable commitment from cooperating teachers, staff and administration. These people have mentored and supported our students during their internships.

As a result, students have come to realize that each person can make a difference in our community.

So to Beechwood Community Life Center, Eastern Nazarene College, Campus Kinderhaus, Kid's Connection, Montclair Elementary School, Parker Elementary School, South Shore Day Care and Toddler Tech, a heartfelt "thank you."

Chretien And The Flag Amendment

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The long campaign trail has ended, the results tabulated, and as the dust settles, I find myself reaching to the shelf for my copy of Profiles in Courage to reassure myself that public service is as Lord Tweedsmuir observed "still the greatest and most honorable adventure."

What brought me particular dismay in this year's election in Quincy, as the elevation, in the waning days, of the flag burning amendment issue and Councillor Larry Chretien's position on that issue. That he was skewered on such an incendiary issue, in such a divisive manner smacked of McCarthyism, mudslinging, and blacklisting, political behaviors that obviously only the naive among us, believed were of a bygone era.

Councillor's Chretien position on the issue, whether one agrees with it or not, was voiced with personal courage and apparently at great political risk. The resistance to jumping on the political bandwagon based on personal principle, is exactly the type of courage that JFK wrote about. Beyond this, his stance on this one issue had no correlation to the contributions he made to the community. Those who know him, know of his sense of commitment, advocacy and initiative for those who he represented.

The American flag is truly a wonderful and potent symbol. It flies outside my home on a daily basis for my children to see, as it did outside my parents home when I was young, as a symbol of pride in our country and its founding principles. I would be no less proud where it not there. In this 50th anniversary year of the end of WW II, I have taken my children to many commemorations so that they will know and be a part of a Grateful Nation Remembers. They have walked through the Liberty Ship and crawled through a B-17 and B-24. They have read of the Battle of the Bulge and Iwo Jima. They know of their one grandfather who as a soldier became a prisoner of war, and their other grandfather who fought to liberate him. These are the lessons that are important and the ones they'll remember.

In my opinion, those who disagree with the proposal of a flag burning amendment should not be demonized. The issue should not be used as a political tool and it must not be allowed to divide us. For if it does we will not be able to worry about the disintegration of the fabric of the flag, but of the very fabric of our nation and the two are not one in the same.

Am I Missing The Point?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
In reading your Nov. 30, 1995 edition, I'm curious. Am I missing the point or what?

(The story) "Average $30 tax bill hike seen for One could say "only 30 dollars more" and these politicians do; I say "$30 more atop the already outrageous $2,019!"

POLICE ARREST BOYS PLAYING "CHICKEN"

Following disturbing reports of young boys playing "chicken" on the railroad tracks, Quincy police began surveillance and arrests this week.

The boys, students at either Central Junior High School or Quincy High School, were testing their speed and agility against oncoming Budd cars on the railroad overpass at Newport Ave. and Furnace Brook Parkway. They would sit on the track of oncoming cars, waiting for the first boy to jump; he would be the "chicken."

Police Chief William Ferrazzi said the first two boys picked up were first taken to the police station and then to their school and finally home.

It was reported that parents of the youngsters broke down and cried when told what their children were doing.

QUINCY HUNGARIAN AID FUND SET UP

A city-wide, non-sectarian drive for funds for the Hungarian Refugee Relief was launched by three religious leaders: Fr. Edward Tagney of St. John's; Rev. Douglas Morse of the First Parish Church and Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue.

The Quincy committee was formed in response to an appeal by Governor Herter for assistance to the victims of the Communist oppression that crushed that country's recent revolt to overthrow Soviet control.

QUINCY-ISMS

City Historian William Edwards, in a letter to City Manager Edward Leis, asked for the return of the city's historic cedar tree to its place of honor in the Council Chamber. It was removed to the Adams Academy years ago to make room for a Coca-Cola machine. The tree was used as a guide by Captain Wollaston to reach these shores in 1625, and is a feature on the city seal. . .

Grand Knight Paul Crowley presided at the business meeting of the North Quincy K of C. . . A hobby show at the Willard School was held by the fifth grade class of Theresa Harcourt. . . Councillor David McIntosh filed an order for the widening of Revere Rd. It was part of an overall plan to connect the S.E. Expressway with the Southern Artery and provide Quincy Center with a cross-town street. . . Arthur Perette, president of the City Employees Association, announced the annual Christmas Party would be at the Fore River Clubhouse. . . Glenn Craig of Hillside Ave. was elected vice president of the freshmen class at Tufts. . . Councillor Thomas Burgin led the City Council in prayer for the recovery of former Mayor Charles Ross who was gravely ill at Quincy City Hospital. . . Mike Carpenter of the Quincy Point Panthers and John Helfrich of the Houghs Neck Manets were recipients of the Monroe MacLean Sportsmanship Award. Presenting the awards were Youth Football League President Pete Zoia and Charlie Murphy, coach of the North Quincy Apaches. . . William Martin, president of the Granite Trust Company, announced that the 120-year-old bank would merge with the First National Bank of Boston. The recommendation for merger would be sent to the shareholders of both banks for approval. . . A 15 MPH school zone was proposed by the city manager after receiving a petition signed by 1000 persons. . . Fr. Thomas Tierney, parish chairman, announced the Christmas parade route would begin at Quincy High School to Coddington St., left onto Washington, right onto Elm St. to Hancock and end at Greenleaf St. . . Fourteen-year-old Arnold Soldo of CJHS won the Quincy Junior Chamber of Commerce's "Voice of Democracy" contest. . . An order for $1.8 million to build the proposed Atlantic Junior High School was referred to committee by the City Council. . . Bowie's Pet Shop was located on Maple St. . . Councillor Austin urged employment of women traffic officers. . . Gerald Petrucci of Newport Ave. was chosen for jury duty at Norfolk Superior Court.

Three Irish Musicians At Historical Society Sunday

A trio of leading Irish traditional musicians—Jimmy Noonan, Vincent Costelloe and award-winning fiddler Seamus Connolly—will perform at the Quincy Historical Society's "Holidays and the Homeland" Family Holiday Festival Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

The event will feature stories, music and a visit from Santa for the children. In the spirit of the society's current "Homeland" exhibit on Ireland, the program recaptures the atmosphere of holidays past and highlights immigrant traditions of Christmas, New Year's and Hannukkah.

Also featured will be dancers from Quincy's Forbes School of Irish Step, singer Frances Andronico and organist Gay Sullivan. Storytelling will focus on the traditions and experiences of immigrant groups that have helped shape the American holiday season.

The day will conclude with Santa's visit. The Adams Academy will be decorated in full holiday splendor and the "Homeland" exhibit will be on display. Refreshments will be served.

Admission is free. All are welcome. For more information, call 773-1144.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

John Noonan Receives Senior Citizen Advocacy Award

South Shore Elder Services Inc. recently presented John Noonan with its top award for his senior citizen advocacy in the Quincy and South Shore region.

The award was presented at the annual meeting of the South Shore Elder Services held at Lantana's, Randolph and attended by Quincy, state and town officials representing councils on aging, Executive Office of Elder Affairs, state Health Department Division of Elder Health, and health profession agencies.

The award was given to Noonan "in recognition of outstanding contribution to South Shore Elders through community service and leadership."

In 1987 the Board of Directors of South Shore Elder Services established the Edythe B. Donkin Memorial Award to recognize members of the community who have made significant contribution to elder services and the promotion of elder issues on the South Shore.

Mrs. Donkin was one of the founders of SSES and served as its president from 1984 to 1987.

SSES was founded in 1977 as a private non-profit corporation to serve older citizens in the 11 South Shore communities of Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

The 75-year-old Noonan was appointed to the Quincy Council on Aging in 1972 by Mayor Walter Hannon and reappointed subsequently by Mayors Arthur Tobin, Joseph LaRaia, Frank McCauley and present Mayor James Sheets. He is currently serving his 13th year as chairman of the COA, having been reelected consecutively by the 15-member Council Board.

Noonan served five years on the SSES Board of Directors and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans. He was chairman and member of the Board of Directors of the South Shore Coordinated Transportation Inc., an organization that provided van transportation for seniors in the South Shore area.

He is involved in other local organizations and efforts, including the Quincy Center Concourse Citizens Advisory Committee, Quincy Community Television, Beechwood By the Bay community center, and the recently-established Quincy Senior Citizen Shuttle Service.

Quincy 2000 Director To Address Concourse Advisory Committee

The Quincy Center Concourse Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) will meet Thursday, Dec. 7 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall annex.

Guest speaker will be Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, who will update the CAC members as to the progress being made on the overall planning and business development in downtown Quincy as related to the proposed crosstown connector linking Burgin Parkway and Hancock St.

CAC is in its final stages of gathering information from city, business, engineering officials and the public regarding the proposed concourse.

Another meeting is scheduled later in December at which time the CAC is expected to conclude its mission and finalize its recommendations to Mayor James Sheets.

The CAC will also consider the appropriate design of the connector to insure that it will be pedestrian friendly with necessary safeguards.

The Quincy City Council recently appropriated $400,000 for a design plan that will include an environmental impact study, an update study of traffic control recommendations, and a preliminary rendering of the concourse options. The design plans can be accepted or rejected by the City Council.

CAC meetings are open to the public.

Students Discuss Communication And Limits

Rebecca Gordon Wins Quincy Lions Club Speech Competition

Rebecca Gordon, a 16-year-old junior at North Quincy High School, was the top winner in an oratorical competition recently sponsored by the Quincy Lions Club.

Rebecca, who finished first among 11 competing juniors and seniors from North Quincy and Quincy High schools, received a cash award of $150 courtesy of the Quincy Lions. She will advance to the regional speech competition and possibly qualify for the state competition.

Students were instructed to write and present speeches on the topic, "Communication--Should There Be Limits?" The speeches explored the issues of censorship and free speech.

Two other students received awards for their speeches. Lisa Curtis and Christine Neamtu, both Quincy High School seniors received $75 and $50 for their second and third place finishes respectively.

The speech competition was judged by Robert Bosworth, editor of The Quincy Sun; William Flynn, an editor at The Patriot Ledger; Terry Francher, general manager of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; and John Graham, president of Graham Communications.

Frank Moffett, an English teacher at North Quincy High School, coordinated the competition.

The student speakers were selected from students who wrote essays on the theme in English classes. The selected orators included six from Quincy High and five from North Quincy High.

Rebecca's speech focused on communication in art, music, movies and television, and concluded there should be no censorship.

The text of her speech is as follows:

Censorship has the noble ideal of protecting the young people. The purpose, it must be conceded, is a highly admirable one. For what indeed is more precious than the youth? Advocates of censorship feel that by banning books, censoring television, and keeping certain material off the Internet the innocence of children can be preserved in this not-so-innocent world.

It may be, that there is some material so lacking in social value that it should not be seen. It may be, that children cannot choose for themselves that is appropriate to read, watch, or download. If may be, that an overexposure of material without value will make children forget those lessons which are valuable.

But our government was not created to decide these things, as censors believe; rather, it gave its people the freedom to decide for themselves what they and their children would be exposed to and would believe. Without this choice we can have no belief except the beliefs society holds. A world where no belief, except the majority's belief, is correct would repulse any moral human being. It is a world devoid of the need for individual thought. This is the world of censorship. To censor communications is to put a strangle hold on the mind and to sentence to death that which is reasonable and moral in every man. It is a crime against any man who ever held an original thought.

The founding fathers of America knew the importance of freedom of expression. They knew that a democracy is founded on the principles of debate. "The people of the United States of America were born out of wrenching debate. Our principal legacy is the guarantee of continued debate." (Barbara Rubenstein) To censor debate is to destroy a part of ourselves and our country. It is the destruction of our personal freedoms. These are the freedoms our founding fathers knew we were endowed with; the freedoms that are expressed in our Bill of Rights.

It is one of the greatest tragedies of our time that Americans have become so willing to sign away all the rights given to them in the Bill of Rights. During the 80s and the Reagan Administration's War on Drugs, Americans signed away their Fourth Amendment rights against unwarranted search and seizure in an attempt to "protect the children." Now in this decade the public has become willing to sign away the First Amendment for the same reason--the protection of the children. Ask yourself what protection will the children be afforded after their protectors sign away all their rights?

All freedoms expressed in the First Amendment and all freedoms in American society flow from the right to freedom of speech. Without freedom of speech how can our country maintain freedom of the press? Or freedom of religion? Or freedom of assembly? The answer being--it cannot! You cannot knock the supports out from under a building and still expect it to stand. You cannot suppress a man's will and still expect him to live as a free man. Freedom of speech allows the members of the press, the leaders of the church, and the politicians of our country, as well as the rest of the citizens, to express their truths and their ideas openly.

The writers of the Constitution knew we need not be afraid of others, or their expression of those ideas because man is a creature of reason and may be trusted to follow the path of reason. What we should be terrified of is having ideas forced upon us. Censorship is a forcing of acceptable ideas by making unavailable all ideas that area not acceptable.

The acceptable and the "norm" are forced in subtle and not so subtle ways.

Subtly, unacceptable material is stigmatized. This is done by placing warning labels on music, by giving "R" or "NC-17" ratings to movies, or by moving extreme materials to specially labeled "adult" sections of stores.

Those are the more modern forms of censorship, because they are less disagreeable to the public's sensibilities than the classic forms. The classic forms will, however, live forever. For example in France within the last decade the people have witnessed the burning of books. To burn a book is an atrocity against humanity. As John Milton said, "Who kills a man kills a reasonable creature; but he who destroys a book kills reason itself, the image of God." A book is a demonstration of that part of man which can think and express himself, an embodiment of all that is virtuous in humankind. To destroy this is to be the antithesis of virtue. It is to be the destroyer of achievements and the crusher of greatness.

Banning of books is another classic form of censorship that lives on. Today in our own town copies of a list of books proposed to be banned are sitting on the desks of our school administrators. Is it the administration's duty to decide what is appropriate for a child to read? How can they be given this responsibility? How can they decide for the whole of the community which things are appropriate? The administrators of the schools cannot be expected to make morality judgements for the whole community. Those kind of morality judgements can be made only be an individual. Are parents so irresponsible today that they need groups of their peers to be their children's keepers? This may be so. If the parents cannot recognize the immorality of banning books, it probably is so. Parents should not allow their children to be deprived of ideas but should give their children a morality that enables them to evaluate the ideas they encounter.

It is true that there are some things most people wish they and their children did not have to hear. Things which seem to be the equivalent of yelling, "Fire!", in a crowded theater. Things such as the preacher who preaches hate or the rock star who glorifies violence. Extremists must be tolerated, but not necessarily followed or echoed.

The extremists must be tolerated because if the extremes are constantly censored and cut, it establishes a horribly minute range of accepted, expressible ideas. Remember: "me hodie, tu cras," me today, you tomorrow. If what I say is extreme today and my words are censored, what you say may be on the extreme tomorrow. This could continue until the range of choices was no narrow that there would be almost no choices that had not already been made for you.

Our country cannot survive without freedom of speech. Every action that is taken which limits a person's right to express themselves is taking a chunk out of American life and must not be tolerated. To censor any material or any one person is wrong; even if the things which they say are inflammatory. "Censorship destroys and consumes what is best in man: his reason and imagination." (Cal Thomas) With censorship, we are nothing. Without it, we have every virtue of man on our side.

Salvation Army Kicks Off Annual Kettle Campaign

More than 50 percent of the staff at The Hibernia Savings Bank will be ringing bells and staffing kettles at The Stop & Shop on Southern Artery in Quincy in support of The Salvation Army's Christmas Kettle Campaign.

The campaign, which runs until Dec. 23, was kicked off locally recently by Capt. Scott Kelly, commanding officer of The Salvation Army, Quincy Corps and Mark A. Osborne, chairman and CEO of The Hibernia Savings Bank and vice chairman of The Salvation Army Quincy Corps, Advisory Board.

Celebrating its 105th year, the nationwide campaign is the single largest fund-raiser organized by The Salvation Army. Locally, the campaign, encompassing Quincy and the South Shore, anticipates raising $165,000. Donations are used to provide food baskets, toys and utilities assistance to families in need throughout the holiday season and winter months.

"This is a crucially important campaign because the funds donated represent nearly one-quarter of our annual income," said Kelly. "We highly value and greatly appreciate the support we receive from the Quincy and South Shore communities. It helps us to broaden the scope of our services to needy families not only with food baskets and toys during the holidays, but also with utilities and other services throughout the entire year."

"It gives me great pleasure to assist in the launch of this worthy campaign," said Osborne. "The Hibernia Savings Bank considers it a privilege to be associated with an organization that does so much good for so many people. Supporting this campaign provides us with an opportunity to respond to a real community need at a time when the spirit of giving is paramount."

Christmas kettles are located at retail malls and stores including Roche Brothers Supermarkets, Caldor's, Woolworth's, Bradlees, Christmas Tree Shops, Filene's, Barnes & Noble Bookstore, Kmart, The Stop & Shop Companies, Ames, DeMoulas Market Basket, Star Markets, Sam's Wholesale Club, Walmart, J.C. Penney, MBTA, Lord & Taylor, New England Development Corp. Malls, Bank of Boston, Shreve, Crump & Lowe Co., and Shaws Supermarket.

At City Hall Hearing

Witnesses Bare Souls On Alcohol Abuse

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A number of witnesses courageously bared their souls about how alcohol abuse has touched their lives during a special public hearing last Thursday night at City Hall.

The hearing was organized by the recently-formed Alcohol Action Group (AAG), an alliance made up of Impact Quincy and a number of other organizations and city departments that plans to address the problem with a fund-raising drive and other initiatives.

A 13-member panel appointed by Mayor James Sheets listened to personal testimony from community representatives and statistics from field experts to get an idea of the scope of the problem of alcohol abuse in Quincy and how to combat it in the future.

Before the testimony began, officials said the hearing and overall effort by the AAG, which recently compiled a report on alcohol abuse from statistics obtained from a variety of sources, represent an important historical significance.

"It's our contention as the Alcohol Action Group that the leading public health problem in the United States today is alcohol abuse," said Impact Quincy Executive Director Mitch Finnegan. "Quincy is not unique in having these problems. We are unique, and courageous, and pioneering, in being the first community in this country to address this issue honestly and openly and directly."

"We are also a city that has proven itself over and over again as a city, as a community together, that sets an example to other cities and towns, and to our country," said Rev. Sheldon Bennett of United First Parish Church and the Quincy Clergy Association, who acted as moderator for the hearing.

Sheets, who spoke briefly, also said alcohol abuse is the "number one health problem across this country" and applauded the idea of an "action plan" to come up with a solution to it.

Some of the personal testimony from the community representatives was haunting. Crystal, a 15-year-old North Quincy High School student who asked that her last name not be used, has a mother who is a recovering alcoholic and estimated that 85 percent of the current student population at her school drink alcohol.

"If your parent drinks, like my mom, you think about it all the time," she said. "It's a big responsibility. And we're not old enough to think about it because we have school; we have friends. It was hard for me to get a job because I always thought about, 'What happens when I go home? What's going to happen next? Is she going to be drunk? Is she going to be in the hospital?'"

"It got so bad she began hallucinating, became delirious. She became threatening to herself and to me."

Crystal added, however, that her mother has since received help for her problem and has now been sober for about six months.

"I'm proud of her," she said with a smile.

Local business owner Gerry Reade, a recovering alcohol, spoke of his own battle with the bottle. A recovering alcoholic who achieved sobriety in 1983, he built a successful business before returning to drinking nearly 10 years later. Since then, he has recovered again, he said.

"I went to six detox centers, thank God," he said. "Because alcohol doesn't discriminate. It doesn't matter whether we're male or female, black or white. It doesn't matter what our ethnic background is, what our education is. Alcohol is cunning, baffling and powerful."

Officer Frank Spring of the Quincy Police Department said he received help for his former alcohol problem from a city program.

"I know that I got sober because we had a program in the city, a stress program that had some education in it, and I was led into that," said Spring, who has not had a drink in 15 years. "In my case, it was strictly education that helped me see just where I was at."

Ruth Daley, a recovering alcoholic whose late husband and four sons have all suffered from the same problem, expressed similar sentiments.

"I'm really grateful for what this city has done for me and what it's done for my whole family," said Daley.

Others at the hearing gave statistics about the problem and offered hope for the future. Josephine Shea of the Norfolk County Correctional Center noted that 85 percent of the 538 inmates in the custody of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office are in for alcohol-related offenses.

Shea also spoke of substance abuse programs the center uses to help the inmates and said her office had made a pledge to do whatever it can to help the AAG.

"We're committed to this panel as well, and if at any time we can offer any help, we certainly want to do that as a partner in this plan," she said.

Quincy Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said there is already some reason to be optimistic.

"I see an awful lot of things that are already in existence in the City of Quincy ready to be implemented," she said. "And I just know that we can carry a lot of what we're seeing tonight forward."

Others, however, said there is need for still more education as well as ways to bring families closer together in tough emotional times.

"We do need more services," said Father Bill's Place employee Jim McGill, a recovering alcoholic who estimated that between 700 and 1,000 of the homeless shelter's annual clients have alcohol problems. "There has to be some education."

"We certainly can't expect our kids to grow up and be happy, law-abiding citizens if they come from an alcoholic and dysfunctional, turbulent home," said Martin Dundon of the Quincy District Court Probation Department.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman also spoke of occasions he has witnessed that serve as evidence as how alcohol abuse can tear apart families.

"Parents try to deny, they start to blame the kids," said Gorman. "They don't blame themselves. You see the bottles of liquor around... Those are the things we see."

"A lot of the problems in families today are caused by alcoholism."

One local business owner, Joseph Hajjar of the Yardrock Blues Club, said alcohol abuse is the result of various factors, not necessarily just alcohol.

"I think there's a problem with alcohol, like a lot of things," said Hajjar, who requested that a representative from his line of work be appointed to the AAG. "But is alcohol the problem?"

Members of the panel who heard the testimony and will begin work on a report to the mayor in the coming weeks include: City Council President Michael Cheney, Council on Aging Chairman John Noonan, Planning Director Richard Meade, Nancy Callanan of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, Judge Charles Black of Quincy District Court, Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, Michelle Kahane of DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), Quincy Hospital Director/CEO Ralph DiPisa, Quincy Commission on the Family Executive Director and School Committeewoman Linda Stice, School Supt. Eugene Creedon, Police Chief Francis Mullen, state Sen. Michael Morrissey and Terry Fancher of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Finnegan said last week the next steps in the AAG's plan are a community workshop and a fund drive to raise $84,985--$1 for every Quincy resident--in an effort to address the problem. The $84,985 will be raised in an effort to attract larger funding sources to the effort, he noted.

A story in last week's Quincy Sun incorrectly stated that one of the groups involved with the AAG effort, the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, already has committed the full $84,985 amount to the fund-raising campaign. In fact, the group has pledged $25,000.

Bellotti Holiday Fundraiser Dec. 14 To Benefit PAL

State Rep. Michael Bellotti will host a Holiday Fundraiser Thursday, Dec. 14 from 6 to 9:30 p.m. at Pat Flanagan's, 179 Parkway, Quincy Center.

Proceeds will benefit the Quincy Police Athletic League (PAL) program.

The PAL program is staffed by off-duty police officers and civilians who donate their time in running various athletic events and programs throughout the city. The PAL also has a large sports program and runs an annual Christmas Party for special needs youngsters from Quincy and throughout the South Shore.

During the Bellotti fundraiser, the PAL program will honor present and retired Quincy Police officers who began the Quincy Boys Club, the predecessor to the PAL program. They are: Sgt. Richard Laracy and Officers Guido "Budzy" Pettinelli, William Draicchio, William Spenser and Edward Kusser.

Donation for the event is $10. For more information, call Bellotti at 722-2210.

Fore River Baseball Field To Be Renamed For Ray Dunn

The Fore River baseball field will be renamed Raymond Dunn, Sr. Field in recognition of his long-time community service in Quincy Point.

The dedication ceremony will be held Dec. 17 at 2 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse on Nevada Rd., announces State Rep. Ronald Mariano.

Mariano, after discussing the matter with neighbors, presented the proposal to rename the field to the Quincy Park and Recreation Board Nov. 6. The board unanimously endorsed the idea with Chairman Peter Kenney noting: "Many of the board members know Ray Dunn and are well aware of the many contributions he had made to the city."

Mariano said in tribute: "For the over 35 years that I have known him, Ray has been a quiet hero to the families and children of Quincy Point. As a child growing up in Quincy Point, Ray was someone I looked up to and admired. More than three decades later, Ray continues to be a role model to everyone that comes in contact with him."

Mariano cited Dunn's involvement in many activities including St. Joseph's Church and his 25 years as a coach and administrator of Quincy Youth Baseball.

Among those who will participate in the dedication ceremony in addition to Mariano are Mayor James Sheets, Sen. Michael Morrissey, Ward 2 Councilor Ted DeCristofaro and Councilor-elect Dan Raymond.

"We encourage anyone who has known Ray or whose life has been touched by this remarkable gentleman to attend the dedication ceremony," Mariano said.

Dunn is past president and a current member of St. Joseph's Holy Name Society, a past Boy Scout and Cub Scouts leader in Quincy Point, a Babe Ruth baseball league coach and administrator for more than 25 years.

He is a CYO basketball coach and has organized paper, bottle and can fundraising drives for youth organizations in Quincy Point.

He currently "waits on tables" for senior citizens at 1000 Southern Artery.

Pick-Up Truck Float Contest At First Night Lights Festival

City Council President and First Night Quincy Chairman Michael Cheney announces that Bonkers 19 of Weymouth will sponsor a pick-up truck float contest in conjunction with the First Night Festival of Lights Parade which will begin at 7 p.m. on New Year's Eve.

In order for contestants to be eligible, they must decorate their pick-up truck with either a New Year's Eve or family theme. The pick-up truck must have at least 25 percent of the float covered with lights.

First prize will be $1,000, second prize $500 and third prize, $250. Contest winners will be announced on New Year's Eve.

First Night Quincy is a family, non-alcoholic celebration of the arts held on New Year's Eve in Quincy Center. This year, there will be 24 locations and over 250 artists performing, 15 ice sculptures, a Festival of Lights parade, and street entertainers with the evening capped off with a spectacular fireworks display.

First Night buttons are on sale at City Hall and regular retail outlets.

CPR Course At Quincy Hospital

Quincy Hospital is offering a two-part eight hour course in CPR to be held Tuesdays, Jan. 9 and 16.

Class sessions will be from 6 to 10 p.m. and will be held at Quincy Hospital.

The course will be led by trained instructors and will offer Certification through the American Heart Association. It will include background information about heart disease, risk factors, prudent heart living and heart lung function. One-rescuer cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and the management of foreign-body airway obstruction will be taught. The course will consist of lecture and practice on CPR manikins.

Cost for the eight hour course is $40. Class size is limited and advance registration and payment is required. To register, or for further information, call Quincy Hospital at (617) 376-4018.

Broad Meadows Students Receive Human Rights Award

Students from the Broad Meadows middle school in Quincy, received the 1995 Reebok Human Rights "Youth In Action" Award at the eighth annual Reebok Human Rights Award ceremony Tuesday at the Apollo Theatre in New York City.

The students received this year's award in recognition and support of a year-long campaign in honor of 12-year-old Iqbal Masih, the Pakistani boy who escaped from a life of slavery to become a human rights activist for the million of enslaved Pakistani children.

Masih, the recipient of the 1994 Reebok Human Rights Youth In Action Award, visited the Broad Meadows school during his brief stay in the United States last December. Iqbal shocked and outraged the students as he recalled how he was sold into slavery at the age of 4. For the next six years, Iqbal spent 10 hours a day making carpets. He was often times tortured, physically and verbally abused and, at times, chained to his loom. He told the students of his life's mission: to free Pakistan's 7.5 million bonded children.

Broad Meadows students quickly responded to Iqbal's visit with a letter writing campaign aimed at heads of governments where child bonded labor exists, demanding the immediate abolition of child slavery. In addition to writing 670 letters, the 10-14-year-old students wrote or phoned 60 local carpet stores in their region to determine the stores' policies regarding carpets imported from countries utilizing child labor.

On April 16, Easter Sunday, Iqbal was murdered while riding a bicycle in his native village. In an immediate response to his death, Broad Meadows students vowed to keep Iqbal's memory alive and conceived a fundraising campaign in honor of the slain human rights crusader. The campaign, "A School for Iqbal", was created to raise money to build a school for Pakistani children, a dream Iqbal shared with the students during his visit to the school.

The "A School for Iqbal" campaign invites students at other schools to donate $12, a symbolic figure because Iqbal was 12 when he died and was sold into slavery for $12.

To date, the campaign has received more than 600 donations from all 50 states and six countries, totaling more than $25,000. Word of the campaign is being spread via a World Wide Web site on the Internet and other fundraising vehicles. While such notables as former President Jimmy Carter, U.S. Senator Edward Kennedy and R.E.M. and lead singer Michael Stipe have given their endorsement and support to the campaign, most donations have come from students at other schools. Donations will be accepted through April, 1996, the one-year anniversary of Iqbal's murder.

When Iqbal received last year's Youth In Action Award, The Reebok Foundation earmarked $10,000 to help him realize his dream of becoming an attorney. To support the efforts of the students in commemorating Masih's life, The Reebok Foundation will announce at the ceremony its decision to reallocate Iqbal's $10,000 award to the "A School For Iqbal" campaign. In addition, the Foundation will donate an additional $2,000, increasing the donation to $12,000 in recognition of the symbolic figure, 12.

Keary Hernlund Completes Basic Training

Navy Seaman Recruit Keary Hernlund, sister of Eric Hernlund of 16 Lawrence St., Quincy, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Hernlund completed a variety of training which included classroom study, practical hands-on instruction, and an emphasis on physical fitness. In particular, Hernlund learned naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival, and a variety of safety skills required for working around ships and aircraft.

She is a 1994 graduate of Hull Senior High School.

South Shore Realtors Host 'Welcoming' Reception

More than 400 attended the South Shore Association of Realtors' champagne reception held recently at the Barker Tavern in Scituate.

According to Association President James Stamos, the reception was a chance for longtime members to get to know some of the more than 300 realtors who have joined the board in the past year.

"The event was really a welcome to all of our new members, as well as a chance to say 'thank you' to all of our long-standing members for their continued support," he said.

Since the implementation of the board of choice in November 1994, Stamos said, SSAR's membership has increased by more than 70 percent to 750 members.

The South Shore Association of Realtors is a professional organization serving real estate agents from Boston to Cape Cod.

State Housing Market Sales On The Rise

Low mortgage rates, stable home prices and a series of revisions to the state's Title 5 septic regulations acted like magnets, attracting home buyers back to the housing market this summer, the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) said in a recent report.

Third quarter sales of detached single-family homes increased 3.7 percent versus the same period last year, rising from 10,944 units closed in 1994 to 11,353 this year, and condominium sales improved 6.3 percent over the previous year, from 2,028 a year ago to 2,156 in the third quarter of 1995, the report showed.

"Interest rates have dropped by more than one and one-half points since January, and these lower finance rates combined with the moderate appreciation we've seen over the past year have created a great opportunity for buyers to get into the market," said MAR President Richard Healey.

In fact, the 13,509 residential sales recorded across the state during the third quarter of 1995 is the most since 1988, when 13,638 units sold, Healey said.

"Earlier this year, there was a lot of apprehension and uncertainty in the market as buyers waited for the Title 5 issue to be resolved and for 30-year mortgage rates to fall below eight percent," he added. "But with interest rates in the teens since June, affordability levels have improved to the point where many first-time buyers who were previously priced out of the market have been able to pursue the dream of home ownership."

The average 30-year fixed rate mortgage in the third quarter was 7.82 percent, according to the MAR, down from 8.89 percent in the first three months of the year.

The statewide increase in detached single-family home sales during the third quarter follows four consecutive quarters in which activity has decreased compared to the same period the previous year, including sales declines of 16.9 percent and 20.2 percent in the first and second quarter of 1995 respectively. Healey cautioned that the recent growth in sales could be short-lived, however, if the state Legislature fails to address the point of sale inspection requirements of Title 5.

"It's a distinct possibility the winter months will be characterized by lost sales and lengthy delays in home purchases, similar to those experienced in the spring market, unless changes are made to allow septic inspections at a point other than the time of a property transfer ownership," he said. MAR "avors an approach whereby all sewage disposal systems would be inspected based on a priority-ranking plan in which systems in the most environmentally-sensitive areas would be tested first.

Regionally, significant sales gains were reported in Greater Boston, the Northeast region and on Cape Cod and the Islands, where detached single-family home sales increased 14.9, 3.6 and 7.9 percent respectively, and condo sales improved 19, 7 and 5.5 percent respectively. Elsewhere, sales activity declined modestly compared to last year's health numbers, but the volume of sales in the remaining regions still suggests a strong market, especially for entry-level and starter homes.

One factor that may have hindered activity, particularly in the trade-up market, say some industry officials, is a severe shortage of listings. Based on data compiled by MAR at the end of the third quarter, the number of single-family homes available for sale in Massachusetts totaled just 23,873, down from 33,699 units in September 1994, a decrease of 29 percent.

"There is a definite shortage of good inventory in some markets, especially in eastern and central Massachusetts," Healey said. "And, Title 5 is largely to blame. It's a costly proposition, which some homeowners simply can't afford to fix right now, and consequently they're not putting their homes up for sale."

In its report, the MAR also announced that the statewide average selling price for detached single-family homes sold in the Bay State was $186,341 in the third quarter of 1995, an increase of 0.7 percent over the 1994 third quarter average of $185,115. Meanwhile, in the condo market, the statewide average selling price rose 9.9 percent last quarter, from an average of $113,222 in the third quarter of 1994 to $124,420 in the same period this year. The price increases mark the 10th consecutive quarter in which the statewide average selling price has appreciated over the same period one year earlier.

"We're seeing a lot more confidence in the condo market these days," said Healey. "In particular, the number of distressed sales and bank-owned units selling at below market rates in down dramatically, and this has helped property values recovered. Demand from first-time buyers is also strong right now, and where supply is tight this is driving up prices."

Stevenson: 'We Can Win The League'

North Quincy Boys Young But Loaded With Size, Talent

Only two players with varsity experience will take the floor for the North Quincy High boys basketball team this season, but coach Ted Stevenson feels his club has a shot at capturing the Old Colony League title.

"I'm worried about our lack of experience but honestly feel we can win the league if we get off to a decent start," said Stevenson.

The Red Raiders open the season Tuesday, Dec. 12 at OCL opponent Bridgewater-Raynham.

Last year NQ went 13-7 in the regular season before being upset by Framingham in the first round of the tournament.

Junior guard Mike Doyle and junior forward Tomi Coughlin are the two players with varsity experience. Coughlin leads a tall and talented corps of big men who are the cause for the coach's optimistic outlook.

Coughlin (6 feet, 4 inches) will join in the front court by junior forward Jim Finn (6-3) and sophomore center Brian Ross (6-6). Junior Matt Bromley (6-5) will be the first man off the bench.

"We're very talented," said Stevenson. "Our big men are very athletic and can run the floor well."

Rounding out the front court will be Jeremy Nielson and Keith Reynolds.

The Red Raiders will be captained by senior guard Jim Rendle. Doyle will man the other guard spot. Joining Rendle and Doyle in the back court will be Ken Hannaford, Chris Erler, Mike Johnston, Tim Semchenko and John Heim.

Outstanding junior prospect Jevon Glenn will be unavailable to play this season.

North Quincy played well in a scrimmage Saturday against a strong Scituate club despite being without the services of Doyle and Coughlin.

Following the game against B-R, the Red Raiders host Falmouth Friday, Dec. 15 at 7 p.m. The next two games are on the road against league opponents Silver Lake and Weymouth.

"We have a tough four games to open the season but if we can survive the start we'll be O.K.," said Stevenson.

"I think we get much stronger as the season progresses," he added.

Memorial To Matt Messing At Arena QYA Dedication, Jamboree To Open Hockey Season

The new entry hall at Quincy Youth Arena will be dedicated to the memory of Matt Messing in a ceremony to be held Saturday at 4 p.m.

Messing was the 16-year-old Quincy High School sophomore who died during a hockey game against North Quincy in January.

The dedication ceremony will be followed by a jamboree featuring Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and six other area hockey teams.

During the ceremony, Fr. Gerard Dever, of St. Ann's Parish, will bless the building addition and the Matt Messing Memorial Plaque located in the new entrance way. Refresh-

Youthful Experience The Key For Quincy

Hockey season is just around the corner and Quincy High School ice men will drop the puck on the 1995-96 campaign Monday at 3 p.m. at Quincy Youth Arena when they host the Abington Green Wave.

The Presidents boast a young but experienced and quite talented crew this year. This youthful experience is evidenced by the fact that both captains, forward Mark Glynn and defenseman Matt Langille, are juniors and now three-year starters.

Coach Bob Sylvia will also rely on the talents of sophomore right wing Chris Haidul, sophomore defenseman Steve Verlicco and freshman goaltender Jeff Langille in what is likely to be the starting unit.

The Presidents were scheduled to prepare for the start of the season with a scrimmage against Braintree this past Tuesday. They scrimmage Hanover today (Thursday) and host a jamboree at Quincy Youth Arena Saturday night beginning at 5:30. Quincy will take the ice against Walpole and Don Bosco during the jamboree, which features seven other teams, including North Quincy High School.

Sylvia feels that the success of his team this season hinges on its ability to light up the scoreboard. "The name of the game is to score goals," said the coach. "If we can put the puck in the net consistently then we'll be O.K."

Quincy has a stack of forwards who will be called upon to put the puck in the net. Of the group, Mark Regan is the only senior. Rounding out the corps of front liners are juniors Derek McTomney and Scott Cooper, sophomores Brad McCauley, Bobby Hall and Bob Harvey, and freshmen Joe Vallatini, Sean Lefebvre and John Katsarikas.

Manning the blueline will be seniors Mike Martin and Bruce Stenberg, junior Glen Chase and sophomores Mark Kelley and Tim Lewis.

REPLACING THE BRAKE FLUID

Car owners should not wait or prolonged use.

Until their brakes are serviced to replace brake fluid. This component of the car's hydraulic brake system is too often neglected. Unless the brake fluid is drained and the hydraulic brake lines are flushed according to the owner's manual recommendation, brake fluid may become contaminated and deteriorate to the point where damage occurs. Brake fluid is exceptionally hygroscopic, meaning that it absorbs moisture from the atmosphere. Once moisture contaminates the brake fluid, it begins to break down. This results in decreased ability to prevent corrosion, along with a reduction in its boiling point and lubricating properties. These, in turn, may cause the brakes to drag, or braking power may be lost during repeated quick stops.

HINT: Because brake fluid deterioration is unnoticeable, prevention is the best strategy. The safety of our customers is very important to us here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO and we want them to be informed. We are small enough to provide friendly, personal service and large enough to have the latest, most modern equipment and most importantly, technicians who are constantly trained and re-trained. You can trust your auto repairs to us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). We're 'A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer.' Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted autos and trucks.

Donors Needed For Arena Wall Of Fame

Officials at the Quincy Youth Arena are looking to build a hockey Wall of Fame within the recently renovated building.

Plaques will be erected on the wall in honor of people selected by plaque donors.

The plaques cost $100 and will remain in place "for as long as the building is standing," said Quincy Youth Arena manager Beverly Reinhardt.

For more information or to buy a sign for the Wall of Fame, call the Quincy Youth Arena at 479-8371.

Satkevich Reaping Soccer Awards

Fontbonne Academy sophomore Sarah Satkevich has been racking up the awards as a member of the school's soccer team.

The Quincy native and product of the Quincy Youth Soccer League was selected to play in the Catholic Conference all-star game and was named the No. 3 player in the conference by the league coaches.

Satkevich was also a first-team selection on the Eastern Mass. Division I all-star soccer team.

In her short varsity career at Fontbonne, Satkevich has tallied 23 goals and added 15 assists. All this after having undergone reconstructive knee surgery in November, 1994.

Pee Wee House

Patten The Difference For Skinner's

Kevin Patten scored three goals and added an assist to lead Skinner's Winners to a 9-5 win over Keohane's in Pee Wee House League hockey action.

Tom Costa added the win with two goals and two assists. Neal Gavin, Ken Reichel and Pat Lahar each put three points in the scoring column with one goal and two assists. Matt Tupe recorded one goal while Jim Devlin and Jim Kuhn each posted a pair of assists.

Brian Keefe paced the Keohane's effort with a hat trick and one assist. Andrew Mahoney and Mark Tetreault each chalked up one goal. Tetreault was the week's top playmaker with three assists to go with his one tally. Setting up one goal each were Kevin Egan, Steve Romanowski and Tom Maloney.

Jon Paquette posted five points on two goals and three assists to lead Neponset Valley Survey to a 7-3 win over Mike Morrissey Club.

Rob Rice added two goals and an assist for the winners. Matt Miller netted one goal and set up two others. Joe Cox had a goal and an assist. Duncan Devlin lit the lamp once. Aiding on one goal each were John Freeman and Anthony Tufo.

Bill Clarke, Jim Mateu and Matt Conso scored for Morrissey Club. Dishing out assists were Conso, Clarke, Matt Petit, Brett Keyes, Terrence Doherty and Mark Dailey.

Jon Tallent scored two goals for M. Sugarman Co. and Billy Barrus netted a pair for Colonial Federal as their clubs battled to a 3-3 tie.

Keith Walsh potted the other Sugarman goal. Colin Maxey, Kris Farr and Tallent assisted.

Matt Miller notched the third Colonial Federal goal. Matt Glynn and Barrus handed out assists.

Pee Wee House League standings: Morrissey Club, 4-1-1; Skinner's, 4-2; M. Sugarman, 3-1-2; Neponset, 3-2-1; Keohane's, 1-5; Colonial Federal, 0-4-2.

Mite House

Conso Hat Trick Sparks Harold Club

Jon Conso posted the week's only hat trick to lead Paul Harold Club to a 6-4 win over Samoset Pharmacy in Mite House hockey action.

Netting single tallies for the winning club were Joe Canavan, Noah Gimiewicz and Jacob McQuinn. Jim Fitzpatrick set up two goals while Mike Lohnes, Mike Giordani and Jon Griffith each made one assist.

Matt Quigley netted a pair for Samoset. Bret Martinson and Mike MacPherson lit the lamp once each. Ed Laura made two assists while single assists were dished out by Marthson, Pat Mullen and Jessica Harrington.

Norton Scored Overtime Goal In Youth Soccer Title Game

The overtime scoring in the Quincy Youth Soccer League under 12 boys championship game between Quincy Sun and Mayor Sheets was incorrectly reported in last week's paper.

John Norton scored what proved to be the Matthew Lawlor sparked Purdy's Ice Cream to a 5-2 win over Doherty & White with two goals.

Pat Malone, Mike Little and John Kurpeski got on the board with one goal apiece. Little and Kurpeski each added an assist. Rich Penzo was the top playmaker with two assists. Kevin Shinnick set up one goal.

Barry's Deli eked out a 2-1 win over Lydon Russell.

Terrence O'Connell and Joe Sweeney scored the winning goals. Andrew Donovan and Mike Powers assisted.

game-winner in the overtime shootout as Quincy Sun won, 3-1.

Matt Conso also scored in the shootout.

Norton's goal was incorrectly credited to Billy Gardner. Gardner was the winning goal keeper and played and outstanding game.

Squirt House

Peters, Dunn Carry Green To 1-0 Win

Matthew Peters lit the lamp in the third period to carry Green Environmental to a hard-fought 1-0 win over upset-minded Johnson Motor Parts in a Squirt House hockey battle.

David Toner set up the Peters game-winner as Green Environmental kept a hold on first place.

Steve Dunn played an outstanding game between the pipes to post the shutout.

Johnson netminder Dan Durocher also played a tremendous game, stopping all but the one shot, as his club made a bid for the upset.

Joe McManus and Tim Sommers netted two goals each to spark Burgin Plataner to a 6-3 win over Quincy Sun.

Billy Barter and Ryan Conley added single tallies for Burgin. Assists were handed out by Conley, McManus and Jeff Butts.

Brian Lynch paced the Sun attack with two goals. Jimmy Kennedy scored once and added an assist. Nick Leger and Jimmy Burke also posted assists.

Doran & Horrigan edged Granite Auto Electric, 2-1, on the strength of goals by Andy Pangraze and Mike Brewster.

Chris Gates and Steve Ohlson set up the winning scores.

Pat Casper lit the lamp for Granite Auto. He was aided by Mike Cox and Bryan Petit.

Squirt House League standings: Green, 8-1; Burgin, 7-1-1; Granite Auto, 5-3-1; Quincy Sun, 2-7; Johnson, 2-7; Doran, 2-7.

Byrne Heating Up The Glass For UMass-Boston

UMass-Boston forward Tim Byrne is burning up the boards in early Little East basketball action.

The 6-5, 200-pound junior was presented the John Shay Award following the Harbor Invitational. In the Beacons' win over Framingham State, Byrne had 14 points and grabbed 14 rebounds. He leads the conference with 9.7 rebounds per game.

Quincy Squirt B's Roll Through Schedule

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B team, sponsored by Continental Cablevision, has been on a roll of late, posting wins over opponents from South Boston, Waltham, Westwood and Wellesley.

The Quincy team is unbeaten in league play.

Rob Mooney was up to old tricks with three goals to lead the Quincy club to a 12-3 blasting of Southie.

Brendan Craig was awesome between the pipes as he filled in for the vacationing Nick Manning. Craig was fronted by the superb blue line play of Sean Moriarty and Jake O'Donnell.

Matt Alleva and Liam Powers followed Mooney by netting a pair each. Single goals were posted by Pat Clifford, Josh Giordani, Richard Stone, Ryan Tobin and Ken Young.

Assists were dished out by just about everyone as the team put on a splendid display of passing. Justin Swierk was tops with three assists. Setting up two goals each were Giordani, Tobin and Liam Powers. With one assist apiece were Stone, Dan Sullivan, Mooney, Clifford, Alleva and Bob Donovan.

The Squirt B's rolled past Waltham, 7-3.

Waltham took an early lead but Swierk answered the call with a pair of first-period tallies. Setting him up were Craig, Donovan and Giordani.

In the second, Waltham tied the game at 2-2, but 48 seconds later Mooney came from nowhere to smash an unassisted goal into the net. The score gave Quincy the lead for good.

Third period action produced goals by Young, Craig, Giordani and Ryan McFarland. Assisting were Swierk (2), Clifford, Sullivan, Powers and Giordani.

Nick Manning proved his worth in the cage with his own style of stand-up goaltending. Alleva and Moriarty provided strong leadership at the blue line while Tobin pushed Waltham up ice. The wall of O'Donnell and Stone could not be penetrated.

The Quincy boys handled Westwood, 7-1, in a tough-to-handle 7 a.m. contest.

Manning again had a tremendous performance in goal and was aided by the work of defensive rocks Alleva, Big Bad Bob Donovan, McFarland, Moriarty, O'Donnell and Stone.

Tobin and Swierk gave Quincy a 2-0 first period lead. Tobin was aided by Swierk and the second goal was set up by Moriarty.

Craig, Young and Clifford put the puck in the net in the second period. Assisting were Mooney, Giordani, Powers, Swierk and Tobin.

Mooney and Powers were quite a team in the third. Mooney scored on a Powers' pass and Powers followed with a tip-in of a Mooney shot.

Quincy again had their way in an 8-3 win over Wellesley.

Craig led the scoring sheet with four points on a goal and three assists. Mooney and Powers popped in two goals each. Mooney also dished out an assist.

Giordani netted one goal and set up another. Swierk and McFarland lit the lamp once each. Stone handed out a pair of assists while Clifford made one assist.

QHS Wrestling Reunion To Celebrate 20th Year

The Quincy High School "Men At Work" wrestling program will celebrate its 20th year of the modern era with a reunion of coaches, wrestling alumni and parents on the evening of Dec. 21.

The Quincy wrestling program was reinstituted in 1975 following a long hiatus which began with the end of the 1942 season. As part of the celebration, members of the 1942 team will be on hand.

The event will be held in the Tirell Room of the new Elks Hall, 254 Quarry St. The cost is $20 per ticket. The money will help pay for a holiday buffet and will help return the championship banners to the Quincy Vo-Tech gym walls.

Doors open at 6 p.m. for a social hour and dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Organizers Tim Cahill and Lou Venturilli are looking to get as many ex-wrestlers and their families and friends as possible to attend. They hope to update the QHS record book, show some old videos and perhaps settle a long-standing dispute by dusting off the trunks and taking to the mat one last time. The smart money is on Cahill, who has a prominent weight advantage.

For more information call Cahill at 328-6699 or Venturilli at 472-3752.

Curreri Sparks Pee Wee A Romp Over Dedham

Frank Curreri led the charge as the Quincy Pee Wee A team, sponsored by Quincy Elks, stormed past Dedham, 11-4.

Curreri played solid defensive hockey while racking up two goals and six assists.

Charlie Sorrento added two goals and two assists while Dan Kennedy netted two and set up another score. Mark Giese and Scott MacDonald each chalked up a pair of goals. Mark Gibbons lit the lamp once and set up another goal. Ryan Doyle handed out one assist.

Matt Gregory made some super saves as he held the fort between the pipes. He was fronted by the outstanding defensive play of Paul Campbell, Sean Richardson and Dom Papile.

The Quincy club played well in the Thanksgiving

Tournament in Medford, winning two games before falling in the semifinals.

O'Malley's Boxers Benefit From Nat'l PAL Tourney

Three months ago Dan O'Malley, Nick Morganello and Jimmy Farrell, Jr. approached the Quincy Police Athletic League relative to sending some O'Malley's Boxing Gym fighters to the National Police Athletic League Amateur Boxing Championships in Dallas.

Bob Perchard, Bob Hanna, Bobby Clarke and the rest of the Quincy PAL responded by sending junior welterweight Kevin Watts, heavyweight Tyrone Smith and light-heavyweight Gene Jackson and to the tournament. The benefits of the experience in the National PAL box-offs became evident as soon as they returned home.

Last Wednesday night, Cocky Kevin Watts, of South Boston, was named outstanding fighter of the New England ABF tournament. Cocky Kevin scored a huge upset by defeating three-time national champion Jeff Frazza at the Roxy. Frazza had previously defeated the O'Malley's kid three times.

"It was only a matter of time before the diligent training would pay off and Watts would beat Frazza," agreed O'Malley's trainers Farrell and Jimmy Clifford.

Smith, of Dorchester, won the New England ABF championships last Wednesday when he banged out a convincing decision over defending Junior Olympic champion Joshua Roach of Tiverton, Rhode Island. In the National PAL tournament, Smith won four straight bouts before losing a razor-close decision in the semifinals to eventual heavyweight champion Nate Jones.

It is expected that Smith will soon be ranked among the top three amateur heavyweights in the nation by USA Boxing.

Jackson, also of Dorchester, passed up the New England ABF tournament to make his professional debut this past Saturday at the Stoughton National Guard Armory.

The muscular light-heavyweight swarmed all over opponent Spider Whitfield, of Providence, winning each of the four rounds decisively.

Watts and Smith fight Dec. 12 in the Regional Amateur Boxing Championships at the Fleet Center.

Sacred Heart Youth Hoop Tips Off 1995 Season

The Sacred Heart/North Quincy youth basketball league tipped off its sixth season this week with a full slate of games featuring a number of outstanding performances.

The league serves over 600 youngsters ages 5-17. Among the week's highlights:

College Boys

Billy Croke scored 11 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to lead the Huskies past the Minutemen, 46-27.

Mike Feetham added six points and Mike Maguire added four for the victors.

Brandon Sleeth scored 14 points in the losing effort. Brandon Dushler and Jonathon Beschler played well for the Minutemen.

The Jayhawks got 15 points from Pat Bregoli and 10 from Mike Feenan in a 54-34 win over the Tarheels.

Brian Ferrara netted six for the Jayhawks.

Greg McGinness, Billy Eagles and Casey Hillis played well in defeat.

Strong efforts by Ryan Farnham, Tim Nelson and Matt Ryan lifted the Hoyas to a 43-26 win over the Eagles.

Steve O'Brien, Paul Donovan and Mike Ryan played well for the Eagles.

The Terrapins chased down the Running Rebels, 46-25, in a hard-fought affair.

Justin Hall, Ian Hogan and Tom Whitman keyed the win with strong defense.

Kevin Holleran's eight points led the Rebels, who got strong games from Ryan Hemphill (four points) and Shawn Ginty.

In a close contest, the Wildcats clawed the Bruins, 44-39.

John Fidalgo paced the 'Cats with 18 points. Strong efforts also came from Dean Zoia and Jackie Liuzzo.

Chris Ham scored 14 points in the short effort. Ryan Stoeckal scored nine and Chris Selters netted six to keep the Bruins close.

College Girls

In a hard-fought battle, the Volunteers edged the Huskies, 30-25.

Casey Ridge and Erin Gavagan played strong all-around games for the victors.

Kathryn MacRitchie scored five points for the Huskies. Kathleen Hester added three while Melissa Rico played well.

The Commodores sailed past the Bruins, 39-18.

Nicole Grazioso led the Bruins in scoring while Sheila Lynch and Michelle McGuire played well.

Strong games by Casey Dooley, Kim Mark and Connie Lee led the Eagles to an overtime win against the Hawkeyes.

Kim Holmes, Ann-Marie Moynihan and Kelly Heffernan played well in the losing cause.

Pro Boys

Adam Goodrich's 19 points led the Spurs to a 54-32 win over the Suns.

Matt O'Day aided the winners with 13 points and Paul Lentini chipped in with 11.

Tim McAdams, Kim Yun and Matt Graham played well for the Suns.

The Knicks buried the Celtics, 60-40, thanks to the efforts of Randy Feetham, Pat Dolbear and Billy O'Toole.

Leading the Celtics effort were Brian Deputa and Will Cheong.

The Magic topped the Bulls, 47-28, behind the work of Shawn Boostrom, Matt McCann and Jason London.

The Bulls were led by Chu Chung, Sean Cote and Eric Stoeckal.

Rookie Girls

Cindy Lee scored 10 points to lead the Hornets to a 25-17 win over the Purple Sharks.

May Ho added nine for the winners while Kerri Beagle was a stalwart on defense.

Erin Malone scored four for the Sharks. Jamie Clifford added three points and Sarah Gorham chipped in with two.

Katie O'Brien netted a big bucket to key the Pink Devils to a 24-18 win over the Celtics.

Erin McFarland scored six for the Devils while Laura Hern dished out five assists.

Jennifer Cannon, Erin Lynch and Samantha Arodeo played well for the Celtics.

Joan O'Mahony's eight points sparked the Dazzling Dribblers in a 26-16 win over the Mean Machine.

Cassie Connolly scored six for the Dribblers while Lorin Beaton added four.

The Hip Hoopsters posted a 12-8 win over the Lucky Leprechauns.

Brianne Therrien, Ashley Ridge and Marybeth Bent sparked the winners.

Playing well for the Leprechauns were April Mullaney, Susanna Lynch and Paula Morgan.

Rookie Boys

Billy Gamel racked up 10 points to lead the Raptors to a 49-14 win over St. Ann's Reilly.

Darquin Chiu added four points while Matt Jaehning and Nick Ham recorded their career buckets.

Doug Joyce, Matt Tobin and Jared Abbott played well in the short effort.

Kit Chung and Raymond Chung led Kenney Club to a 31-19 win over Donovan's Destroyers.

Giving strong efforts for the Destroyers were Daryl Costa, Eric Kenney and John Dahlquist.

The Rosenberger Runners outraced the Gallagher Bombers, 22-12.

Bernie Stedman, Rick Schifone and Jonathon Longkey paced the winning club.

Leading the bombers attack were John Kozak, Chris Mercurio and Matt Baker.

St. Ann's Rebels shut down St. Ann's Bulls, 17-2.

Tim Mullen was the game's top scorer with six points. Brendan Linnane added three points and Domenico Poli showed tremendous hustle.

Billy Dwyer netted the only bucket for the Bulls. Scott Flaherty and Mike Sampson played well.

The McHugh World Beaters edged the Lynch Street Fighters, 32-31.

Scoring for that game was unreported.

Continental Announces Rate, Programming Changes

Continental Cablevision announces that it will make a number of rate and programming changes Jan. 1 in accordance with federal and state regulations.

The result will be an increase of $2.74 for Standard Service programming in Quincy but also a 15 percent reduction in Broadcast Basic Service in the city.

Continental customers throughout the state will see monthly price changes for the Standard Service package. The rate changes result from a Federal Communications Commission formula which calculates increases in inflation and the fees Continental pays to program services such as CNN and ESPN, as well as the cost of new programming.

The average increase among the 102 communities Continental services is $1.62. In Quincy, Standard Service rates will jump from $21.83 to $24.57, an increase of $2.74.

At the same time, to ensure an affordable entry-level cable service, Continental will reduce the monthly price of its Broadcast Basic Service by 15 percent.

In addition, monthly fees for converters will be lowered by 29 cents and remote controls will increase by one penny.

The rate changes differ from community to community because the federal regulations require separate calculations based on a number of local variables.

Customers in several communities also will see one-time credits on their January bills to reflect Massachusetts Cable Television Commission orders on past Broadcast Basic Service rates. Receiving refunds will be customers in Quincy, $2.36; Milton, 62 cents; Hanover, $1.57; Hingham, $1.69 and Norwell, $1.69.

Park Dept. Assists DPW In Composting Effort

The Quincy Park Department recently collaborated with the Public Works Department to further enhance the city's recycling program.

The DPW's four-year-old composting program will be augmented by the addition of the Park Department's 300-cubic-yard pile of wood chips. Officials said the cooperation between the two departments will result in the city avoiding costly disposal fees, while concurrently producing valuable loam and mulch for city projects.

The DPW's ongoing composting efforts will be aided by 20 truckloads of wood chips recently contributed by the Park Department. The excess wood is from the many trees and branches that have been removed by the Park Department's Forestry Division over the last few years. From now on, the branches will be brought to the DPW yard to be chipped and placed in the compost pile. It is estimated that the new collaboration will add 60 cubic yards of wood chips every week.

Residents that have branches or clippings that they would like to dispose of may contribute to the composting efforts by dropping off their excess wood at the DPW yard located at 55 Sea St. There is now a chopper on site to handle the disposal of smaller branches and shrubs. The Park Department will now only be accepting large wood pieces, such as trunks of larger trees. The DPW also conducts a seasonal curbside pickup of leaves and grass clippings during the spring and fall seasons to help with the recycling effort.

"The type of teamwork exhibited on this project between the Department of Public Works and the Park Department is what has made, and will continue to make, Quincy a success. Our current strategy makes sense from both an environmental and economical standpoint," said DPW Commissioner David Colton.

In addition, the Forestry Division has ground its larger stumps and trees into useable firewood. Quincy residents interested in free firewood may come by the Park Department office located at 100 Southern Artery. Interested parties must stop by the office and show proof of residency before picking up any wood.

The firewood is from various types of trees, but most of the wood is from oak and maple trees. Some of the recently-cut wood may need seasoning, but the majority of the pile is ready for immediate use.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at last week's meeting:

Chairman Joseph Shea said a because of a new ruling by the ABC, persons applying for a one-day liquor license will now need a 30 day notice. Shea said he "knows the ruling is a difficult one because some people don't know when they're going to need the license."

"The board approved new regulations pertaining to the conduct of establishments licensed by the board. The new rules and regulations will be updated and completed by January, Shea said.

"Granted a one day liquor license to The Woodward School for a Las Vegas Nite, at the school Saturday from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight.

"Granted a one day liquor license to St. Boniface Church, 26 Shed St., for a parish dance to be held Jan. 19, 1996.

"Approved a request from J.J.'s News & Variety at 263 Copeland St., for a common victualer license.

"Granted a request from International House of Pancakes, 111 Washington

St., for permission to remain open until 3 a.m. on Sunday, Dec. 31.

"Granted a request to the Patriots Trail Girl Scout Council, for permission to sell Girl Scout Cookies by direct sales and booth sales at local stores from Feb. 27 through April 1996. Orders for cookies will be taken in January, but cookies will not be available until February.

"Granted a request from Adam's Heights Men's Club, 63 Bower Rd., for a change of managers from John Kradolfer to Robert Sutherland.

"Continued a hearing regarding Tino's Truck Service, 61 Copeland St., for a permit to store 450 gallons of gasoline in tanks of (25) and vehicles being repaired at the site.

The next meeting of the board will be held Dec. 12.

Holiday Crime Prevention Tips From Chief Mullen

Shopping malls across the Commonwealth become busier as the holiday season approaches. Mixed in with the honest shoppers is a small group of thieves that will try to take advantage of the season.

The following tips are given to help you have a safe and crime-free holiday:

•When shopping, park your car in a well-lit area, as close to stores as possible. Avoid parking in remote or poorly-lit areas.

•Always keep your car locked and pocket the keys.

•If it is necessary to leave packages in your car, put them in the trunk out of sight. If you have a station wagon or truck, put the packages on the floor and place a blanket over them.

•While in the mall, keep your packages under your control at all times. Don't put packages down while looking at other merchandise.

•Only carry a purse if necessary. You can lock your purse in the trunk of your car taking only the items you will need.

•If you must carry a purse, place one end of the purse in the palm of your hand and the other in the bend of your elbow, keeping the purse close to your body.

•Do not carry large sums of cash. Bring only the cash necessary for purchases. Credit cards should only be brought with you if you anticipate using them.

•Men should be careful how they carry their wallets. Carry your wallet in the breast pocket of your jacket. Wrap an elastic around your wallet, or place a comb inside the wallet to make it more difficult for a pick-pocket to snatch it.

•Be on guard. Bargains such as expensive items at a fraction at the retail cost could be fraudulent and are notorious during the holiday season. Shop at reputable stores where items can be returned or exchanged if necessary.

•Be aware of who is around you at all times. Thieves easily take advantage of shoppers who are not paying attention to their surroundings.

By following the above tips, you will have a much safer and happier holiday season.

On behalf of the entire Quincy Police Department, I wish you a very happy, safe and sober holiday season. Please don't drink and drive, the life you save may be your own.

Francis E. Mullen

Annual Merrill Lynch 'Christmas Calls' Dec. 9

Merrill Lynch this holiday season will again open its doors to Quincy senior citizens so they may use the firm's telephones free-of-charge to call their loved ones around the world.

This is the 15th year Merrill Lynch has sponsored its "Christmas Calls" program, and the first year the Quincy office has participated.

On Saturday, Dec. 9, 50

Quincy senior citizens will participate at Merrill Lynch's office at 2 Battery March Park. The seniors, selected by the Quincy Council on Aging will participate and volunteers, comprised of Merrill Lynch employees, their families and friends, will be on hand to assist in placing calls.

The Quincy Council on Aging still has openings for calls. Each senior will be allowed to make up to one hour of phone calls but reservations are required. There is a limited number of spaces available so those interested should contact the Quincy Council on Aging at 376-1245 to make reservations. All those selected will receive a confirmation notice with further details provided.

A number of local officials are expected to stop by to extend holiday greetings. Refreshments will be served and there will be holiday music, decorations and a Santa to add to the festivities.

Three Local Food Pantries To Benefit From Santa's Kitchen

Three local food pantries will benefit from funds by Project Bread's holiday campaign, Santa's Kitchen.

To contribute to the feed the hungry fundraiser, call 617-723-5000 to make a pledge. Thirty-two area Brigham's Restaurants and Filene's

Basement/Downtown Crossing will support the holiday campaign by offering $1 and $5 coupons that can be added to customer's bills.

Proceeds from the campaign will help more than 200 emergency feeding programs provide traditional holiday meals and food baskets for hungry families in 75 communities in Massachusetts, including Quincy.

Those receiving holiday grants from Project Bread locally are the Protestant Social Service Bureau, Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition and Seaside Advocacy Group, Inc.

Joseph Finn of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, said funds from Project Bread allow the program to purchase nutritious perishables for holiday meals.

Project Bread estimates that Massachusetts food pantries, soup kitchens and homeless shelters will provide a million emergency meals between Thanksgiving and Christmas this year.

SCOTT DEWARE

cannot keep it from themselves.

A well known man noted for his cheerfulness was once asked how he managed to keep himself so happy and he replied that it was by not allowing himself to anticipate the misfortunes which might come to him. He always expected the best, and when unpleasant things came he made the best of them. He tried to see the ludicrous even in mishaps.

"You will find yourself refreshed by the presence of cheerful people. Why not make earnest effort to confer that pleasure on other? You will find half the battle is gained if you never allow yourself to say anything gloomy." ... L.M. Child

Morrissey Helps Pave Way For Maternity Law

State Sen. Michael Morrissey was a co-sponsor of the bill signed into law by Gov. William Weld last week requiring insurance companies and HMOs to cover a woman's and newborn's hospital stay for a minimum of 48 hours after a vaginal delivery and 96 hours after a Caesarean section.

Morrissey called the new law a victory for all Massachusetts mothers, newborns and families.

"This legislation will protect women and children from inappropriate early discharge and ensure that a woman's and infant's care during the first few days of life is not compromised," said Morrissey.

Morrissey said he co-sponsored the bill in response to the routine practice of "insurer-induced" abbreviated maternity stays. It has become the common policy for most health care insurers and HMOs to limit a mother's and infant's time in the hospital after delivery and consequently, women and newborns are often rushed home after birth without proper screening tests and education about caring for their newborn.

In addition to setting minimum coverage requirements, the legislation directs the state Department of Public Health to establish regulations on early discharge criteria and post-delivery care, including home care visits. Massachusetts has joined Maryland, New Jersey and North Carolina in establishing maternity care standards to counter restrictions imposed by the insurance industry.

The initiative has received widespread support from legislators, physicians and nursing groups, and health care providers as well as women's and children's advocates. The law will take effect 90 days after the governor signed it.

Stop & Shop Employees Raise $1,530 For "Food For Friends"

Employees of the Stop & Shop, Southern Artery, Quincy, recently completed their "Food For Friends" fund drive and raised $1,530 which was donated to South Shore

Elder Services (SSES) of Braintree for use in the Meals on Wheels program.

Edward Flynn, executive director of SSES said the money will be used to help pay for emergency and week-end meals for Quincy elders.

"Many of the elders that we provide home delivered meals to have no other support and they need assistance seven days a week," he said. "Our program receives federal and state funding but it is limited and really only covers the normal five day per week program. We rely on private donations to keep the week-end program going."

"This donation will enable us to provide more than 700 meals to homebound elders in Quincy," said Linda Fitzgibbon, nutrition director at SSES. The hot week-end meals are prepared by Quincy Hospital and delivered by volunteers. Frozen multi-meal packs are also distributed to certain elders.

The money was raised by employees through a variety of activities including a car wash and raffle. The Stop & Shop Corporation donated an additional $500 as a match to the employee efforts.

"This program is vital to the elders of Quincy" said Brian Buckley, director of the Quincy Council on Aging. "It's great to see the employees of Stop & Shop making this extra effort to help out."

11% Non-Union City Pay Hikes Asked By Sheets

of the mayor and City Council, Sheets said the law does not allow a pay increase for those elected officials between the time of a municipal election and the beginning of the subsequent term. Therefore, raises cannot be offered to the mayor or council until sometime in mid-January.

The mayor noted, however, that he would not want to even think about such raises until after that time anyway, since there will be five new councillors on the nine-member council. After all the city's elected officials are sworn-in next month, Sheets said, he may consider raises for the councillors and himself.

Sheets said he does not mind the fact that some city employees already make more money than the mayor.

"It's (mayor) a very demanding job, and sometimes you work 60, 70, or 80 hours a week," he said with a smile. "But I knew what the salary was when I first took the job, and I have no room to complain about it."

Regarding the city's union workers, Sheets said at press time that "tentative" agreements have been reached with the city's school teachers, clerical workers and superior police officers and that he expects an agreement to be reached soon with the police patrolmen. He added that he cannot discuss the details of the tentative agreements until they are ratified.

Raises for five other unions that accepted the city's offer of an 11 percent pay increase over three years already have been approved by the City Council.

Council Approves Property Tax Plan

state law every three years.

As a result of an increase in property values, the average Quincy homeowners' tax bill will increase $30 despite the fact that the mayor held the line on taxes this fiscal year. Last year, the increase was only $3.

However, the previous year when the city was unable to contain the tax rate because of budget restraints, the increase was $154.

The owner of an average single-family home, valued at $140,900 will pay $2,049 this fiscal year. Last year, the average homeowner's tax bill for a home valued at $138,450 increased from $2,016 to $2,019.

Sheets has attributed the new rates to a couple of factors, but mainly an increase in state aid that left the city with a cash surplus of $5.7 million as well as cost savings in government made possible by the cooperation between himself and the City Council.

Under the new rates, business owners will pay about 37 percent of Quincy's tax levy of $78.8 million. As was the case last year, the city has opted to tax commercial, industrial and personal property at 169 percent of the levy which is less than the maximum of 175 percent required under state law.

Commercial property accounts for about 22 percent of the total value of Quincy real estate.

Homeowners will pay about 63 percent of the levy, despite the fact that residential property accounts for about 78 percent of the total value of real estate in the city. The residential factor in the levy is 80.3561.

Property taxes are the largest single source of revenue for the city's budget, which was $135.8 million this year. Local receipts, including sewer and water bills, excise taxes and other fees amount to about $33.6 million, while state aid amounts to about $34 million.

Squantum Gardens, Naval Terrace Subcommittee Meeting

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Michael Bellotti announce the South Weymouth Naval Air Station Subcommittee will hold a public meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

The subcommittee was formed to plan for the re-use of Squantum Gardens & Naval Terrace in North Quincy which is expected to be vacated by the Navy by Sept. 1996 as a result of the closing of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station in Weymouth.

The agenda will include updates from the various committees that have met since last month's meeting, an overview of the recent tour of the Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace Facilities, a preview of an upcoming tour to an elderly non-profit corporate housing development in Springfield, and public comments and suggestions regarding the re-use planning process.

For further information, call Morrissey at 722-1494 or Bellotti at 722-2210.

3-5 To Be Named QC Finalists Selection Is Due Tonight

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Three to five finalists for the permanent presidency of Quincy College will be chosen by a presidential search committee tonight (Thursday) following a meeting in Boston.

But a timetable still has not been set on appointing a new president at the school, according to Atty. Theresa Lord, chairperson of the committee.

The college's Board of Governors has decided to appoint a permanent president to replace Interim President Linda Wilson, who announced earlier this year she will not seek a renewal of her one-year contract which expires Jan. 1. Members of the search committee were appointed by Board of Governors Chairman Daniel Raymond.

Lord, who also sits on the Board of Governors, said at press time that four of the eight semi-finalists for the position were interviewed Tuesday at the Harborside Hyatt Conference Center and Hotel in Boston. The other four will be interviewed today at the same location, she added.

Each candidate will be given 30 minutes to discuss their references with committee members and then will be interviewed for an additional 90 minutes, according to Lord.

Committee members already have spent seven to 10 days checking references, she noted, and will give full reports to the committee about what they have learned about each candidate before the group meets with him or her.

Lord said the committee was expected to meet until 6 or 7 p.m. Tuesday and even later tonight. The committee will select the list of three to five candidates--which will be submitted to the Board of Governors, who will interview finalists before selecting the president--following the meeting with the second group of semi-finalists, she added.

Lord also said that while she hopes the committee can stick as rigidly as possible to the interview schedule, it may be difficult since the selection of a new college president is a long and complicated process.

"I don't expect we're going to stay on that schedule completely," she

Sheets Supports Islands Plan

Mayor James Sheets has expressed support of a plan to create a Boston Harbor Islands National Recreation Area.

Sheets said at press time Tuesday he thinks the plan is a good one.

"I'm pleased there is such unified support for it," he said. "I think it's a project that captures people's imagination."

"The islands have a rich history, and there is a necessity to preserve them. And there's no mechanism better of preserving them, frankly, than the National Park Service."

Congressmen Gerry Studds and Peter Torkildsen announced Monday they would file legislation this week to create the recreation area. Sens. John Kerry and Edward Kennedy are introducing identical legislation in the Senate.

Sheets said although there are no formal plans yet for access to the proposed recreation area, preliminary plans he has seen call for Quincy to have access.

The city may even have two or more passages to the site, he added. Sheets said the most logical possibilities would be Marina Bay and the Fore River shipyard, but other private and city-owned locations along the city's 27 miles of seashore may also be available.

In the past, Studds also has spoken to Quincy officials about the possibility of linking the Adams National Historic Site with a Harbor Islands Recreation Area, but it is not yet certain whether that will happen. Sheets said such a plan--as well as any access routes--would have to be worked out with the National Park Service.

Overall, the mayor said he thinks the new recreation area may provide a boost for the city's eco-

Stand Up For Quincy

(Following are the lyrics of "Stand Up For Quincy," the prize winning song for the City's First Night celebration. It was written by Sharron Beals, executive director of the Beechwood Community Center. A $1,000 prize will be used for special needs senior citizens programs for Beechwood.) Story, photo on page 32.

Chorus
Stand Up! Stand Up!
For our City by the Bay
Stand up for Quincy
For Quincy Sing "Hooray!"
Verse 1
From Houghs Neck to Squantum,
From the Marina to the Hill,
We're proud to be in Quincy,
And we always will, so ...
Chorus

Verse 2
With pride we sing of our Town,
We sing for all to hear
Of all that we remember,
Of all that we hold dear, so ...
Chorus

Verse 3
The Quarry and the Shipyard,
The granite rocks so tall,
The honor of our Presidents,
Nurture one and all, so ...
Chorus
Verse 4
The stories of the ships and sea,
Our history of the air,
All link the generations,
To our City fair, so ...
Chorus
Verse 5
Fore River and the Brook do wind,
They lead to Quincy Bay,
Our dreams fly out beyond the Point
Our hearts know yesterday, so ...
Chorus

Verse 6
From Snug Harbor out to Wollaston
Our spirit is renowned
You feel it in Merrymount,
And in Germantown, so ...
Chorus
Verse 7
The family is our focus,
Celebrated in the Square,
And always in North Quincy,
With spirit in Montclair, so ...
Chorus
Verse 8
We celebrate our History,
We honor all that's past,
Together we are "family,"
For Quincy we stand fast, so ...
Chorus

Verse 9
The children see our future,
Our parents know the past,
The pride of our fair Quincy,
In our hearts will last, so ...
Chorus
Verse 10
As days and lives march forward,
The seasons come and go,
We'll always cherish Quincy,
And the life we know, so ...
Chorus
Stand Up! Stand Up!
For our City by the Bay
Stand up for Quincy
For Quincy Sing "Hooray!"

Sheets Supports Plan For Harbor Islands

nomy and tourism.

"I think, for us, it's going to depend on how we plug into the system," he said.

The Congressmen made the announcement at a news conference at the New England Aquarium in Boston, flanked by Gov. William Weld, who praised the public-private partnership backing the project. Representatives of Boston Mayor Thomas Menino and prominent business and environmental leaders also indicated their strong support for the proposal.

"Today, the governor, the senators, the mayor and area leaders have demonstrated the broad, bipartisan, commitment of all members of the public-private partnership that will lead to the success of the National Recreation Area," said Studds. "This is a paradigm for national parks of the future."

Under the legislation, the 31 Harbor Islands would continue to be owned by state, local and private interests, but they would be managed by the National Park Service under cooperative agreements with the owners. Private and public partnerships, through the Island Alliance, a non-profit group specifically created to increase support for the National Recreation Area, would raise funds to pay for the estimated $4 million annual operating costs in the project's early years. The federal government would contribute no more than $1 for every $3 from other sources.

"The Boston Harbor Islands initiative is an example of how government and the private sector can work together to achieve positive results," said Torkildsen. "The public-private partnership plans to invest at least three private dollars for every one federal taxpayer dollar."

"This is a unique resource, and one that will require a sustained public-private partnership, that we at the Bank of Boston are very happy to join," Jackson added. "The cooperation within the public sector has been incredible. Now it's time for the business community to step up to the plate, following the outstanding lead of our public officials. Together, we can make this a home run for inner-city school children, families, local businesses and visitors to the region."

Studds and Torkildsen said they decided to propose the legislation now so that the House National Parks Subcommittee, on which they both serve, will be able to hold hearings early next year.

For three years, Studds has been a prime mover in making the Harbor Islands a national park. He has worked closely with private citizens and public officials at all levels of government—including Torkildsen, Kerry, Kennedy, Weld, Menino and Congressman Joe Moakley—to conserve the natural resource and realize its economic potential as a boost for tourism throughout the entire region.

SS Elder Services Planning Christmas Meal Program

South Shore Elder Services is planning its annual Christmas Meal Program for its homebound clients in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Milton, Hingham, Hull, Holbrook, Randolph, Scituate, Cohasset and Norwell.

SSES, a private non-profit agency, will coordinate volunteer families who would like to share a part of their holiday meal with an elder in their own town who lives alone and would otherwise be without a holiday meal.

Anyone who is wishing to "Share-a-Meal" from their home or to deliver meals provided by South Shore Elder Services Nutrition Program may call Susan Lambropoulos at 848-3910.

Shaw's To Purchase Quincy Oil Property?

City officials said Tuesday they had heard reports Shaw's Supermarkets either had purchased or was interested in purchasing the Quincy Oil Co. property at 70 Quincy Ave.

But at press time Tuesday they were unable to confirm the reports and Shaw's officials could not be reached for comment.

The vacant office building is located on a parcel immediately adjacent to the Shaw's store on Quincy Avenue, leaving some who have heard reports of a purchase or interest of purchase to speculate the company may plan to expand the supermarket.

Mayor James Sheets said he has heard that Shaw's is interested in the Quincy Oil site but added he has received nothing in writing to confirm that. He added, however, that based on what he has heard, the plan makes sense.

"If it works for Shaw's, it works for me," said Sheets. "That building is now vacant, and if [a Shaw's purchase] makes it more convenient for people to shop, that's fine with me. It would seem to me, from a conceptual point of view, it works."

Planning Director Richard Meade said the owner of the Quincy Oil Co. building is still listed as Bruton Development Co., the same as before it became vacant. He added that he has heard the property actually has been purchased, but could not offer confirmation.

Board of Assessors Chairman Marion Fantuc-chio said she also has Bruton Development listed as the owner and was under the impression the property has been purchased, but did not know for sure.

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino said he has heard there is interest in the property but added that he would prefer to reserve further comment until he can find out more.

At press time, neither the building owner nor Shaw's spokesperson Brian Leahy could be reached for comment.

Students To Sing At Bank Of Boston

Students from local schools have been invited to sing next week at Bank of Boston's office at 1400 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Among those who will participate and the dates they will sing: Parker Elementary School students, Monday, Dec. 18 from 10 to 11 a.m.; Central Middle School Chorus, Tuesday, Dec. 19 from 11 a.m. to noon; and nursery school students from Kids Connection, Wednesday, Dec. 20 from 10:30 to 11 a.m.

Refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

Public Hearing Dec. 18 On Shipyard Rezoning

The City Council will hold a public hearing Monday, Dec. 18 at 7:15 p.m. regarding the proposed rezoning of land at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy Point.

The council has proposed that the land, currently zoned Planned Unit Development (PUD), be rezoned to Industrial B to make it easier for a Greek shipbuilder interested in setting up operations at the site to do so.

Councillors have indicated they will have the land rezoned to PUD if for some reason the shipbuilder does not end up building ships at the site.

SMOKING OUT COLON CANCER

The link between smoking and lung cancer has long been recognized by virtually everyone except the tobacco industry, but what about smoking and colon cancer? Two separate studies with subjects totaling almost 200,000 are concluding that cigarette smoking can lead to colon cancer as well. The men and women who started smoking before they reached age 30 and were pack-a-day smokers for more than ten years were at least twice as likely as non-smokers to develop colorectal cancer. The carcinogens found in cigarette smoke reach the colon both through the bloodstream and by being swallowed. Once in the colon, the carcinogens eventually do their damage early on; quitting smoking doesn't seem to lower the colorectal cancer risk.

P.S. Quitting smoking DOES lower other health risks, including those of heart disease and lung cancer.

No matter how you look at it, smoking is a bad investment to your health. Was That The First Salvo?

Did Tim Cahill just fire the opening salvo in the next mayor's race?

Some think he may have in his criticism of Mayor James Sheets' plan to give some department heads and members of his office staff bigger raises than the 11 percent most city employees—union and non-union—are in line for.

SHEETS

Sheets feels those singled out to receive the bigger increases deserve them for their special abilities and for working extra hours. And says they are needed to keep talented people from being lured from City Hall to greener pastures in the private sector.

Sheets cited Kathy Yaeger, who recently resigned as personnel director to accept a higher salaried job with Harvard Pilgrim Health Care as an example of good people being stolen away.

But Cahill counters:

"I just don't think it's fair to give some employees more than the 11 percent most employees are going to get."

"As for people leaving, we have to be realistic that we cannot match the private sector dollar for dollar."

"Profit making private companies can afford the higher salaries. When we try to keep up, it comes out of the taxpayers' pockets."

"I think there are a lot of qualified people in the city who would gladly take some of these jobs at the current salaries."

Cahill says he appreciates the fact that a mayor would want talented and loyal people around him and will keep that in mind as he looks the plan over closely before voting on it.

For Sheets and Cahill to see things differently is nothing new.

Right now they also have another disagreement: the proposed Quincy Center Concourse. Sheets backs it wholeheartedly. Cahill opposes it wholeheartedly.

"It's a waste of money," Cahill says. "It won't do anything to help Quincy Center."

Cahill says he doesn't want to be looked on as Sheets' critic-in-residence in the City Council.

"I don't go looking for fights," he says. "But, I'm no shrinking violet. I will differ with him on certain matters and I will say so."

Well, is the pay raise issue the opening salvo in the 1997 mayoral campaign?

"I wouldn't say that," Cahill says. "But you can read what you want into it."

And some people are doing just that. Cahill has said that this council term coming up—his fifth—will be his last.

So, will he be running for mayor in two years? "That's a possibility," he says. "But maybe I might run for the council again."

Cahill has been somewhat of a Lone Ranger in the council but he thinks that is going to change.

"I don't think I will stand out as much in the new council as I do now," he says. "The new council I think will be more outspoken than the present one. So when I speak out it won't be so noticeable."

IN JUST 19 more days, Ted DeCristofaro will be a former city councillor. And after 14 years occupying the Ward 2 seat, that is going to take him time to get used to.

"Sure I'm going to miss it," he says. "I would be lying if I said I wouldn't."

He really enjoyed serving as a councillor.

Even now he is at City Hall virtually every weekday morning from around 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

"Got to take care of my constituents," he says.

DeCristofaro, who decided to call it a career because of health reasons, has no intentions of parking himself in a rocking chair.

"Oh, I'll stay busy," he says.

He is a founder of the Ward 2 Civic Association and has been a board member all these 26 years. He says he will become more active in the association.

He is also looking forward to putting around the mini-park named two years ago for him at Southern Artery, Baxter Ave. and Washington St.

IF YOU'RE WONDERING who's featured on Brian

Buckley's Celebrity Christmas Card this year it's Ray Charles.

The Quincy Council on Aging director has been getting celebrities to pose with him for his Christmas cards for some thing like 23 years now.

How does he do it? Well, he checks the newspapers to see who is appearing where, picks one out, and tracks him or her down.

He found Ray Charles at the North Shore Music Circus this summer and followed his limo to a hotel in Danvers where Charles was staying. Buckley caught up to him outside the lobby and asked him to pose. "Sure," Charles replied. "That's fine."

Charles joins such other Buckley Christmas card celebrities as: Shaquille O'Neal, Johnny Cash, Bobby Hull, Lee Trevino, Rafer Johnson, Chris Ford, Bill Fitch, Monty Hall, Marjorie Vincent (Miss America 1990), Jerry (The Beaver) Mathers, Jack Nicklaus, Reggie Jackson, George (Norm) Wendt, Burt Reynolds, Bob Hope, Bo Derek, Carroll O'Connor, Bobby Orr, Rodney Dangerfield and Nick Nolte.

He's only had two turn him down: Penn State football coach Joe Paterno (it was just before a game) and Gene Autry.

Two who did pose weren't that crazy about the idea: Dangerfield and Wendt.

"The most friendly of all," says Buckley "was Burt Reynolds who was in Boston filming a movie. He not only willingly posed but stayed and talked with me for about 15 minutes."

ATTY. GEORGE BURKE, one of UMass's all-time basketball greats, invited Senator John Kerry to be his guest at the recent Minutemen-Boston College game.

And they got together with Senate President Billy Bulger, the new UMass president, at a reception.

All three are products of Boston College Law School. So who did they root for at the game?

Burke was going with his former team, UMass. Kerry appeared to be with B.C. And Bulger, the master of politics (and diplomacy?) looked like he was playing it close to the vest.

Burke thinks UMass could go all the way if there aren't serious injuries to key players.

OBSERVATION from the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they got it): It isn't the load that weighs us down, it's the way we carry it.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1926 postcard view of the Welcome Young playground in Atlantic. The picture was taken from the entrance on what was then Old Colony Street (now Young Street). The building across the park on Sagamore Street is still extant and pretty much unchanged. Hidden from view to its left is the old Atlantic post office building now the Boilermaker Union's office. Also hidden just behind the trees on the left was the old Atlantic railroad depot. The swings and seesaws were long ago relocated to another part of the field which is now being upgraded again. Both the playground and the street alongside it were named after City Councillor Welcome G. Young who represented Ward 6 in the 1920's.

READERS FORUM

The Concourse: Strike While The Iron's Hot

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a commercial real estate broker in the City of Quincy, I know that location is the most important element in conducting a successful retail operation.

With location comes accessibility. If consumers have limited accessibility to your establishment, your business will not thrive. The proposed Quincy Center Concourse will provide much-needed passage directly into the retail district.

With years of struggling to get people to the Center, the mayor and Quincy leaders have developed what could be the most beneficial improvement to our city's economic development in 20 years. The proposed concourse will bridge Burgin Parkway, opposite Star Market, connect at Parkingway and continue to Hancock St. The second phase of the project will connect Hancock Street to Mechanic Street.

Quincy Center had been known by South Shore consumers as a shopping mecca. It is now known as the most difficult retail district to get to. People have an easier time getting to Faneuil Hall Marketplace than they do to Quincy Square. In addition to helping out existing businesses, the concourse will most certainly attract new retailers to Quincy. Hopefully, more high-profile and desirable establishments will want to locate in Quincy Center.

We must strike while the iron's hot. The concourse must be built while we still have the money and ability. It would be a shame to pass up such a golden opportunity, as we may never get another chance such as this. This project must be supported by both businesses and residents.

I recently relocated my business to the heart of Quincy Center and I believe in what the concourse will accomplish. I am committed to the city and am in full support of the mayor's efforts to construct the Concourse.

Quincy has taken great strides in its revitalization efforts, and I call for all individuals to show their support of the proposed Quincy Center Concourse if they wish to see Quincy reach the stature it so richly deserves.

A Tribute To Jeff Bertman

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The fine writeup on Page 10 of your Nov. 22 edition on the Bertman family and their Rogers Jewelry company did not go unnoticed, not even by me in Manhattan.

How nice indeed to see a fitting tribute, and after I read the article I wished I had written it.

About a year ago, I was visiting Quincy and went to Rogers Jewelry to get a battery for one watch and an estimate for repairs on another watch, which was my best and very, very favorite. I left my favorite watch for repair and it had to be sent to an outside factory.

After being shipped from the factory, it never was received by me. Somehow, along the way, it was lost or stolen. I was very sad because I really liked that watch.

But Jeff Bertman took over with such grace and professionalism, managed not only to make an exchange but went far beyond that. Considering that I hadn't even purchased anything, and the back-and-forth with the factory, the insuring and shipping, I would say that the day I dropped by Rogers Jewelry was the beginning of a lot of inconvenience to them.

But they treated me as if I were their best custommer. I will never forget the considerate of Jeff Bertman and now I see, from your article, what an exceptional person he is.

I hope everyone in Quincy buys at Rogers Jewelry this holiday season. They have to be the best anywhere!

Quincy's Yesterdays

Burke Asks Delay In Wollaston Rezoning Change

By PAUL HAROLD

From his hospital bed at Quincy City Hospital where he was recovering from pneumonia, Councillor George Burke asked the City Council to delay the proposed rezoning on Wollaston Hill.

Noting that emotions surrounding the issue were too high, he suggested that the matter be dealt with by the new council. Burke was leaving the council to become full-time district attorney.

The one block area affected was bound by Grand View, Newport, Warren and Lincoln Avenues. The rezoning would change the block from residence C to residence B.

PANEL TO SEARCH FOR COLLEGE SITE

Mayor James McIntyre named a seven-person committee to search for a site in the city for a new community college.

Those named were: Architect Edgar Wood, Robert Krovitz, president of the Community College Association; Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Gilbert Crofts, general secretary of the YMCA; Maurice Daly, assistant superintendent of schools; Dr. Charles Djerf, member of the School Committee; and Hugo Saluti, dean of administration at Quincy Junior College.

McIntyre said, "We have had opportunities in the past to acquire sufficient funds for establishing a state-sponsored community college in Quincy, but because of the failure to find a proper location we have always been bypassed."

WEST QUINCY AIRPORT PLANNED

Ben Sheftel, chairman of the Quincy Airport Commission, said the commission was awaiting federal and state approval of funds for an air industrial park in West Quincy.

The proposed facility would be located on a 500-acre site near the quarries, about two-thirds of a mile west of Willard St. If built, it would create $50 million to $100 million in taxable industrial properties.

Plans Underway For Crane Library Auction

Plans are underway for a spring auction to raise funds to renovate and expand the Thomas Crane Public Library.

The auction committee, chaired by Frank and Sandra McCauley and comprised of community volunteers and business and civic leaders, met recently to formulate plans for the auction scheduled for April 11, 1996.

Auction items already donated include a German grandfather clock, a collection of antique dolls, antique oak filing cabinets, and a weekend at a New Hampshire chalet.

To donate an item or service to the auction or to join the Auction Committee, call Jane Granstrom at the library, at 376-1301.

Our Policy On ENGAGEMENT PHOTOGRAPHS And Wedding ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE QUINCY SUN will continue to publish PHOTOGRAPHS with ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENTS as it always has.

THE SUN will also continue to use in wedding ANNOUNCEMENTS, THE NAMES of ALL MEMBERS of the wedding party including MAID or MATRON of HONOR, BEST MAN, PARENTS, BRIDESMAIDS, USHERS, flower girls and RINGBEARERS, ETC.

WE invite ENGAGED couples to submit photos with their ANNOUNCEMENTS, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. THE SUN can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your ENGAGEMENT photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to THE SUN with the reminder that THE SUN is continuing its policy of publishing ENGAGEMENT photos.

THE SUN also publishes ARTICLES and PHOTOS of wedding ANNIVERSARIES, beginning with the 25th ANNIVERSARY.

And, as in the past, THERE IS NO CHARGE.

Donald Olson Named Bank Of Braintree President, CEO

The Bank of Braintree announces President Donald C. Olson will become president and chief executive officer.

The announcement comes during the most successful period in the bank's history as it celebrates its partnership with The Co-operative Bank, almost tripling its size and positioning itself as the premier South Shore community bank.

"My career with the bank began more than 25 years ago when its assets were less than $30 million," said Olson, a longtime Braintree resident who will succeed Winthrop Sargent IV as chief executive officer. Olson and Sargent have worked together for the past 15 years, accomplishing many goals, the most important being the commercial lending success of a strong community bank.

Olson said he has committed himself personally, as well as professionally, to the community. Having been involved with many charitable and civic organizations in the past, he is currently a director of the South Shore Hospital and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

"Community involvement is a large part of community banking, a philosophy that I sincerely believe is important to the success of Bank of Braintree," said Olson. "Even though the Bank has grown tremendously since my early days here, I still see the personal relationships between our customers and employees as vital in a time when only the strongest banks will survive."

A new holding company called Walden Bancorp. Inc., will serve as the owner of two subsidiary banks, Bank of Braintree and The Co-operative Bank of Concord. The transaction will transfer seven of the Co-operative's existing South Shore banking offices and approximately $290 million of deposits into the Bank of Braintree operation.

The Bank of Braintree will grow to almost $515 million in assets, with nine banking offices serving Norfolk and Plymouth counties. The holding company, with approximately $1 billion in total assets, will be headquartered in Acton, with David E. Bradbury as chairman, president, and chief executive officer.

Bradbury said, "We are delighted that this transaction has been completed. Now each bank can focus on the expansion of their commercial and retail banking activities with an even stronger commitment to their respective communities."

This affiliation with The Cooperative Bank of Concord is very unique in that the Bank of Braintree will operate autonomously on the South Shore. The current customers and employees from both banks will benefit. With the additional resources, Bank of Braintree will have the ninth largest deposit share in Norfolk and Plymouth counties, with banking offices from Quincy to Hanover.

Ron E. Zooleck, president and CEO of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, credited Olson for much of the success. "I've known Don for many years and worked closely with him as an officer on my board. The success of business in this region is depending upon strong leadership, and I cannot think of a better person to lead Bank of Braintree into the future," said Zooleck.

"This is a great opportunity for Bank of Braintree and we are completely prepared to take full advantage of it," said Olson. "Things are just going to keep getting better."

Her name was Esther Sanger and her phone line was open 24 hours a day. Offering hope.

In 1979, when her first handwritten notes were hung up at churches and cemeteries, laundromats and bars—all the places where lonely, desperate people go—she began getting calls from people in crisis. Esther took her compassion to the streets—going out into the night to feed and comfort and give shelter.

Today the Quincy Crisis Center continues the work that Esther Sanger began. Scores of volunteers and dedicated professionals serve thousands of hot meals every year, distribute food every week to needy families and connect people to solutions for their personal crises.

The QCC's sister program partner, the Mary Martha Learning Center, houses homeless mothers, offers training in life development skills, provides education in parenting and home management, and gives them reason to hope for a better future for their children. This compassionate work is our legacy—to find the lost, to heal the broken, to feed the hungry. As an agency of compassion, we have determined to continue the vision of our founder and her courageous commitment to "do justice, love mercy and walk humbly with our God."

QISC To Receive $12,800 For After-School Program

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC)/Quincy High School program, "Quincy Hunger Education Learning Program" (Q-HELP) is among the winning proposals for the new state After School Community-based Service Learning Program.

As a result, the QISC, which submitted one of the 16 applications selected from a field of 70, will receive $12,800 to operate an after-school, community-based service learning program addressing hunger as a local problem.

The announcement was made this week by the Massachusetts National and Community Service Commission (MNCSC) and the Massachusetts Department of Education.

The Q-HELP program is organized around three components: education, service and reflection. First, its 25 participants will be educated on the issue of hunger and they, in turn, will educate and organize the community on the topic. They will then provide direct service to the community, including serving meals, staffing local hunger-focused agencies, and planning a hunger awareness event.

Finally, participants will reflect on the causes of hunger, their personal growth and experience, and consider strategies to end hunger in their community.

The program will be partnering with numerous other institutions including Bentley College, the Protestant Social Service Bureau, and the Quincy Crisis Center.

"We are excited to be involved with the high school in what looks to be a very rewarding experience for all involved," said QISC Executive Director Joseph Finn. He added that Martha Turner, a faculty member at Quincy High School, was responsible for the design of the curriculum for Q-HELP.

Community-based Service Learning provides an after-school opportunity for young persons to get a more in-depth view of their community and the problems facing its citizens and agencies.

Red Cross Seeking Disaster Relief Volunteers

The Quincy office of the American Red Cross, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy Center, is seeking volunteers to assist in disaster relief efforts in the South Shore area.

In addition to volunteers who want to be on the disaster scene, there is a need for those to work "behind the scenes" doing office and committee work.

For more information, call Dennis Dockham, vice chairman of operation at 375-0700, ext. 361 or Helen Crowley, volunteer coordinator at 770-2600.

Local photographers of all levels are invited to submit pictures for a photographic exhibition which will be part of the city's First Night celebration.

The exhibit, to be held at City Hall, is sponsored by Presidential Camera and Pentax in association with FineLight Photography Studios, Photo Quick of Quincy, The Quincy Sun and South Shore Camera Club.

Any photographer may submit any number of photographic prints up to four, in any combination of color and black and white.

No size restrictions are imposed. However, entrants should consider staircases and doorways which may become obstacles for larger works.

A juried show is included as part of the 1996 Quincy First Night Exhibition. A $5 entry fee is required for judging.

Judges will select best of category, and a Pentax IQZoom EZY 35 mm camera kit (retail value $220) will be awarded to best of show. Categories will include people and portraits, sports and action, landscape and nature, architecture and abstract.

Divisions are made as professional, amateur and student.

Submissions may be dropped off at Presidential Camera, 1422 Hancock St., Quincy, during normal business hours. All work must be received by Dec. 28.

Works will be ready to pick up on Jan. 2.

For an entry form or more information regarding the show, call Presidential Camera at 471-1437. For more information about First Night in Quincy, call 376-1071.

NQ Holiday Festival Drawing Set For Dec. 22

The North Quincy Business and Professional Association (NQBPA) will hold its Holiday Festival Drawing Friday, Dec. 22 at noon.

Chairperson Lucky Trifolios of the Union Cafe has distributed thousands of raffle tickets to participating merchants. Giveaway items include: coffee machines, gift certificates, a camera, an espresso machine, children's handmade sweater, NBA-style basketball, 14-karat angel earrings, three pounds of shrimp and more.

Raffle tickets are available at participating stores during regular business hours and must be filled out before the Dec. 22 event.

Drawings will be held at the individual stores.

Silver-Haired Legislature Meeting At Tobin Towers

The Massachusetts Silver-Haired Legislature will meet Saturday at 10 a.m. at Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., Wollaston.

Winners will be notified by phone.

The North Quincy business district is decorated with holiday wreaths mounted last week by NQBPA Decoration Chairperson Paul Picariello of Accent Upholstery.

All senior citizens are urged to attend. The legislature currently needs an office representative for the First Norfolk District.

Family Commission, Council To Meet Dec. 20

The Quincy Commission on the Family and Family Council will meet Wednesday, Dec. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room, City Hall annex.

Mayor James Sheets, the Family Commission and Family Council have invited some 80 providers to attend the meeting and to share with the commission the various family programs that their organizations presently provide. The family resources which are identified will be included in a comprehensive family commission service directory.

EMERGENCY

We are collecting non-perishable food, personal care items, new toys and new clothing to benefit our neighbors in Methuen whose lives have been devastated by a major fire there that has left thousands of people unemployed, many injured and perhaps some fatalities as well. Please bring your donations to GALLAGHER REAL ESTATE 12 Beale Street, Quincy, (Wollaston Center next to the movie theater) along with your name and address so that we can thank you for your help. Donated items can be dropped off between 9-2 on Thursday and Friday, 9-5 on Saturday, December 16 or between 12-5 on Sunday, December 17, 1995. There is also a basket at WOLLASTON MARKET on Hancock Street for these emergency items. For further information please call 376-0444. Thank you.

QC Finalists Selection Is Due Tonight

said, "I expect it's going to be a really, really grueling couple of days."

Lord said she cannot go into much detail about the eight semi-finalists but added that the names of the three to five finalists will be made public later this week. She expressed enthusiasm, however, about the eight candidates.

"They all look like excellent candidates," said Lord, who added that each of the semi-finalists has community college experience as well as a college degree appropriate for what is required of a Quincy College president.

Lord has also said in the past that there is at least one woman on the list and that two of the six finalists are from Massachusetts and six from out of state.

Regarding a timetable for the selection of the new president, Lord said that would be impossible to project because the five finalists will have to schedule meetings with college faculty and student groups as well as with the Board of Governors. She added that she may have a better idea following the board's Dec. 20 meeting.

Applications from 90 candidates interested in becoming president of Quincy College were submitted last month. The search committee met for four-and-a-half hours Nov. 16 to narrow that pool--which even included an applicant from as far away as Guam--down to 18. The following day, the committee met for seven hours to bring that number down to eight.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

By ART FOLEY

Quite often one of the major criteria when pricing a home is the number of bedrooms and baths.

Obviously, this is an oversimplification of a very complex process as there is much more to the value of a home than just bedrooms and baths. Having said that, I thought it would be of interest to run some statistics using bedrooms and baths as a criteria for selling price.

The accompanying chart shows houses sold in Quincy Jan. 1, 1994 through Dec. 2, 1995.

In general, some things are apparent. In today's market it's not functional having only one bath. This is especially true in a home with two levels.

The most dramatic difference is between two- and three-bedroom homes. There is a 37 percent increase in price from a two-to three-bedroom home. A three-bedroom versus a four-bedroom only shows a 10 percent change.

When bathrooms enter the picture, that can really exaggerate the situation. A three-bedroom, one-bath sells for $130,000 while a four-bedroom, one-bath sells for $132,000. However, the difference is much more dramatic between a three-bedroom, one-bath and a four-bedroom, two-and-a-half-bath: $130,000 versus $213,000.

While it's common sense that more bedrooms require more baths, the statistics bear this out. A four- or five-bedroom home is not functional with just one bath and the cost to add a bath in those circumstances makes a lot of sense.

There are many variables that are unique to every home and it's impossible to isolate a few and say that they alone account for the differences in average selling price. But the chart can be useful in

Realtors' 'Adopt-A-Family' Program Brightens Season For Needy Children

The holiday season will be brighter this year for more than 80 South Shore children as a result of the South Shore Association of Realtors' (SSAR) annual "Adopt-a-Family" program. Approximately 40 real estate companies participate in the program, which provides gifts of new children's clothing to needy families. William Geller, chairman of SSAR's Community Service Committee, said the program is unique in that each real estate company buys items of clothing for a particular child.

"We don't just buy a bunch of clothing and then parcel it out," Geller said. "Each realtor knows in general who they are buying for. For example, one realtor will be assigned to buy clothing for a four-year-old boy, size 5, while another will buy clothing for a 10-year-old girl, size 12.

"It really makes the program hit home when you know that a certain child is going to benefit from your actions."

Geller said "Adopt-a-Family" recipients are referred to SSAR by local community and social service agencies. SSAR then assigns a child or children to participating realtors, who purchase four new items of clothing per child. The clothing is delivered to SSAR's Quincy headquarters. From there, Geller delivers the items to the community agencies for distribution.

This is the fourth year that SSAR realtors have organized the Adopt-a-Family program, according to James Stamos, association president.

"Realtors are out in the neighborhoods and working in the community on a daily basis, so a project that benefits families is a natural thing for us to be involved in," Stamos said.

The South Shore Association of Realtors is a professional organization comprised of more than 750 realtors from Boston to Cape Cod.

QUINCY'S CHRIS HAIDUL, left, runs down an Abington player in an effort to get the puck. Haidul led the Quincy offense with two goals and one assist as the Presidents won the opener, 5-3.

Sophs Haidul, Verlicco Spark Presidents Quincy Rides Wave, Wins Hockey Opener

By KERRY BYRNE

One game does not make a season.

That's the message from Quincy High School hockey coach Bob Sylvia following his club's 5-3 win over Abington in the opening game of the 1995-96 season.

"I think a win is a win, so give the kids credit," said Sylvia. "But there's still a lot of questions we have to answer. I'm not yet convinced our lines and personnel situation are the best. We were lucky to get out of here with a win but that won't happen in the Old Colony League."

The game against the Green Wave of the South Shore League was scheduled to be followed by a home game last night (Wednesday) versus Old Colony League opponent Taunton. A win against the Tigers would put the Presidents in position to test themselves at Weymouth Saturday night.

The Wildcats again may be one of the premier teams in the OCL. That game should give Quincy a better idea of where it stands in a league that is less top-heavy than it has been in recent years.

The Presidents played strong through the first two periods against Abington, taking a 5-1 lead into the final session.

The Green Wave jumped on top, 1-0, in the first when Jamie Foley slammed a power play goal past Quincy netminder John Masone (19 saves).

Derick McTomney answered the call for the Presidents at 12:00 of the period. He was assisted by sophomores Steve Verlicco and Chris Haidul.

Verlicco sparked the heavy attack that led to the equalizer when he broke up a 3-on-2 bid with a vicious shoulder check which flattened an Abington attacker. The Verlicco Pancake Count stands at eight after one game.

The Presidents dominated the second period, scoring four goals while holding the Green Wave without a shot for the first 8:37 of the period. The first Abington shot came on a power play and was handled cleanly by Masone.

Junior co-captain Mark Glynn gave Quincy the lead at 3:34 when he raced down the right boards, crashed to the net with a defender draped on him and quickly shoveled the puck past Green Wave goalie Jared Sullivan to make the score 2-1.

Haidul gave the Presidents a 3-1 advantage with a spin move from one side of the net to other, beating Sullivan with a slam past the stick side. Verlicco and Langille assisted.

Mark Regan netted the fourth Quincy goal at 6:18 when he tipped in a Langille shot from the point. Brad McCauley was also credited with an assist.

Haidul posted the final Presidents goal with 27 seconds to play in the middle period when he took a long pass from Langille, broke in on Sullivan and beat him with a backhand to the short side.

Quincy took it easy in the third period, giving up two quick goals to Greg Howell and Alan Kerr at 9:53 and 10:06.

"There were spots where we looked very good and spots where we looked like we didn't know what we were doing out there," said Sylvia. "But we got the win and we got Taunton coming up. That will give us two games to get our feet wet before we meet the iron of the schedule."

UP FRONT

Anyone who drives a front-drive automobile should be familiar with the fact that constant velocity (CV) joints are the primary drivetrain components. Their function is to provide power transfer to the front wheels, as well as allow for steering and suspension movement. Packed in grease and covered with rubber boots, the CV joints should be regularly inspected for leaks and cracks. In the event that the boots deteriorate and begin to leak grease, they will splatter grease on the inside of the wheel and on the suspension. Evidence of this splattering will not be obvious from the outside of the vehicle and must be viewed from underneath. For this reason, it is a good idea to have the CV joints on front-drive cars inspected at every auto change or 3,000 miles. Replacing a boot immediately after a leak or crack is found costs a fraction of what it would otherwise cost to replace a CV joint.

HINT: The sound of popping or clicking noises when tuning, or a clunk while accelerating may be indicative of the need of a new CV joint in a front-drive car.

Don't hesitate to ask any questions about your CV joints or about anything else related to your car when you bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. We have modern test equipment, the right parts and the best service technicians available in the area. Let's get acquainted at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm.

Youth Hockey

Squirt B's Dominate League

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B team, sponsored by Continental Cablevision, kept its undefeated streak going Saturday at Boston University's Walter Brown Arena with a 5-1 demolition of Tri-County.

The Quincy Squirt B's have outscored their opponents 90-12 this season and are unbeaten in Greater Boston League play.

Netminder Nick (The Brick) Manning was again in control for the Quincy club as he turned away all but one shot.

Josh Giordani opened the scoring when he converted a short, crisp pass from Big Bad Bob Donovan.

Quincy controlled the flow of play thanks to the work of defenseman Ryan McFarland and Richard Stone who kept firm control of the blue line. Ken Young and Liam Powers put on quite a passing performance in the offensive end.

Three goals blew the game open in the second period. Sean Moriarty and Jake O'Donnell worked the puck in to a perfectly-positioned Pat Clifford who slammed it home for the score.

Dan Sullivan lit the lamp following a pass from Giordani for the second score of the period. Giordani followed with an unassisted tally as Quincy took a 4-1 lead into the final period.

Justin Swierk was the lone scorer in the third as he capitalized on the stick work of Matt Allewa and Brendan Craig. Rob Mooney was impressive in the offensive zone.

Wrestling

NQ Led By New Coach, Small Group Of Veterans

The North Quincy High School wrestling team will take to the mat with a handful of returning veterans and a new coach in Mike Mauriello.

Mauriello (Class of 1987) grappled for the Red Raiders and recently served as wrestling coach at the South Shore YMCA. He replaces Steve Joyce who led the North Quincy wrestling team for 19 years.

"I have a tough-looking bunch of kids coming out this year," said Mauriello. "They're hard workers and very aggressive. They really impressed me at our scrimmage in Waltham (Saturday). Some of our rookies surprised me as well."

The Red Raiders were scheduled to open the season yesterday (Wednesday) at home against Randolph at 7 p.m. They travel to Marshfield Saturday for a 10 a.m. meet with Whitman-Hanson and Needham.

Mauriello has 18 kids on the team and only seven wrestled last year.

"I wouldn't want to speculate on how we're going to do," said the coach. "We have some good athletes and could surprise people, or our inexperience might show through."

Leading the North Quincy matmen are senior co-captains Jason Gibson and Joe West. Gibson will wrestle at 119 pounds while West will handle the chores at 140 pounds.

Senior Ed Ford (112) and junior Sean O'Toole (125) are also expected to help carry the Red Raiders. Ford, O'Toole and Gibson each appeared in the state tournament last season.

The three other returning veterans are senior Dan O'Donnell (145), junior Jose Villaneuva (140 or 145) and senior Sean Hughes (189 or 215).

"The light weights are very strong up to about 152 pounds," said Mauriello. He will rely on what is, for the most part, an untested crew to handle the heavier weights. This becomes a more daunting task in light of the new 215-pound class added in Massachusetts high school wrestling this year.

"I think the new class takes away the athletic heavyweights," said Mauriello.

Among the newcomers to the North Quincy wrestling program are freshman Chris Barra, junior Sean Donovan, Andrew Cameron and Neil Costa.

"With our smaller team I'm going to have a bunch of kids probably wrestling up," said Mauriello. "I'd rather have them wrestling where it is more natural for them than to have them sucking down weight to wrestle light."

Basketball

Things Looking Up For Noble, Quincy Girls

near the mid-point or in the second half of the season.

She is joined by returning starters Katie Gallagher, Angela Hogrell and Erin Barry. Junior Teuta Hajrizaj will get the nod at center.

Gallagher, a senior point guard, will run the offense and is expected to be tough defensively. Hogrell, a junior forward, will provide muscle in the paint and along the glass.

Barry, a sophomore forward, is one of the best young athletes in Quincy High School. She was recently named all-scholastic in volleyball and placed third in the shot put in the OCL at the league's track meet. "We're expecting a lot from her," said Noble.

Gallagher and Connolly are the captains.

Seniors Toni Kabilian (guard), Julie Simon (forward), Mary Hogrell (forward), Heather Wakelin (guard) and Kelly Spaur (guard), juniors Julie McLaughlin (forward), Kerry Sullivan (center), Kim Mackey and Kathy Swanton, and sophomore Kerry Duffy (guard) add much-needed depth to the Presidents lineup.

Sullivan has been one of the surprises of practice. "She worked extremely hard in the off-season and she has good athletic skills," said Noble.

Three girls are 6 feet tall or better (Hajrizaj, McLaughlin and Sullivan) and the team took part in an off-season league, adding an air of optimism to the Presidents camp.

"For the first time in a long time the girls played together in a league over the summer. The benefits are already apparent and they'll be better for it," said Noble.

"The program seems to be going in the right direction," he added.

Tough Road Ahead As Quincy Replaces 8 Starters

It may be a down season for the Quincy High School wrestling team as it lost eight starters from last year's Sectional championship team.

A new 215-pound weight class added to Massachusetts high school wrestling will also hamper the Presidents chances as they are struggling with numbers in the upper weights.

However, Quincy boasts a superb nucleus in senior tri-captains John Cheverie, Mark Froehlich and Rich Testa.

"Our numbers are disappointing and expectations are not as high this year," said 10th-year head coach Lou Venturelli, who hesitates to call this a rebuilding year for one of Quincy High's most successful athletic programs. "But I do expect big things from our senior tri-captains. All three are in their fourth year of wrestling at QHS."

The Presidents kicked off the 1995-96 campaign last night (Wednesday) at Marshfield. They participate in the Wayland Tourney Saturday. Quincy takes part in four road meets and in tournaments in Lowell and Sanford, Maine before hosting its first meet Saturday, Jan. 13 against Xavierian and Duxbury.

Last year the Presidents placed third in the Old Colony League but made an impressive showing with a first-place finish in the Sectional tournament and a 15-2 record in dual meets.

Testa, Froehlich and Cheverie will be the top wrestlers at 125, 140 and 145, respectively. Others expected to start are freshman Steve Avallon (103), junior Dai Nguyen (112), junior Cuong Diep (119), junior Seve Tan (130), junior Tuan Tan (135), junior Kevin Connolly (152), sophomore Big Danny Kane (160), senior Brian Woodberry (171), senior John Davy (189) and sophomore Pat Young (215).

"The kids are working very hard and the enthusiasm is high," said Venturelli.

With the new weight class the heavyweight division has been put in a state of flux, though it appears Tim Collins has the inside track.

"I'm not too happy with the new weight because, in our case, it takes away from the heavyweight class," said Venturelli. "But in the other sense it gives some kids an advantage and gives one more kids a chance to wrestle."

Assisting Venturelli are second-year volunteer Ashley Davis and first-year assistant Jack Sullivan.

Tourney Spot Open If Quincy Can Find Range

A tournament spot for the Quincy High School basketball team should be open if the club is able to overcome the poor shooting which hindered it last season.

"If our shooting comes around this year, I'm very confident in what we can do," said coach John Franceschini. "We did not shoot well at all during the first 15 games but we were able to step it up in our last five games and we won four of those."

The Presidents ended the 1994-95 season with an 8-12 record.

They open the new campaign at home Friday night at 7 against Old Colony League rival Bridgewater-Raynham. It is Quincy's homecoming game and former players and friends of the QHS program are invited for a coffee hour after the game.

"There's a lot of parity in the OCL this year," said Franceschini. "No team is way above everyone else. Any team has the capability to win it and a team with five or six losses may find themselves in first or second place."

Senior guards and co-captains Dave Gunther and Jeff Russell will be asked to carry the load for the vertically challenged Quincy club. Lack of height has become a signature of the Presidents basketball team, though this year things are better than in the past thanks to a trio of 6-foot, 3-inch junior forwards in Bob Walsh, Geoff King and Scott Pyer.

King will not be available for the first five games as he recovers from a broken collar bone. Pyer will start in his place. Also on the starting five is 6-1 freshman guard/forward Joe Kearney.

"We must bring up our shooting percentage from the floor and from the free throw line," said Franceschini. "If we do we feel we can make the tournament."

"We'll rely primarily on our perimeter game and an up-tempo type of offense. As we have done here traditionally, we'll rely on man-to-man defense and hope to get offense from our defense."

Senior forward Jed Donnelly and senior guard Todd Sullivan are Quincy's two other returning players. Newcomers to the varsity squad are senior guards Kevin Norton and Eric Nunez, junior forward Jonathon Hyacinth, junior guard Brad Smith and sophomore guard Jared Downey.

Smith may see significant time in replacing Gunther at the point position. "We'll be looking to him a lot in a back-up role," said the coach.

Clippers An Offensive Force

The Quincy Clippers is 3-2 in its first season of indoor play.

The fourth-place Clippers have scored 25 goals and are an offensive force in the league. The offense is provided by Jason Perch, Justin Swierk, Pat Maxey, Josh Hershey, Pat O'Donnell and Brendan Craig.

Goalies Rich Stone and Matt Lavery are fronted by defenders Mark Tobin, Chris Tuori, Brian Weeks, Matt MacNeil, Ryan Feldhoff and Kevin Hanlon.

The team is coached by Mike Stone and Rich Hanlon.

NQ Girls Expect To Have Big Year

Excitement is the word for the North Quincy High School girls indoor track team.

"This may be the year for us," said Red Raiders coach Geoff Hennessy. "A combination of veterans, newcomers and rookies make us a formidable program." Forty-eight girls came out for the team this year, giving the Red Raiders much-needed depth and the weapons to improve over last year's fourth-place Old Colony League finish.

North Quincy will be led by the talents of Phyllis Poon, Kelly Duggan and Jen Pineo, each of whom were named to the OCL all-star team a year ago. Pineo was the state's Class B runner-up in the shot put.

Pineo, Poon, Duggan and Suk Ng are the team captains. Hennessy will also depend on the leadership of seniors Colleen Cotter (distances) and Beth Crowley (high jump).

The Red Raiders open the 1995-96 season Friday with a 3:30 meet at Taunton. They take part in the Brandeis Invitational Saturday. Several North Quincy meets, including the season finale against Quincy, will be held in the new Reggie Lewis Arena in Roxbury.

Pineo will head North Quincy's strong shot put unit. She will be joined by junior Wingsze Yuen and sophomores Kristy Deptula and Claire Quilty.

Cotter will be joined in the distances by junior Lauren Molloy as well as a host of newcomers.

The Red Raiders will also be strong in the hurdles with Ng and Poon leading the way.

Sophomore Brandy Packard, a transfer from Arizona, and freshman Kellie Johnston, Quincy's middle school sprint champion, will team up with veteran speedster Casey Ngo for what should be an exciting relay team.

Hennessy feels that sophomore Jasmine Gonzalez will threaten the league's hierarchy in the 600 and that Crowley gives his club consistent scoring potential in the high jump.

"We have a great freshman class and some cagey veterans," said Hennessy. "If we stay healthy we should do all right."

Joining the list of newcomers are Sharon Lee (sprints), Erin Tormey (1,000), Liz Bennett (600), Jennifer Campbell (distances), Dorothy Cronin (1,000), Laura Hamilton (600) and Michelle Kentzel (distances).

Killer Bees Sting Westwood

The Quincy Killer B's buzzed past Westwood, 5-2, thanks to the high-flying line of Paul (Dirk) Graham, Justin (Time) Thorley and Brendan Clifford.

Thorley notched a hat trick while Graham and Clifford added one goal each. Assists were credited to Jarrod Swierk, Graham and Thorley.

Bee keeper Ryan Barter continued his strong play in goal and was aided by the solid defensive play of Nick Puopolo, Paul Fasoli and Dan Davis.

The Killer B's played a thrilling match against high-powered Hyde Park before falling, 2-1.

The Gnat Line of Steve Maggio, Evan Harrington and Matt Jones played well. Paul Noonan settled the lone Quincy tally. He was assisted by Rose Devlin and Chris Tierney.

Barter and Thorley switched roles as Barter took a regular shift at forward.

The Killer's B's got a taste of their own medicine as they were stung by Wellesley, 2-0.

Superb defensive play by Noonan, Swierk, Fasoli and Puopolo was not enough to keep Wellesley from posting the winning scores.

At the other end, the Wellesley goalie stonewalled repeated scoring efforts by Pat Devlin and Justin Thorley.

America's Cup Competitor Speaks At Broad Meadow

United States Olympic rower and four-time, national gold medalist, Amy Baltzell, recently visited the Broad Meadows Middle School to inspire students to "Dream, Determine & Do It," as part of her national lecture series on developing a framework for personal achievement.

Baltzell, a member of the 1992 United States Olympic Rowing Team, was invited to speak to more than 300 Broad Meadows students through Citizens Bank of Massachusetts' School/Business Partnership, a program designed to promote the relationship between Quincy's business and educational communities and to help city students develop leadership skills.

Baltzell was a key crew member of America's, the first all-women's sailing team to compete for the America's Cup earlier this year, was named along with her teammates one of Glamour magazine's "Top Ten Most Influential Women of the Year" and recently honored by the Women's Sport Foundation in New York.

Having lost both her parents as a child in separate automobile accidents, she is committed to helping students learn how to overcome adversity and attain their goals.

Citizens Bank arranged for and sponsored the event based on Baltzell's successful national campaign to teach students her methods for achieving peak performance.

"Amy is an inspiring role model," said Citizens Bank Regional President, John O'Connor. "Her courage and determination are infectious and provide students with a catalyst for developing a positive attitude."

Baltzell is currently pursuing her Masters degree in sports psychology at Boston University, after having earned a B.A. in economics from Wesleyan University, in Middletown, Conn.

Three Straight Wins For Squirt A Team

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A team, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, is riding a three-game win streak.

Quincy recorded Greater Boston League victories over Dorchester, Triboro and Westwood to improve its record to 5-1-2.

They scored early and often in posting an 8-1 win over Dorchester.

Billy McKeon led the way with three goals while Matt Germain tallied twice. Single goals were notched by Jamie Chiocchio, Ryan Donahue and Stephen Kelley.

Two assists were credited to both John Chevalier and Chiocchio. Setting up one goal each were Brian Cooper, Timmy Duggan, Matt Grazioso and Donahue.

Quincy had its way with Triboro, 9-3.

McKeon was again the top goal-scorer with two. Also lighting the lamp were Brian O'Hanley, Matt Lavery, Miah Hasson, Grazioso, Duggan, Donahue and Cooper. Grazioso and O'Hanley both chalked up a pair of assists while Mike McGonagle and Matt Germain set up one goal each.

Three goals by O'Hanley were the difference in a hard-fought 6-4 win over Westwood.

Duggan posted two goals and one assist. Donahue had one goal to complete the scoring. Lavery dishd out two assists while Grazioso made one.

McGonagle had a strong game moving from forward to defense. Blue-liners Andy Ross and Miah Hasson were great on defense and Bruce Maggio was a stalwart in goal.

Recreation Dept. Ski Camp Registration Begins Today

The Quincy Recreation Department will hold registration beginning today (Thursday) for a five-week ski instruction program at Blue Hills Ski Area.

Equipment rental can be arranged for an additional cost.

For more information call the Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Pee Wee House

Keyes To Victory For Morrissey Club

First-place Mike Morrissey Club needed a hat trick by Brett Keyes to hold off last-place but feisty Keohane's, 8-7, in Pee Wee House League hockey action.

Jim Mateu netted two goals as Morrissey Club kept its slim lead over M. Sugarman in the Pee Wee standings. Terrence Doherty, Matt Petit and Steve Ricciardi each lit the lamp once. Sean Fennelly set up two goals. Aiding on one goal were Doherty, Ricciardi, Mark Dailey, Glenn Liberator and Paul Garvey.

Mark Tetreault paced upset-minded Keohane's with three goals and two assists. Chris Anderson and Brian Keefe both netted a pair of goals. Steve Romanowski was the top playmaker as he dished out three assists. Keefe, Anderson and Tom Maloney were credited with one assist each.

Joe Thorley posted six points (four goals, two assists) to lead M. Sugarman to an 11-6 win over Neponset Valley Surver.

Jill McInnis and Jon Tallent scored two each for the winners. With one tally were Joe Callahan, Martin McGrath and Kris Farr. Handing out two assists each were McInnis, Callahan, Tallent and Keith Walsh while Farr aided on one goal.

Paul Zenga paced Neponset with two goals and two assists. Rob Rice netted two and made one assist. Also lighting the lamp were Anthony Tufo and Jon Paquette. Duncan Devlin (2) and John Freeman set up goals.

Five points by Brian Scott and six by John Ryan were the difference as Colonial Federal posted its first win, an 11-6 victory over Skinner's Winners.

Scott scored four goals and assisted on one other while Ryan scored twice and made four assists. Matt Moriarty notched a hat trick. Scoring one goal were Matt Glynn and Billy Barrus. Shane Newell had a big outing as he set up three goals. Single assists were dished out by Glynn, Barrus, Lisa Kelly and Pat Mullen.

Ken Reichel led Skinner's with three goals and one assist. Single tallies were posted by Pat Lahar, Neal Gavin and Kevin Patten while Jimmy Kuhn, Lucy Ross, Dan Jones and Lahar handed out assists.

Pee Wee House League standings: Morrissey Club, 5-1-1; M. Sugarman, 4-1-2; Skinner's, 4-3; Neponset, 3-3-1; Colonial, 1-4-2; Keohane's, 1-6.

Squirt House

Burgin Platner Wins, Takes Over First Place

In a battle for Squirt House League supremacy, Joey McManus scored three goals, giving Burgin Platner a 9-4 win over Green Environmental and allowing Burgin to take over first place.

Mark DeCoste and Lauren Struzik scored two goals each for the winning club while Robert Richards and Brendan Conley netted one apiece. Billy Barter was the game's top playmaker with three assists. Conley set up two goals while Dan Donovan, Keith Flaherty and Jeff Butts each aided on one goal.

Jarrold Abbott led Green with two goals. Casey Winter and Gene Nazzaro also scored. Winter and Steve Summering handed out assists.

Huge outings by Dennis Rugg, Ryan Feldhoff and Jimmy Kennedy sparked Quincy Sun to a 7-2 win over Granite Auto Electric.

Rugg had six points on two goals and four assists. Feldhoff notched a hat trick and added one assist. Kennedy netted two goals and set up two others. Brian Lynch made an assist.

Mike Delahoyde and Nicole Murray lit the lamp for Granite Auto. Dela-hoyde and Pat Casper assisted.

Two points by Ben Metcalfe allowed Johnson Motor Parts to edge Doran & Horrigan, 3-2.

Metcalfe had a goal and an assist. Tom Kelly and Richard Cullen also scored while Leo Sheehan added an assist.

Notching scores for Doran & Horrigan were Chris Gates and Andy Flores. Mike Brewster set up one tally.

Squirt House League standings: Burgin, 8-1-1; Green, 8-2; Granite Auto, 5-4-1; Quincy Sun, 3-7; Johnson Motor, 3-7; Doran & Horrigan, 2-8.

Mite House

Martinson, Samoset Slice Past Barry's Deli

Bret Martinson scored two goals and set up another to lead Samoset Pharmacy to a thin-sliced 5-4 win over Barry's Deli in Mite House hockey.

Pat Mullen had a big outing for Samoset with three assists. Putting the puck in the net were Mike MacPherson, Kevin French and Matt Quigley.

Assists were handed out by Matt Connors, Steve McDonagh, Zach Deegan and Ed Laura.

Mike Gillespie lit the lamp twice for Barry's. Kevin Nee and Terrence O'Connell came through with single tallies. John Clark and Mike Powers got in on the action with two assists each. Others setting up scores were Brian Carney, John McClintock and Mike Calley.

Matt Tobin and Mike Faherty posted two goals each to lift Lydon Russell to a 5-1 win over Doherty & White.

Kevin Bossart netted one for Lydon. Dan Giannotti was among the week's top playmakers with three assists. Jeff Bailey and Tom Pasquantonio each made one assist.

Brian Sorenson potted the lone Doherty goal. He was unassisted.

Purdy's Ice Cream and Paul Harold Club skated to a 1-1 tie.

Chris Tufo tallied for Purdy's thanks to the fancy stick work of Kevin Shinnick and Patrick Malone.

Lighting the lamp for Harold Club was Jacob McQuinn. He was set up by Mike Giordani.

Special Care Nursery Opens At Quincy Hospital

Quincy Hospital recently celebrated the opening of its new nursery at a ribbon cutting ceremony with nearly 80 attending the ceremony.

atologist; Robert Griffin, chairman of Quincy Hospital Board of Managers; and Carol Herbai, president of the Quincy Hospital Auxiliary.

The new eight bassinets nursery is staffed with a Board certified neonatologist and neonatal nurse practitioner who provide specialized care needed by premature or ill infants. The new nursery is separate from the 16-bassinet postpartum nursery because healthy, full-term infants have different stimulation needs. New nursery includes the most up-to-date technology in a welcoming environment that incorporates warmth and nurturing into a high tech environment. It has warm color tones; soft music, including classical and lullabies; oak furniture to absorb sound; and a wide range of lighting, from soft to procedural. This additional nursery enables Quincy Hospital to provide quality care in a setting which welcomes and nurtures both the baby and the family.

The nursery serves families living on the South Shore who might otherwise need to deliver their babies in Boston. It is also an ideal setting to provide care for babies who were originally in a neonatal intensive care nursery at a tertiary care institution, and are able to return to a community hospital for monitoring and growth.

Development of the new nursery was supported by donations from the Quincy Hospital Auxiliary, Shawmut Bank, and Quincy Municipal Credit Union and individual members of the community.

The new nursery will augment and complement services which are now available, and provides an important new series for families in the service area.

A Thought For The Week

Each of us has his or her own Christmas memories. Memories that often because of things that were and are no more, keep us from a full recognition of the Day of Days . . . Perhaps your memory is of songs and laughter. Perhaps it is a full gathering of family and friends. Perhaps it is the crustiness of snow and the sheen of stars against a darkened sky as you walked home from a midnight service.

The years may have passed. Sorrows may have come upon us. There may be longing in our hearts. But Christmas remains and if we will but let it in, it can bring into our hearts fragrance and joy. For Christmas is a day not to be celebrated, but to be kept. It is not dependent upon love. It is day not for one, but for all. It is a day of proof that love is the strongest thing in the world stronger than hate, stronger than evil, and stronger than death. None of us is too poor or too lonely to keep Christmas. We can share that which we have with those who have less. There is no price tag on well-wishing or on friendly speaking or kindly doing. The gates of our hearts can swing wide at a touch. We can each of us bring cheer to some lonely child or word or friendship to the lonely and forgotten of men . . . FOR NO ONE CAN KEEP CHRISTMAS ALONE.

Beechwood Winner In First Night Song Contest

City Council President and First Night Chairman Michael Cheney announces that Beechwood By the Bay is the First Night Quincy song contest winner.

The community center was one of many who submitted songs that describe the city. The Beechwood song, entitled "Stand Up For Quincy," touches on all aspects of the city and is sung by several residents.

"This was a tough decision as there were many good entries. Beechwood By the Bay fit the criteria for the theme song," said

Cheney, who presented a check in the amount of $1,000 to Beechwood during a ceremony Monday night in front of City Hall.

For more information about First Night Quincy, call Cheney at 376-1341 or 471-1493.

Linda Wilson Central Interim Head Counselor

Interim Quincy College President Linda Wilson will take over as interim head guidance counselor at Central Middle School next month.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon said at press time that Wilson will replace Mary Catherine Iamoni--who is retiring Friday after 50 years in the field of education--until the school year ends in June.

Creedon said it will not be decided until a future date whether Wilson will return to Quincy High School, where she previously worked, next September.

"But we'll certainly take her (Wilson's) wishes into consideration," he said.

Wilson worked as a guidance counselor and director of drop-out prevention at Quincy High before she agreed to take over as interim Quincy College president at the beginning of the year. Creedon said a replacement has been assigned to take Wilson's place at the high school, although he could not remember who replaced her.

LINDA WILSON

Wilson announced in August that she will not seek renewal of her one-year contract with the college, which expires Jan. 1. As a result of that announcement, the college's Board of Governors has begun a search for a permanent president at the school.

Creedon said Wilson will begin at Central immediately after Christmas vacation. Wilson could not be reached for comment at press time.

Pay Raises Approved For Dept. Heads, Others

The City Council Monday night approved pay raises for administrative employees, including the city's department heads, as well as the fire department's fire alarm division.

The council voted 6-2 to pass the non-union administrative pay hikes. Councillor Timothy Cahill and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers voted against the increases while Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien missed the meeting because he is away on his honeymoon. Mayor James Sheets offered most non-union employees 11 percent raises over a three-year period, the same as union workers. However, some department heads—as well as employees in the mayor's office whose positions were upgraded—received larger raises.

Cahill said he would have supported the increases if they were all the same but could not vote for them as proposed.

"I certainly respect the mayor's right to treat his staff the way he wishes, but fair is fair," he said.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, however, and others who supported the pay hikes said that a number of the Quincy salaries are lower than those in other communities, even with the raises.

"I'm very comfortable voting for it," said Kolson. The fire alarm division's union salaries were passed 8-0 without discussion.

Councillors Say Goodbye

OUTGOING COUNCILLORS were honored at Monday night's City Council meeting. Mayor James Sheets praised the councillors for their accomplishments, and each one received a special plaque and a standing ovation from friends, family members and colleagues. From left are Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Councillor Charles McIntyre. Also receiving plaques were former Councillor Joseph LaRaia, whom McIntyre replaced after the former received a mayoral appointment this year, and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien who was unable to accept his award in person because he is away on his honeymoon.

Pay Hike, Longer Days For Teachers

Quincy's school teachers have accepted a three-year contract that will result in a pay raise of 11 percent as well as longer school days.

The contract, ratified last week by the Quincy Education Association and the School Committee, gives the teachers 3 percent raises this year and 4 percent in each of the next two years, an overall increase in line with those offered to other city employees.

The major change in the contract is the lengthening of the school day. Elementary school students will stay in school 15 minutes longer in the afternoon, while middle and high school students will arrive 15 minutes earlier in the morning.

The extra time will allow the city's schools to meet new requirements from the Department of Education about the number of hours that academic subjects must be taught.

Officials said although specific schedule changes must still be worked out, they are expected to take place in January.

School Committee member JoAnn Bragg said both sides are pleased with the contract.

"It's a win-win situation," she said. "We're very pleased with the way things worked out."

Officials said a new method of negotiating called collective bargaining worked well. Rather

Seafood Restaurant Planned For Downtown

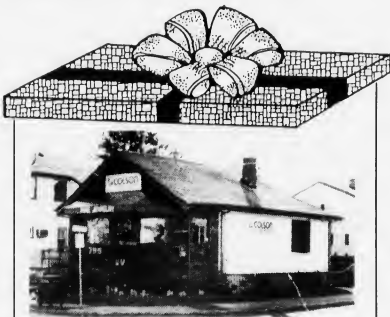

If the Quincy License Board approves the license for a new restaurant in Quincy Center, the old Bank of New England Building will be part of Kevin's At The Heritage, which will be specializing in seafood.

Owner Kevin Cadigan, former manager of Jimmy's Harborside in Boston, told the board the restaurant would be constructed on the first floor of the building with a bistro type lounge and a platform for

Tide Mill Plaza Approved

The $2.6 million Tide Mill Plaza shopping mall and fishing pier off Southern Artery was approved by the City Council Monday night.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, who has researched the proposal, said the planned 65,000-square-foot development, which will include restaurants, shops and a pier for commercial lobster and fishing boats, will be the best possible use for the site.

"It's one of the finest developments and most sensitive developments we've had in this city, ever," he said.

The council approved the project with two major conditions: that the developer, Twiss Realty Co., make a "good faith" effort to negotiate with local fishermen, and that no automobile service business be included in the plaza.

Twiss Realty, the development arm of Stop & Stop, bought the property in 1992 after several other proposals, including condominiums and a supermarket, fell through.

During a previous hearing on the proposal, preservationists opposed it because it is near the 19th-century Southern Tide Mill. A small canal separates the proposed mall site from the mill.

Friends of the Southern Tide Mill co-founder Joseph Chetwynd said last month his group would like to see the seven-acre site turned into a park. The city and the Metropolitan District Commission have been studying the possibility of restoring the old mill buildings, councillors said.

The plaza is expected to bring about 100 construction jobs and 200 permanent positions after it is completed.

CONGESTIVE HEART FAILURE

You may not hear about it much in the press these days, but it is still one of the leading causes of hospitalization and death among Americans over the age of 65. Congestive heart failure (CHF) develops gradually, with symptoms that can easily go unrecognized if you don't know what to look for. When the heart begins to lose effectiveness in pumping - when it begins to "fail" - shortness of breath and fatigue are often among the first symptoms. The feet and ankles may swell, particularly after physical activity. When such signs are coupled with a history of heart attack or high blood pressure, chances are especially high that CHF may be present. Fortunately, today CHF can often be controlled through medication. P.S. Congestive heart failure used to be commonly known as "dropsy."

The right treatment for heart problems requires having a physician knowledgeable about the medical options available today. Get the information you need to live a healthier life - no matter what your condition. For more information visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. I am also board certified in cardiology and internal medicine. Enjoy your Christmas Holiday!

Dear Santa

DEAR SANTA:

Here I am again, Santa... late as usual.

I know I keep promising to write sooner and, honest, I really keep trying to. I don't know about your business, Santa, but in this newspaper business, time just zips by. They say time flies when you are having fun, so I must be having a lot of fun. (Well, most of the time it is. Ask the gang.)

Anyway, Santa, most of these gifts this year—as in the past—are being asked for in a humorous vein and a few in a serious.

So, Santa, I really would appreciate it if you would do your best to deliver a few special gifts as you come by Quincy. (Remember, Santa, it's pronounced Quin-ze so you won't get it confused with those Quin-cees.)

Please drop off the following to the following:

Mayor JAMES SHEETS, a lucky coin to flip to decide whether or not to run for Congress. Two out of three. Heads he will, tails he won't. (We bet it will come up tails...) City Council President MIKE CHENEY, perfect weather New Year's Eve for his bigger than ever First Night Celebration... City Clerk JOSEPH SHEA, a ladder with a built-in, no-fail parachute... TED DECRISTOFARO, the official designation "City Councillor Emeritus" and good health. (Betty, don't let him over do it)... MARY CATHERINE IANNONI, many years of happy retirement. She will be leaving her beloved Central Middle School Friday. (And if buildings could cry, this one would)... DAN FLYNN and MIKE KENEALY, a rush of tenants to fill the office space they have listed in Quincy Center... TOM FABRIZIO and STEVE DOHERTY, 85 and 74 more votes respectively... PAUL HAROLD, DAN RAYMONDI, PATRICK McDERMOTT, MIKE D'AMICO and STEVE DURKIN a year of good resolves as they take their seats in the City Council. (And, please, no more jokes like the one that at age 20, D'Amico has to wait another year before he can toast his Ward 4 victory)... DPW Commissioner DAVE COLTON, a January and February without a major snowstorm. (We've had enough of the stuff already)... Former Mayor FRANK MCCAULEY, a roll of pennies to practice pinching on as he returns to the School Committee... Former School Committeeman FRANK ANSELMO, a young and sturdy 97, another five gallon jug from the Fountain of Youth... Traffic Engineer JACK GILLON, a pedestrian sign motorists will pay attention to at the crosswalk in front of The Sun office... PETER KOLSON, a gavel with an automatic alarm that will go off if the City Council meetings start to go too long... Capt. SCOTT KELLY and the Quincy SALVATION ARMY Corps, every kettle filled to the brim with big coins and big bills. (Santa, they really need the money badly this year to help all those in need)... And that reminds me Santa, how about a nice, handsome shirt for Fr. WILLIAM MCCARTHY who has given so many shirts off his back to so many in need he probably could use one himself... LINDA STICE, JOANN BRAGG and newcomer CHRISTINE CEDRONE each an official footnote in Quincy's history. When they are sworn in in January, it will mark the first time the School Committee has had three female members sitting at the same time... Police Chief FRANK MULLEN and Fire Chief TOM GORMAN a year without violence and a year without a fatal fire respectively. (I know I've asked you for this in past Christmases, Santa, but they wouldn't mind getting this every year)... LARRY CHRETIEN, better luck next time... BRUCE AYERS, the last bachelor in this year's City Council, a Frank Sinatra recording of "Love and Marriage"... Council on Aging Director BRIAN BUCKLEY, a request from a celebrity for him to pose for a Christmas card photo... TOM GALVIN, a new treasure chest full of old Quincy postcard scenes to keep his Quincy Sun fans happy... JAY ASHER, ROY LIND, JOHN NICOLSON, JOE CATALANO, TERRY FANCHIER, CHARLIE ROSS and all the rest of the gang a deserving "well done" for continuing to make WJDA one of the best radio stations on the radio dial... School Supt. GENE CREEDON, a magic wand to keep snow off streets and sidewalks on school days... Former School Committeeman CHARLIE SWEENEY, who says he is handy around the house, a set of handy-dandy tools. (Santa, his wife, Betty, or his good friend DAVE BECKER will show him how to use them)... GEORGE BURKE, the best seats at the Final Four and the title for U-Mass... City Councillor TIM CAHILL, a sequel to his book, Profiles In The American Dream. This one about four successful women in the business or professional world... MURIEL GOUDEY and RUTH ABBIATTI, two of the finest teachers ever, the very best for the next year... HARRY CARLSON, a Red Sox World Championship and, more important, good health... Sheriff CLIFFORD MARSHALL, a deserving badge for courage and determination and robust health for the new year... Quincy's Beacon Hill delegation, Senator MICHAEL MORRISSEY, Rep. MICHAEL BELLOTTI, RON MARIANO and STEVE TOBIN, continued togetherness in legislation benefitting their hometown... Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate ARTHUR TOBIN, a size large black robe to be worn in the near future... HANK BRADLEY, another step up the ladder to American Legion National Commander... Deputy Director of Quincy Emergency Management TONY SICILIANO, a year without an emergency... JAY BOSWORTH NEWMAN, a great big first Christmas.

Santa, I know I've forgotten some people, including good friends. You know you start getting a little forgetful after you reach 39. But to all of them, and to all of you, a very Merry Christmas and a Healthy, Happy New Year, especially a HEALTHY one.

For This Grandpa, The Santa Question Remains

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Though several generations of children have grown up since I was a child, it's still easy for me to rekindle the Christmas spirit. However, I still find "Do you believe in Santa Claus?" hard to answer.

I don't want to be a non-believer, nor even a former believer. Just because I can't comprehend Santa with Rudolph, Donner, Blitzen and the other reindeer flying over a blanket of houses extending from horizon to horizon, doesn't mean it isn't happening.

As Francis P. Church wrote to Virginia O'Hanlon, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus," our intellect isn't capable of grasping the whole truth; therefore, nothing is proved.

Life is just as eternal now as it was when I was a child. In this sense, I can believe as a child. The beauty and magic of a childhood Christmas stay true. I don't want an end to the innocence that made a long-ago child enjoy the wonders of Christmas. Unlike Ebenezer Scrooge, my "humbug" is missing.

I'm sure that on a special night of the year, when the air is filled with the spark of Christmas, Santa Claus will not only find my grandchildren, he will find me.

Social Security Facts Book Available

"Basic Facts About Social Security," a new public information booklet, is available through the Social Security Administration.

The booklet gives readers basic information about the retirement, disability and survivors insurance programs provided through Social Security. It also explains how Social Security is financed, how much money beneficiaries get, and how the program has developed since its creation in 1935.

Social Security Commissioner Shirley Chater, noting that this is the program's 60th anniversary, said, "I am committed to educating Americans about their Social Security system and helping them understand the issues affecting the program."

Copies of the booklet can be requested by calling Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213.

Downtown Sales Up 27 Percent

By PAUL HAROLD

A study by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston showed sales in downtown Quincy department stores were up 27 percent for the same week last year.

Howard Smith, the bank's trade economist, attributed the growth to the city's parking facilities and store expansions. He declined to list those stores participating in the study, but said they were full-service department stores with more than 25 employees.

SUPERINTENDENT SEEKS REPLACEMENT BUSES

Supt. of Schools Dr. Paul Gossard presented a plan for the leasing of four 58-seat buses for the remainder of the school year and possibly for the 1959-1960 school year. The leased buses would replace service by the Eastern Mass. Street Railway, which was in the 34th day of its strike. There was no indication of when the strike would end, with the expectation that it would last throughout the winter.

Assistant Supt. John Houston stressed that the leased bus service was only for those elementary and junior high school students living more than two miles or more from school.

MAYOR OFFERS CITY PAY RAISE FOR STRIKERS

In an effort to provide bus service for the city's students, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa proposed that the city pay the 25 cents pay raise sought by striking bus drivers, until the strike ended.

However, School Committee member Dr. Charles Djerf, voiced his strong opposition to the plan on "moral grounds," pointing out that the committee would be taking sides in a labor dispute.

QUINCY-ISMS

The Montclair Men's Club sponsored a McIntyre-Brett Night, to celebrate the election of the two city councillors to the state House of Representatives. Also on hand was Congressman-elect James Burke and two unsuccessful candidates, former Republican state Rep. Carter Lee and Frank Bellotti, Democratic nominee for District Attorney. Club president Dana Valencia was master of ceremonies. . . The Koch Club of North Quincy announced its second annual Santa Claus home visits. . . Edward Skidell, owner of Capitol Supermarket, held a Christmas party for the store's 40 employees at the market in Quincy Center. . . Mrs. Isadore Weir of Hamilton Ave., president of the B'Nai B'rith, announced an increase of 12 new members, for a total of 40 new members during the year. Six hundred youngsters attended the first joint Christmas party, hosted by five civic and church groups in Houghs Neck. Committee members were John McNally and Paul Shaw of the Houghs Neck Legion Post, John Anderson, Jr. of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, Daniel Herlihy, president of the Holy Name Society at Blessed Sacrament Church, Richard Brooks, commander of the Houghs Neck Amvets and Mrs. Alpha Story of the Houghs Neck Community Council. Philip Barron of Webster St., a senior at Boston University, was named to "Who's Who in Colleges and Universities." . . Signatures were collected at the meeting of the Women's Fellowship at the First Church of Scantum, in opposition to a proposed liquor license at the Nickerson Post. . . Bill Brooks, president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, announced that Gov. Foster Furcolo would be the speaker at the annual membership meeting. . . Dino DiBona of Quincy recently married Donato DiBona of San Donato, Italy. . . After seven years, the congregation Beth El had a new house of worship, with a synagogue on Hancock St. . . Dr. Stanley Kaiser spoke before the City Council on behalf of 10 young dentists who have been shut out of Quincy City Hospital. . . Mr. and Mrs. James Triglia of Crescent St. announced the engagement of their daughter, Norma, to Louis Assad. . . Some 115 Wollaston residents signed a petition to the state ABCC in opposition to a liquor license granted to Raymond Giagrando at 3 Brooks St. The petitioners said that the license was granted by the city board without a public hearing. . . George Fay of Scammell St. was named director of the 1959 Christmas seal campaign for the TB association of Norfolk County. . . Wendell Rogers of Algonquin Rd. was the new monarch for Taleb Grotto. Ladyfinger Pineapple Torte

Here is a gourmet dessert fit for a king. It was given to me by my sister-in-law Anita, who prepared it for a special dinner which received many accolades.

It's going to be part of our Christmas menu this year, and I hope part of yours. The following recipe feeds from 12 to 16 people.

LADYFINGER PINEAPPLE TORTE

- 3 pkg. unfilled ladyfingers (can be purchased at specialty stores and some supermarkets)
- 1 large and 1 small pkg. cream cheese
- 1 pint heavy cream
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1 large can crushed pineapple

I can pineapple pie filling (or 1 jar pineapple preserve)

Cream the sugar with the cream cheese and add the vanilla.

Whip the heavy cream until firm and add that to the cream cheese mixture.

Add the pineapple with any juice and blend.

Line a baking pan on the bottom and on the sides with ladyfingers. On top of that, place half the mixture.

Add another layer of ladyfingers and then more of the mixture. Top it with more of the same.

Refrigerate for at least 3 or 4 hours. Of course this can be made ahead and refrigerated overnight.

Three Honored At Manet Health Center

Dr. Frederick C. Dolgin, medical director and Dr. Rolf Knight recently were honored for their leadership and services at the 15th annual meeting of Manet Community Health Center.

The center's board also presented a gift of recognition to Edwina Robinson who recently retired from Manet after 15 years of work.

Dr. Knight, since 1979, and Dr. Dolgin, since 1980, have provided services as board certified family practice physicians to meet the primary care needs of Quincy and South Shore residents with a focus on identified underserved communities and patients.

The two men received commendations from City Council President Michael Cheney, state Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Stephen Tobin, special recognition from Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and "Historic Quincy" prints from Manet President Lawrence Butler.

Dr. Knight, Manet's first medical director, is a graduate of the University of Nebraska Medical Center and William Jewell College. Dr. Dolgin, who has served as medical director since 1983, is a graduate of the George Washington University of Medicine and Health Sciences as well as Yale University.

Both men began at Manet after completing three years of specialty training in a family practice residence. They came to the center through the U.S. Public Health Service as members of the National Health Service Corps, a program designed to bring physicians to "medically underserved areas."

Architect Brian

Donahue showed plans to the board which included a 780 square foot kitchen and 1300 square feet of dining area for 80 people. The vault used in the bank would be used for the storage of wine with the prospect of having wine tasting events.

Cadigan said there would be additional lighting in the alley next to the building as well as possible valet parking for dinner patrons.

Chairman Joseph Shea told the owner that letters from abutters are needed for the Jan. 9 meeting and also a meeting with owners of the Ross Parking area as to the accessibility of parking.

Although the Quincy License Board did not take a vote at Tuesday's meeting for a request from Shaw's, 475 Hancock St., for a retail beer and wine license, there was opposition from three city councillors.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers advised the group from Shaw's to "withdraw their application" calling the request an "insult to the councillor and the community" giving a "last minute" request.

Citing the fact that Shaw's had promised fulfilling many commitments when previous meetings were held, but at that time, there was no mention of a beer and wine license.

Ayers said until those commitments are met, there should be no talk of a license of that nature.

Chairman Joseph Shea read letters from Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Councillor At Large Tim Cahill, both opposing the request.

Also opposing the request was the Atlantic Neighborhood Association and the North Quincy Businessmen's Association.

Atty. Michael Brasman, representing Shaw's told the board he would meet with the councillors and the neighbors after which the license board will take action.

Nominations Coming In For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are coming in for The Quincy Sun's 11th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," was honored for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years. He was selected from 37 nominations submitted by Sun readers.

Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving.

After nominations close Saturday, Dec. 30, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on Page 28 of this week's issue of The Sun.

If you know of someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 30.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 30.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense, 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended and a longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Those nominated the past nine years are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Saturday, Dec. 30.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

RAY DUNN SR. and his wife, Nora, applaud during recent dedication ceremony changing the name of the Fore River baseball field to Ray Dunn Field. Dunn has been involved with Babe Ruth and Quincy Youth Baseball, CYO basketball, Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts, St. Joseph's Church, and other youth and community organizations.

'I Am The Luckiest Man In The World'

Ray Dunn Honored With Renaming Of Fore River Field

Ray Dunn, who for the past 42 years as a resident of Quincy Point has touched the lives of so many with his selfless volunteer efforts, was honored for those years of commitment Sunday when the baseball diamond at Fore River Field was renamed Ray Dunn Field.

"Ted Williams has a tunnel named after him. Now I have a ballfield," he said.

Dunn, 84, is suffering from serious illness but the message he delivered during the ceremony, in an emotion-filled speech read by his son, Michael Dunn, served as inspiration for all those in attendance.

"Please do not feel sad for me but please rejoice in knowing once again the community has instilled an enormous lift to my heart and soul," read the younger Dunn.

"For me to really express my feelings about how I feel today, I must borrow a phrase from the late Lou Gehrig - 'I am the luckiest man in the world.'

And to my extended family and friends who have experienced life with me, thank you for your kindness and thoughtfulness - it will never be forgotten.

State Rep. Ronald Mariano, who organized the dedication and who once played ball under Dunn, felt it was the least community could do. "If there was a project to be done, Ray was involved," said Mariano. "With him there was always a positive attitude. It's good to do something for him."

Among those in attendance expressing similar sentiments were St. Joseph's Church pastor Fr. Daniel Graham, former pastor Fr. Joseph Downey, former city councilor Ted DeCristofaro, who is also Ray Dunn's brother-in-law, and Ray Cattaneo, who coached with Dunn for many years.

In Dunn's letter he touched on the idea that his commitment to the community was more than just a one-way street.

"I hope that each of you can say Ray Dunn was always there when you needed him. Because I know in my heart each of you were always there for me.

"Today I am excited and overcome with happiness regarding this dedication of Fore River Field, a place with many won-

CHRISTMAS IN CHURCH

lights the way to the spirit and brotherhood of Christmas

The Christmas Story

Luke, 2, 1-14. At that time, there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. The first census took place while Cyrenus was governor of Syria.

And all were going each to his own town, to register.

And Joseph also sent from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem - because he was of the house and family of David - to register, together with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled.

And she brought forth her first-born Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a Manger, because there was no room for them in the Inn.

And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night.

And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round them, and they feared exceedingly.

And the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people; for today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you, Who is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign to you; you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angels a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men of good will."

St. Joseph's

St. Joseph's Parish, 550 Washington St., Quincy Point, will host several special celebrations for Christmas with music, caroling, congregational singing, bell-ringing and brass ensemble with choir singing.

Worshippers are encouraged to bring any kind of bell with them. There will be a Midnight Mass at St. Joseph's with a carol cantata by the adult parish choir at 11:30 p.m. with the Seaside Brass Group to accompany choir and congregation.

Masses will be celebrated Dec. 24 at the following times: 4 p.m. in the church, with Fr. Dan Riley presiding and congregational singing; 4 p.m. in the G.T.N. Center (parish hall, with Fr. Dan Graham as president, Deacon John Jennette as homilist, and singing led by the Folk Group; 5:30 p.m., special Mass for children and families with Fr. Graham presiding and singing led by the parish school choir.

Midnight Mass will be a solemn concelebrated Mass involving the entire parish staff.

On Christmas Day, Fr. Jack Roche will preside at the 9:30 a.m. Mass and Fr. Riley at the 11:30 a.m. Mass.

The church is handicapped accessible.

Bethany Congregational

The Fourth Sunday of Advent will be observed at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center.

Members of the Brundage family will participate in the candlelighting ceremony. The Bethany chancel will be banked with a display of memorial poinsettias.

Rev. George Hodgkins will preach on "The Message More Than Words." Church School will not meet and children will attend the service with their parents.

The Chancel Choir will be directed by Gregory Flynn, organist. Scripture reader will be Marsha Sherman. The Sacrament of Baptism will be performed on Michael Robert Haley, son of Robert and Robin Haley. Greeters will be Jean Ross, church moderator and Helen Krasinski, moderator-elect.

Following worship, a fellowship hour will be hosted by Tom and Betty Newton.

A Christmas Eve Celebration will be held at 8 p.m. It will conclude with candlelighting from the Christ candle. As the service end, the light over the Bethany bell tower will appear, depicting the Star of the East and remaining visible until Epiphany.

United Methodist

The Sunday School will present a pageant illustrating the Christmas story at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Rev. Carol Stine, pastor, will preach on "What Does Jesus Want For Christmas?" Greeters will be Anne Giger and Esther Paulsen. Liturgist will be Daniel Bollen. Scripture reader will be Jill Callahan. Advent candles will be lighted by Dorothy Nogueira and Virginia Casey.

At 11 p.m., a Christmas Eve service will be held featuring carols, Communion and candles. Greeters will be Russell and Natalie Barritt.

Quincy Point Congregational

Christmas Eve service will be held at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

During the Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon, pastor, will continue his series of Advent sermons on "Five Mandates For Emmanuel" with a sermon entitled "Name Him Jesus!" He will be assisted by Rev. Steve Washburn, assistant pastor, who will serve as liturgist.

Music will be directed by Dr. Herman Weiss, church organist and choir director. The Advent Wreath will be lighted, marking the Fourth Sunday of Advent, by Don, Terri, Scott and Craig Jackson.

Child care and Church School classes will be provided. Following worship, a fellowship hour with refreshments will be held in the social hall.

At 7 p.m., a Service of Lessons and Carols led by pastors of the church and lay readers. Music will be directed by Dr. Weiss. The Christ Candle of the Advent Wreath will be lighted by Rev. Atwood-Lyon. Individual candles will also be lighted.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

Fifth graders in Quincy Public Schools this year were invited to submit articles for the Christmas, Hanukkah and New Year's holiday season.

The theme: "If I could have one wish come true this holiday season it would be..."

The Sun is happy to share these young thoughts with you this season. Publishing these articles has become a tradition that all of us at The Sun look forward to each year and, we hope, you do, too.

We want to thank School Supt. Eugene Creedon, Janet DiTullio, Director of Curriculum in the Quincy Public School System and classroom teachers for their cooperation and assistance.

We were again swamped with entries and because of space limitations we regret that we cannot print every single article submitted. There were so many others that were worthy of publication, too.

We do hope to publish more next week.

To all who participated we extend season's greetings and wishes for a happy, healthy New Year.

Thank you all, most sincerely.

It would be that poor people would be invited to a Christmas dinner and have presents.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Mary Dawson Installed SSAR President

Mary E. Dawson was installed recently as the new president of the South Shore Association of Realtors (SSAR).

More than 260 realtors and guests attended the installation at Lantana conducted by J. Thomas Marquis, 1995 regional vice president of the National Association of Realtors.

Dawson, partner in Quincy's Century 21-Annex Real Estate, said that one of her top priorities as incoming president will be to explore the technological advances available to the real estate industry. She stressed, however, that she will never lose sight of the fact that the association exists to serve its members.

"I don't want the spotlight to be on me," she said. "My desire is for all of you to succeed in this business; whatever I can do bring that about, I will."

In addition, Dawson pledged to ensure that service to the association's members would remain superior even as the board continues to experience unprecedented growth. Since the adoption of board of choice in 1994, she noted, SSAR membership has nearly doubled to more than 800 members.

Dawson will begin her term of office Jan. 1, succeeding James N. Stamos and Stamos Real Estate. Stamos, who received a plaque in recognition of his term in office, thanked the officers, directors and association members who worked with and assisted him during his year as president.

In addition to Dawson, SSAR officers installed for 1996 included H. Richard Coughlin, first vice president; Joanne Condon Walsh, second vice president and Richard Lannon, secretary-treasurer.

SSAR directors installed were Joyce Baker, Robert Bell, Deborah Carson, Rita Coffey, Arthur Foley, John Francis-Nettles, Lorraine Ingenito, Toni Manning, Vincent Moscardelli, J. Philip Murphy, Jean Patriquin and Stamos.

The South Shore Association of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 realtor boards nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association.

First Time Home Buyers Workshop

The Quincy Community Action Programs, an approved first time home-buyer counselling agency, will hold a series of First Time Homebuyer's Workshops beginning Jan. 16, and continuing Jan. 18, 23 and 25 from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. at the Weymouth Tufts Library, 46 Broad St., Weymouth.

Attendance at all four workshops is mandatory in order to qualify for the different mortgage options through the Mass Housing Finance Agency and other financing options.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process; including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer and the types of financing best suited to your needs. Advanced registration is required and space is limited.

A fee of $30 for all four sessions covers the cost of the workshop text and all copied materials.

For more information and registration forms, call Debbie Kidd, 479-8181, ext. 115.

The workshop is sponsored by the City of Quincy and EOCD.

SUN SPORTS

Members of 1942 Team To Attend QHS Wrestling Reunion Tonight At Elks Hall

By KERRY BYRNE

Wrestlers are, by nature, a hardened, iron-willed lot.

That description will be put to the test tonight (Thursday, Dec. 21) as former Quincy High School wrestlers young and old brave Mother Nature's fierce snow and billowing winds to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the school's modern wrestling program.

The reunion is scheduled to take place at the Tirrell Room of the new Elks Hall, 254 Quarry St. The cost is $20 per ticket and the money will help play for a holiday buffet and will help return championship banners to the Quincy Vo-Tech Gym walls.

Doors open at 6 p.m. for a social hour and dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. Former wrestlers with plows and 4x4 vehicles are in particular demand.

In case of inclement weather, guests are asked to call 472-3752 or 328-6699 on Thursday to see if the event will take place as planned.

As part of the celebration members of the 1942 QHS championship wrestling team will be on hand. Due to the hardships brought about by World War II the school's wrestling program was discontinued after the 1942 season and did not compete again until Carmen Mariano rebuilt the team in 1975.

The Quincy High School "Men at Work" wrestling program picked up where it left off in the 1940s by becoming perhaps the city's most successful athletic team throughout the late 1970s and 80s. This season the Presidents are defending their South Sectional championship.

Members of the Picot, Oriola, Notarangelo, Madden and Souza families, each of which had several outstanding wrestlers go through Quincy High School, will be on hand.

Among the representatives of the 1942 team expected to attend are Walter Pæce, Ray LaRue, Norm Collier and others.

Reunion organizers Tim Cahill and Lou Venturelli are looking to get as many ex-wrestlers and their families and friends as possible to attend. They hope to update the QHS record books and show some old videos.

A previously reported three-round grudge match between Cahill and Venturelli, which was to once and for all settle a dispute which began at a high school party up the Crusher, will not take place.

"I think you made that up," said Venturelli to one local sports reporter. "The match will not take place. Absolutely not."

Venturelli was miffed that a previous report touted Cahill as a heavy favorite in the alleged match and vowed to crush the sportswriter "like a bag of stale potato chips."

BRENDA HAYDUK (left) and Heather Rendle helped lead the Bucknell University women's volleyball team to its most successful season in school history. Both starred on state championship-winning North Quincy High School volleyball teams. Their experience paid off at the college level as Bucknell has improved considerably since their arrival at the Pennsylvania school. Hayduk was a co-captain and Rendle a junior outside hitter for the 26-7 Patriot League champions.

Ice Skating Program Sign-Up

Registration for the Quincy Recreation Department's instructional ice skating program begins Dec. 21 for boys and girls ages 6-14.

The program will be held Wednesday afternoons beginning Jan. 3 at the Quincy Youth Arena. The instructor will be Anne Eagles, a United States Figure Skating Association professional. She will utilize the basic program of instruction designed by the USFSA.

Classes are for beginners to advanced skaters with two separate classes at 3:10 p.m. and 4:10 p.m. Each class runs for nine weeks. The $42 cost includes instruction and ice time.

Registration begins Thursday Dec. 21 and will take place at the Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Enrollment is limited and will be taken on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Pee Wee House

Sugrman Posts Sweet Victory

M. Sugrman Co. leaptfrogged to the top of the Pee Wee House League standings with a 5-3 win over Morrissey Club.

Scoring for the first-place club were Joe Callahan, Martin McGrath, Joe Thorley, Colin Maxey and Billy Eastwick. Keith Walsh handed out a pair of assists.

Brett Keyes, Glenn Liberatore and Matt Conso lit the lamp for Morrissey Club. Conso added two assists and was the game's top scorer. Also setting up scores were Pat Duff and Keyes.

Brian Scott set the season record for goals in a game with seven in Colonial Federal's 15-2 win over Keohane's.

John Ryan added a hat trick while two goals were netted by both Wayne Moynihan and Rob McKenzie. John Walsh also scored. Credited with two assists each were Ryan, Moynihan, Walsh and Matt Moriarty. Single assists were made by McKenzie, Pat Mullen and Matt Glynn.

Chris Anderson and Mark Tetreault tallied for Keohane's. They were set up by Steve Romanowski and Tom Maloney. Anderson also had an assist.

Kevin Patten chalked up seven points with five goals and two assists to lead Skinner's Winners to an 11-6 victory over Neponset Valley Survey.

Ken Reichel, Neal Gavin and Tom Costa, of the high-powered Score at Any Costa family, added to Patten's five goals with two each. Costa and Jill McInnis both racked up three assists. Two set-ups were credited to Patten and Reichel. With one assist were Lucy Ross, Jim Devlin and Brett Williams.

Matt Miller scored twice for Neponset. Lighting the lamp once were Corey Place, Anthony Tufo, Joe Cox and Jon Paquette. Dishing out assists were Rob Rice, Cox, Tufo and Paquette.

Pee Wee House League standings: Sugrman, 5-1-2; Morrissey, 5-2-1; Skinner's, 5-3; Neponset, 3-4-1; Colonial, 2-4-2; Keohane's, 1-7.

Additional Swim Days At Lincoln-Hancock Pool

The Quincy Recreation Department will supervise the pool at Lincoln-Hancock Community School for an expanded schedule during the school vacation period.

Additional day swims have been added for Wednesday, Dec. 27 and Friday Dec. 29. Participants age 6 through high school age may swim from noon to 2 p.m. and may use their regular pool card or pay a guest fee at the door. Adults who accompany youngsters may also swim.

The regular schedule of supervised swimming will also be conducted in the evenings of Dec. 26-29. The pool will be closed Dec. 24 and 25, and Jan. 1.

All regular scheduling will resume Tuesday, Jan. 2.

We'd like to take this time to wish our friends old and new, a very joyous Noel! Thanks for your many kindnesses.

Recreation Programs Expanded During School Vacation

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct supervised recreation programs with an expanded vacation schedule at 10 school gymnasiums during the Christmas vacation period.

The program will include relays, floor hockey, basketball and dodge ball at each location. The program is for boys and girls age 8 through high school. It will be held Tuesday, Dec. 26 through Friday, Dec. 29 according to the following schedule:

Elementary (age 8 through 5th grade) from 9 a.m. to 10:45 a.m.
Middle school (grades 6, 7 and 8) from 10:45 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

High school (grades 9, 10, 11 and 12) from 12:30 to 2 p.m.

Slight variations may be made to accommodate enrollment at each location: Atherton Hough, Montclair, Atlantic, Beechwood Knoll, Point-Webster, Bernazzani, Snug Harbor, Merrymount, Squantum and Wollaston.

The regular evening schedule of supervised gyms will remain in effect for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights during the vacation for the benefit of the middle school and high school youths and the Saturday schedule will be held Dec. 23 and Dec. 30 at the regular locations and times.

"The increase of scheduling for the vacation period has been very popular with the participants and working parents who have become more dependent upon our activities during school vacation periods," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "We anticipate well-attended programs."

Participants are requested to wear sneakers at all locations. For more information call 376-1394.

Hoop Shoot Taps Off Dec. 28

The Quincy Recreation Department will again sponsor the Elks National Hoop Shoot free throw contest.

The Quincy competition is the first step in a national contest for boys and girls ages 8-13. Contestants are assigned to three separate age categories in both boys and girls divisions.

Age groups are 8-9, 10-11 and 12-13. Contestants' ages are determined by their age on April 1, 1996.

The first round of the Quincy contest will be held Thursday, Dec. 28 at 10 a.m. at the following gymnasiums: Atherton Hough, Atlantic Middle School, Bernazzani, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, Montclair, Daniel Webster, Snug Harbor, Squantum and Wollaston.

Last year Quincy's Erin Croke qualified in the local Recreation competition at Atlantic Middle School, won the regional New England title and advanced to the national championships in Indianapolis.

Sacred Heart Boys Win

The Sacred Heart boys YMCA Goliath-division team defeated Union Congregational Church, 40-35, in a hard-fought contest.

Sacred Heart was led by the fine all-around play of Jim Conley (11 points) and Ted McGillicuddy (six points).

Sacred Heart held a 20-16 lead at the half but Union Cong. parlayed some sharp three-point shooting into a 29-28 advantage with five minutes left to play.

At that point Sacred Heart went on a 12-2 run sparked by Ryan Herlihy (six points) and Dan Leblanc (seven points). Eight of 11 players on the winning team scored.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

The season of Christmas is sacred and is observed by Christians all over the world as commemorating the coming of the King. It is then that we devote ourselves to the joys of our friendships and to the contemplation of spiritual things. Our hearts are mellowed, our spirits are lifted and our good will is broadened. It is the season of giving, giving not only to our loved ones but also to others who are less fortunate than we. The message of New Year's Day is, "Think of the passing of time." The message of Easter is, "Think of immortality." The message of Thanksgiving is, "Think of your blessings." But the message of Christmas is, "Think of others."

Generally, at no other time during the year are we so generous towards others as during the Christmas season. Streets are crowded with package-laden shoppers who have been spending their time and money on gifts for others... Yet it is possible to have Christmas all around us and still not share in it with heart and mind.

When God measures a man, He put the measuring tape around the heart. As we wrap our gifts this year, let us make sure that we put something of ourselves into each one.

Christmas joy springs from the loving and generous heart.

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE SHOVELING SNOW

The storm that blew several inches of snow in our direction recently provides an appropriate time to offer a few suggestions on proper shoveling techniques. At the risk of sounding "like a wiseguy" the best way to prevent problems shoveling snow is to avoid doing it altogether by using a snowblower or paying someone to do it for you. Most importantly, any person with a history of heart problems or any person at risk of heart problems should ask their doctor for approval. If you absolutely must shovel snow, the following guidelines may be helpful:

1. Warm up prior to shoveling as you would exercising.
2. Pace yourself depending on the conditions. Shoveling heavy, wet snow takes a heck of a lot more energy than shoveling fluffy, white snow.
3. Use the proper shovel. Using a short, wide, flat bladed shovel may be perfect for pushing light snow, but could be disastrous in trying to shovel (the heavier, wet snow).

Generally speaking, a long handled shovel, or better yet, a "back saver" shovel with a bent shaft, reduces the strain on your back.

4. Keep your back straight, bend with your knees and turn your feet and legs when "throwing the snow." This is crucial because it is usually the quick, twist of your back while you are bent over slightly that causes most injuries.
5. Switch sides when shoveling so that you're not always throwing the snow in the same direction.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

The Holidays...

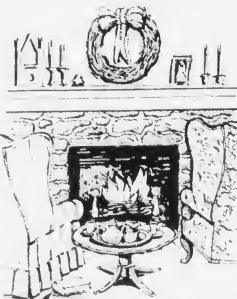

A time for joy, love, and family togetherness. But this Season can be a sad time for those who have experienced the death of a loved one. Be in touch with family and friends whom you know will find this a difficult Season. Share the precious gift of friendship and bond memories with them.

Kenney Seen Acting QC President

dential search committee, said at press time she will nominate Kenney, who has assisted the committee during its search process, for the position at a meeting of the college's Board of Governors at 5:30 p.m. in the school. Lord also serves as vice chairman of the Board of Governors.

The meeting was originally scheduled for last night (Wednesday) but was postponed because of this week's blizzard, she noted.

Lord said it is necessary to appoint an acting president to serve until a replacement is found for outgoing Interim President Linda Wilson, who announced in January she will not seek renewal of her one-year contract. Wilson is expected to leave at the end of this week, and Kenney should begin as acting president after Christmas vacation, she added.

"You can't run a ship without a captain," she said.

Lord said she expects the Board of Governors to approve the nomination, since Kenney was a finalist for the interim presidency before Wilson eventually was selected.

Kenney could not be reached for comment at press time.

Pay Hike, Longer Days For Teachers

than taking adversarial roles, as is done in traditional bargaining, the two sides came to the table with ideas for improvement and tried to reach decisions about what is best for the schools.

Under the new plan, children in Grades K-5 will have an additional 15 minutes of instructional time added to the end of the day. They also will get 40 minutes of additional academic instruction on Tuesdays.

All together, the increase in instructional time on Tuesdays adds 12 days of school to the year for elementary students.

Students in middle and high schools will begin their day 15 minutes earlier, adding nine days to their school year.

Officials said other benefits of the contract include:

•Teachers will not lose time for professional development programs.

•Elementary school teachers, for the first time, will be paid for running enrichment programs before and after school.

•An amount of $31,000 will be added to the current $65,000 pool available to pay teachers for the enrichment programs. By the contract's third year, the added amount will jump to $70,000. High school and middle school teachers also can apply for the money, officials said.

•The annual amount paid to reimburse teachers who buy classroom materials will jump from $5 to $75 in the first year of the contract and will balloon to $335 by the end of the contract's third year.

Memorial Congregational

Two worship services will be held Sunday at Memorial Congregational Church, UCC, Newbury Ave. and Sagamore St., North Quincy.

A morning service will be held at 10 a.m. Greeters will be Barbara and John McNeilly.

A candlelight service will be held at 11 p.m. Members of the congregation of First Church of Squantum will participate. Greeters will be Mel Gaziano and Warren Fong.

Entertainment Books At QP Congregational

Quincy Point Congregational Church is selling 1996 Entertainment Books for $30.

Proceeds will benefit the church's scholarship fund.

Signature Signs Selected
By Bank Of Braintree

Signature Signs, 111A Penn St., South Quincy, has been chosen by Bank of Braintree as the sign contractor to roll out for their new logo on nine branches during their merger with the Co-Operative Bank.

Over the last few months, Signature Signs has designed over 50 different types of bank identification, from sign faces to parking signs, while planning and fabricating for the bank's changeover. All nine locations now display the black and white turquoise on white design developed by McKay, Fried & Partners in Quincy. The ATM Network logo is also updated.

Christopher Wilson, Signature Signs company president, said: "For years we have done all our financial transactions with Bank of Braintree, from savings to credit lines, because of their skills with small business. They really are committed to their customers."

C. Parking during a declared "Snow Emergency" on any street or roadway where parking is ordinarily prohibited in accordance with Sections 10.20.030 through 10.20.070 of this Municipal Code.

D. Parking during a declared "Snow Emergency" on the odd numbered side of the street in an even numbered winter year.

E. Parking during a declared "Snow Emergency" on the even numbered side of the street in an odd numbered winter year.

*A winter year is the year in which the winter season begins (i.e. the winter year for the snow season beginning on October 1, 1993 and ending in the spring of 1994 is 1993). Thus, parking is not allowed on the even numbered side of the street during a declared snow emergency for the 1993-94 winter.

The owner of any vehicle found in violation of any of these provisions shall be liable to the City in the sum of Fines and Penalties authorized in Section 10.20.240 and to the City's authorized towing company for removal and storage of the vehicle in accordance with M.G.L. Ch. 40, Sec. 22D (Ter. Ed.).

Stronger Restrictions Planned

Strip Clubs Targeted In Proposed Law Change

By MICHAEL WHALEN
The city is taking action to make it more difficult for strip clubs to set up shop in Quincy.

The City Council Monday night voted 8-0 to advertise an amendment to a 1986 city ordinance that will make it necessary for such clubs to receive a special permit from the council in order to open in the city. Ward 3 Councilor Lawrence Chretien is away on his honeymoon and did not attend the meeting.

In addition, even clubs that do obtain special council permits will only be allowed to open in areas zoned Business "A" or Business "B." Officials said they hope that will further discourage adult club owners from coming to Quincy.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath said the language in the original 1986 ordinance places the same restrictions on businesses such as adult bookstores and movie theaters but not strip clubs. Mayor James Sheets sent the ordinance change to the council for consideration so that clubs would also be included in the restrictions, McGrath said.

The solicitor added that because the proposed change in the law was to be advertised this week, any proposal for such an establishment will not be considered until after the council votes on the amendment.

The council has scheduled a public hearing on the proposed ordinance change for Feb. 5, after which a vote will be taken on the amendment to the ordinance.

Sheets said Tuesday he hopes that the action will help Quincy remain a family-oriented community.

"We really need to control these types of (adult) activities," said the mayor. "We're a community that stresses family values."

Sheets said the idea for the amendment came to him after seeing the problems the Town of Weymouth is having with The Foxy Lady, the Providence, R.I.-based strip club that is trying to open a smaller but similar operation in the town.

Councillors voiced support of the ordinance change Monday night.

"I applaud the mayor for bringing this in," said Council President Michael Cheney.

The council also unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Councilor Timothy Cahill stating that the council and the city solicitor's office will offer any assistance or advice the town needs in its battle against The Foxy Lady.

Cahill said Weymouth has helped Quincy in the past with action the city has taken against the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and that it is only right to help the town with its current problem.

"I think it would be selfish of us to simply say, 'Thank God it's not us,'" he said. "And I just don't think it's appropriate these (adult entertainment) people can just come in and hide behind the First Amendment and the Constitution."

Rachel Boland Returns From Persian Gulf

Navy Airman Rachel J. Boland, daughter of Edwin J. and Joan D. Boland of 30 Reardon St., Quincy, has returned to Naval Air Station North Island, Calif., after completing a six-month overseas deployment while serving with Helicopter Anti-Submarine Squadron Six embarked aboard the aircraft carrier USS Abraham Lincoln, which included duty in the Persian Gulf near Iraq.

Boland's squadron was part of the USS Abraham Lincoln Battle Group which included more than 80 tactical aircraft, and ships and submarines armed with Tomahawk cruise missiles.

A 1988 Quincy High School graduate, she joined the Navy in Feb. 1994.

4 P.M. To Midnight Celebration Sunday

20,000 Expected At Quincy First Night

The city's fourth annual First Night celebration is expected to attract an estimated crowd of 20,000 people to Quincy Center Sunday night.

First Night Committee Chairman Michael Cheney said he and others involved with the project anticipate this year's event to be the best and the biggest the city has ever seen.

"They keep getting better and better," he said. "I think that the people who attend this year are in for a spectacular show, both indoors and outdoors."

The event drew about 16,000 people last year, Cheney said. He noted that about 300 volunteers have worked to help organize this year's festivities, and around 270 will volunteer at the event itself, although more are needed.

First Night '96 will include a wide variety of musical, theatrical and performance festivities offered as a safe, inexpensive and alcohol and drug-free celebration for the whole family. Among the highlights will be a laser show, live music, ice sculptures, a Parade of Lights and fireworks.

Activities will begin at 4 p.m. and will conclude with a midnight fireworks display over Quincy Center. A First Night Store, which will offer First Night buttons, mugs, T-shirts, sweatshirts, noisemakers, hats and other souvenirs and gifts, will open at 3 p.m. at Presidents Place.

Cheney said the reason for the store is not to make a profit on the event but to help cover the estimated cost of $100,000 of holding the event.

No vendors will be allowed at the celebration.

First Night '96 will be spread out over more than 20 indoor locations and

It Was A Year For Surprises

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Nineteen ninety-five: it was a year filled with surprises.

Some were big, some were small, some good and some bad. Still, the year was filled with events that constantly caught people off guard.

Among the year's highlights were the reality that the city's property tax rates would not rise for a second consecutive year, as Quincy's finances remained stable; a number of surprise political moves by various officials, and the official announcement that an Old Colony commuter rail station would be built in Quincy.

Mayor James Sheets announced early in the year that he was hopeful that the tax rates could be held down for a second consecutive year. A surprisingly large surplus of $5.7 million at the end of Fiscal Year 1995 helped make it possible--and not only did the commercial property rate remain the same, the rate for residential property dropped four cents. It was the first time in 20 years the tax rates saw no increase for two consecutive years.

Politically, a number of surprises took place.

Two Quincy political veterans returned to the scene. Former Mayor, School Committee member and City Councillor Francis McCauley announced in February that he would seek a seat on the committee, while former state Sen. and Councillor Paul Harold announced in July he would run for a council seat. Both would win in the city's municipal election in November.

Venerable Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro announced in March he would be stepping down because of health reasons. School Committee Vice Chairman and former Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond would run for, and win, the seat.

Popular Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan announced in March he would not seek re-election because of family reasons. School Committee member Stephen Durkin would win the seat in November.

When Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien announced in February he would seek an at-large seat in the fall, experts

Inaugural Jan. 2 At QHS Sheets Starts 4th Term, 5 New Councillors

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets has called the need to improve senior citizen programs "a top priority" for the next two years and will discuss his plans for doing so when he is sworn-in to his fourth term next week.

The inauguration, which will also include the swearing-in of five new city councillors and two new School Committee members, will be held Tuesday, Jan. 2 at 10 a.m. in the Quincy High School auditorium. An inaugural reception will be held at 7:30 p.m. that evening at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd.

The five new councillors will be Daniel Raymond (Ward 2), Patrick McDermott (Ward 3), Michael D'Amico (Ward 4), Stephen Durkin (Ward 5) and Paul Harold (at-large). The turnover is the largest on the council in 22 years.

Christine Cedrone and Francis McCauley will be the two new faces on the School Committee. When Cedrone joins incumbents JoAnn Bragg and Linda Stice, it will mark the first time in city history three women have served on the committee at one time.

Sheets said in an interview with The Quincy Sun that details of his plan for improvements to senior programs will be revealed during the inauguration but hinted that it will involve the integration of new and old programs, including those having to do with housing and transportation.

While seniors have always been a priority, the mayor said, it is important that the city move to improve the quality of their lives now because the elderly population is expected to "soar" over the next two decades. In addition, the city's fiscal strength and overall stability will make it easier to help them, he said.

Quincy VNA Helps Toys For Tots

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association helps make a Merry Christmas for many youngsters through donations to the Toys For Tots program.

Employees only had a couple of weeks to buy and wrap the gifts before the association's annual party, but by the time marines came to pick them up, there were enough presents to fill a huge Toys For Tots bag.

Milt Margolin of Toys for Tots was there with the marines to thank the employees.

Margolin explained that this donation was especially important because at that time, the warehouse was empty. He had even been forced to send his volunteers home, because there was no work for them.

New Nursery Opens At Hospital

2 Finalists For Quincy College Presidency

The search for a permanent president at Quincy College is down to two finalists.

They are: Philip Amato, vice president and academic dean at Emerson College in Boston and Jeremiah Ryan, vice president of marketing, planning and development at Harford Community College in Bel Air, Md.

Amato, 60, a resident of Jamaica Plain, is on sabbatical from Emerson, officials said.

Quincy College's Board of Governors, which will choose the president, will interview one of the two finalists on Jan. 31 and the other Feb. 1. The candidates also will meet with faculty members, school officials and student government officers.

Board of Governors Chairman Daniel Raymond said he is hopeful a permanent president will be selected in February.

In the meantime, Steve Kenney, director of grants at Quincy College, will serve as acting president. Kenney, who has coordinated the search process, was named to that position last week.

The Board of Governors decided to search for a permanent college president after Interim President Linda Wilson announced in August she would not seek renewal of her one-year contract.

A field of 90 candidates originally was reduced to three finalists by a presidential search committee, but one of them--Ronald Champagne, president emeritus of St. Xavier College in Chicago--subsequently dropped out of the race to take another job.

The committee then decided to submit the names of the other finalists to the Board of Governors, rather than reopen the search process.

Last Chance For Nominations Sun Citizen Of Year Deadline Is Saturday

Nominations will close Saturday for The Quincy Sun's 11th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," was honored for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years. He was selected from 37 nominations submitted by Sun readers.

Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving.

After nominations close Saturday, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on Page 28 of this week's issue of The Sun.

If you know of someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169
Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 30.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 30.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Nominations Ballot On Page 5

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense, 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended and a longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Those nominated the past nine years are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Saturday, Dec. 30.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

SACRED HEART SCHOOL Children's Choir, directed by Zoa O'Hearn, sings carols during recent Nativity Pageant at United First Parish Church.

Deadline Friday For Next Week's Sun

Because of the New Year's Day holiday Monday, there is an early news deadline for next week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

All news, sports and church releases and advertising copy should be submitted to the Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center, by 5 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) to ensure publication in the

Jan. 4th issue.

The Sun will be closed Monday, Jan. 1 and reopen Tuesday, Jan. 2 at 9 a.m.

Studds Invites E-Mail For Troops In Bosnia

Congressman Gerry Studds has invited residents of southeastern Massachusetts to send holiday greetings by e-mail to American troops taking part in the peacekeeping mission in Bosnia.

The Pentagon has developed an Internet site for holiday greetings, which should be 50 words or less. The military will select messages for distribution through the Armed Forces media; they cannot reach individual soldiers.

The address is: <http://www.dtic.dla.mil/bosnia/message/form.html>.

"For anyone who happens to have access to this technology, this is a way for Americans to wish for overseas troops well during this holiday season," said Studds. "I invite others from Massachusetts to join us in sending messages to members of our Armed Forces."

200 Receive Meals, Gifts At Community Christmas Dinner

About 200 people received a turkey dinner and various gifts during a Community Christmas Dinner Monday sponsored by the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition/Fr. Bill's Place at Christ Church Episcopal.

QISC Executive Director Joseph Finn said more than 50 volunteers helped out at the event. Among them were members of the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post, who were led by Past Commander Irving Isaacson and have participated in the annual dinner for six years.

Also volunteering was Herb Fontaine, the lone representative from the shelter's board who participated.

Officials said in all, hundreds of people donated food, money, or time to this year's meal.

TIRED OF BEING SICK

It is winter, so when you get a cold or the flu, you figure it's no big deal. You suffer for a week or so, leaving a trail of tissues wherever you go, until the aches and pains ease up. Everything should finally be back to normal - but you can't seem to shake that tired feeling. What's wrong? Everything is probably right, which is precisely why you still feel worn out. The culprit, or hero, is the body's immune system. When you get an infection, your body manufactures proteins called cytokines that fight off the illness. These warriors take a toll on your entire system however, and that can leave you feeling wiped out for weeks. The remedy is simply rest. If you've been sick, expect to take it easy for awhile.

P.S. Chronic fatigue can also be a sign of health problems. If unusual tiredness persists, consult your doctor.

Taking care of yourself is an art that requires respecting your needs and responding to them appropriately. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I care about your well-being. Stirring At City Hall

Will there be a department head or two—or more—departing City Hall when re-appointment time arrives in early February?

Mayor James Sheets has some wondering if not worrying a bit after his appearance last week on WJDA's Party Line.

Sheets was the guest of host Roy Lind and was there to field questions from callers and then to read "The Night Before Christmas" to the kiddies in the audience.

SHEETS

Most of the calls were from people complimenting His Honor on his administration's accomplishments and on him as a person.

Then out of the blue came a caller with a question: Are you going to re-appoint all your department heads?

Sheets highly praised the department heads in general but noted "there are a couple of weak spots" and indicated he would be taking steps "for improvement" in those departments.

In "The Night Before Christmas" which he then read is the famous line "not a creature was stirring not even a mouse..."

But there was some stirring at City Hall among department heads about the "couple of weak spots" and speculation as to where and who they are.

Sheets, who will be starting his fourth term Jan. 2, has pretty much kept his official family intact since taking office six years ago.

There has been some musical chairs with a few department heads shifting to other departments or retiring.

Like Robert Denvir who retired as purchasing agent and was succeeded by Michael McFarland. And Ray Cattaneo who retired as executive director of the Park-Forest-Cemetery Department and was succeeded by Tom Koch who was the mayor's executive secretary. Koch in turn was succeeded in the mayor's office by McFarland. And Alfred Grazioso was then named to the purchasing post. Assessor Henry Bertolon retired and was succeeded by Joseph LaRaia, former mayor and councillor.

Sheets has been reluctant to wield the ax as other mayors have done through the years and has never publicly acknowledged dissatisfaction with any department heads' performance.

So, when the mayor publicly mentions a "couple of weak spots" it is being taken as a broad hint around City Hall that there could be at least a couple of replacements coming in February and not as the result of voluntary retirements or musical chairs.

Meanwhile there is a little nervous feeling around City Hall and some wondering what February will bring.

THERE ARE TWO local contests on the Republican ballot in the March 5 Massachusetts Presidential Primaries.

Both of the Republican State Committee posts in the Norfolk-Plymouth District are being vacated by former Mayor Frank McCauley and Kathy Roberts.

McCauley is stepping down to give full attention to School Committee duties to which he will return Jan. 2. Roberts did not file for re-election at the Dec. 10 deadline.

Four candidates seek McCauley's Republican State Committeeman post: John McDuff and Mark Roberts of Quincy; Darren McAuliffe, formerly of Quincy now a Braintree resident; and Andrew Himmel of Braintree.

McDuff is head of the Quincy Animal League, and has run several times for the School Committee. Roberts made his political debut in November in a bid for the Ward 2 City Council seat won by Dan Raymond.

McAuliffe holds a top echelon post with the Republican State Party and Himmel is chairman of the Braintree Republican Town Committee.

Three are after Roberts' Republican State Committeewoman post: Gerardine Harold Sharkey of Forest Ave., Quincy, a cousin of former Senator Paul Harold; Anne O'Donnell of Hughes St., Quincy; and Stephanie Bradley of Liberty St., Braintree.

All's quiet on the Democratic front. Both State

Committeeman Michael Bellotti and State Committeewoman Bernice Mader, Mayor Sheets' administrative assistant, are running for re-election unopposed.

The district is a meandering one that includes Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Norwell and parts of Abington and Rockland.

REP. STEVE TOBIN was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar in a ceremony last night (Wednesday) in the House of Representatives chamber.

And, the honor of administering the oath went to his father, Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin.

Young Tobin, a graduate of Notre Dame and the New England School of Law where he attended nights, took the oath from his father while family members proudly looked on.

Among those attending were his mother, Shirley, wife, Francine and children, Sean and Stephanie.

His uncle, Tim, a Quincy police officer, was there with a camera recording the event for family posterity.

Incidentally, Steve occupies the very seat in the House that his father had when he was state representative from the same district.

AND THERE WAS another milestone recently for the Tobin family.

Daughter Kelly Ann and son-in-law Quincy Special Unit Police Officer Don Greenwood presented Arthur and Shirley with their 15th grandchild: Taylor-Ann Tobin Greenwood Dec. 12 at Brigham and Women's Hospital. Taylor-Ann, the couple's first child, made her debut at 7 pounds, 11 ounces.

She was the "tie-breaker" in the grandchildren ranks. It was all even at seven boys, seven girls until Taylor-Ann's arrival.

The seven granddaughters greeted the news with cheers and chorused: "Girl power, girl power!"

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD view of Quincy Hospital was postmarked in 1919 the year that the city took over the operation of the facility. Opened in 1890, the original buildings and the three acre parcel of land were a gift to the hospital corporation from William B. Rice. His home on Adams Street later became the Rice Eventide Home. For almost 30 years, until the city took it over, the hospital was almost entirely equipped and maintained by a long list of benefactors including the well known Quincy families of Adams, Rice, Faxon and Gordon.

Giarratani Thanks Voters

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Ever since the local election concluded last month, I've had many folks ask me to elaborate my future political plans, and, more directly, whether I would consider running again.

I would like to extend my thanks to all the voters of Quincy who took the time to vote in the Nov. 7 election. I especially want to thank all those who supported my candidacy. It was really great to know that as a somewhat newcomer to the Quincy political arena, that so many offered encouraging support.

The Election Day turnout was super. It was great to see so many voters care enough to brave the heavy downpour and cast their ballots in support of the process by which we choose our municipal leaders.

I received much encouragement from friends and neighbors as to my spirits after the results were in. Naturally, I was a bit disappointed. I am human. My goal was to win and I didn't. But I support the process and the end result of that process. I congratulate all my opponents. Those who won and those, like me, who fell short of that goal. We put ourselves on the line because we cared enough about our community to get involved as candidates.

My objective was to become a member of the school committee to advocate for a strong public school system for our children. I will continue, as a private citizen, to advocate for our children.

It has been a pleasure to have had the opportunity of being a candidate this year. I plan to do it again should the opportunity and desire present itself again in two years.

Quincy Reps Give Thompson Victory

By PAUL HAROLD

By a margin of five votes, Democratic Speaker John Thompson was re-elected Mass. House Speaker, with the support of three of Quincy's state representatives, including Republican Rep. Amelio Della Chiesa.

Dec. 28 - Jan. 3
1963
33 Years Ago

Reformers, led by Gov. Peabody and Sen. Ted Kennedy, included Rep. James McIntyre who mounted the challenged to the "Iron Duke" in the interests of good government.

Rep. Joseph Brett was early in his support for Thompson, saying he was with him "one thousand percent." Rep. Charles Shea, however, was uncommitted in the contest until two days before the vote, when he sided with the speaker.

FORMER QFD STEAMER DRIVER CONNELL DIES

James Connell of Pearl St., former driver of the fire department's horse drawn steamer, died this week.

He had set a record in 1905 when he brought apparatus from Quincy to Whitman for a fire that all but destroyed Whitman Center. He completed the trip in 100 minutes for a record of just better than nine miles an hour.

He also responded to the great 1908 fire in Chelsea and fires that destroyed the Hotel Shelton in Adams Shore and the Hotel Pandora in Houghs Neck.

The horse-drawn steamer was replaced in 1911 by a motorized tractor.

NQHS COACH LEONE LOOKS TO NEXT SEASON

NQHS football coach Carl Leone said that next season could be the brightest in years, noting that only 13 of the 57 players would be graduating. "We'll have experience, size and talent," he said.

North completed 1962 with a 6-3 record.

Leading returnees included Bill Curran, Tom Kiley and Walter Simmons in the backfield and on the line, end Mickey Gillis, center Ed Wojciechowski, guard Paul DeChamp and tackle Tom Hanrahan. Promising new additions would be Lee Munson and Bob Stephansky.

Dom's Asparagus Chicken Cutlet

The night my husband returned from a five day hospital stay, the family all gathered at the house and naturally we thought of food and what we would have. (Especially after eating hospital food).

Our son Dom (who lives three houses down from us) came to the rescue and made delicious chicken cutlets topped with asparagus, and cheese, stuffed mushroom and stuffed yellow and orange peppers.

I had leftover sauce, so my contribution was easy. Just a dish of pasta to go with Dom's gourmet meal. When the plates were fixed, the colors were so well blended, I took a picture of one of them.

The following recipe feeds from 4 to 6 depending on how many cutlets are made.

Dom's asparagus, chicken cutlet.
1 pound of chicken cutlets
1 egg mixed with a little milk enough flour to coat the cutlets enough parmesan cheese for coating olive oil for sauteing.
1/2 pound fresh asparagus shredded mozzarella cheese (enough for topping)

Mix the egg and milk. Flour the cutlets, then dip them in the egg and milk mixture and then the parmesan cheese. Saute them in the hot oil, place on paper towel to drain.

Cook the asparagus until they get as soft as you like. Place the cooked cutlets on a cookie sheet, put two or three asparagus on each cutlet and top it with the mozzarella cheese.

Bake in a 350 degree oven until cheese is melted. Dom said veal cutlets can also be used.

Crane '300 Club' To Benefit Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library Fund Raising Committee announces plans for "Crane 300 Club", an event that will benefit the library's campaign for restoration and renovation of the existing building and proposed expansion.

Only 300 tickets at $100 each are available for purchase by individuals or groups. The first prize is $5,000, the second, $2,000 and the third, $1,000.

The winning ticket will be drawn March 3 at a social from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Richardson Building of the main library in Quincy Square. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served throughout the evening and entertainment provided by Jerry and Nancy Bell, "Celtic Storyteller-Ministrrels". An individual ticket holder or representative of a group purchase may attend the drawing. For purchase information or more details, call the library at 376-1301.

The "Crane 300 Club" is one of a number of events to be presented toward reaching the fund raising goal of one million dollars in three years. Recently, a silent auction for a Boston College basketball package was held, and a Holiday Store selling library associated items is being held at the main library at 40 Washington St. Events for 1996 include a Battle of the Bands in February, an auction of goods and services in April, and a 5K Road Race/Walk and 1K for children in April.

Senior Programs Among Top Priority For Sheets

place now for it," said Sheets. "There's some opportunities that are available to us now that weren't in place two years ago."

Sheets added that he will use statistics about the senior population from mayors' conferences and workshops he has attended as well as others the Quincy Council on Aging has compiled from national aging conferences.

Other top goals Sheets said he will focus on in the coming year include:

- Bringing a state-of-the-art hotel to Quincy Center. Sheets said the project cannot happen until Citizens Bank sells a vacant parking area behind Presidents Place, the mayor's proposed site for the project. He added that he is pleased with the city's efforts to make the plan a reality and hopes the bank sells the property in the near future.

- Working with state and other officials in moving along plans for the proposed Quincy Center Concourse which would link Burgin Parkway with Hancock Street in the downtown. The mayor said that would include the completion of engineering plans and the beginning of a state Environmental Impact Report.

•Working with Mark

Dickinson of Dickinson Development on plans to develop the Hancock Parking Lot into an office/retail area, a project Sheets said goes hand-in-hand with the concourse.

- Construction of an elementary school in Quincy Point and an addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library. Sheets would not comment further on either project, saying "both are so preliminary" at this point.

The mayor also said he is pleased that a number of his priorities for last year came to fruition. Among them:

- Establishment of the Quincy Commission on the Family, a group designed to aid needy families across the city.

- The opening of the USS Salem as the centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum at the Fore River shipyard. Sheets said he was particularly pleased the project was made possible solely through private funding.

- The announcement of a state-funded commuter rail station that Gov. William Weld said last month will open in Quincy Center in 1997.

- Structural and aesthetic improvements to Wollaston Center and to the city's parks and playgrounds.

Sheets noted that, as in the past, his speech will also focus on Quincy's economy and "quality of life" issues such as education, public safety, and the cleanliness of the city.

The mayor said he is proud of the city's current financial status, adding that business people, developers and other mayors have told him they view Quincy "as a city that has its financial act together." The city has gone from a $9 million revenue deficit when he first took office in 1990 to an $8 million surplus in the last two years.

"That's almost a 180-degree turnaround," he said. "And everything you do is predicated on the financial well-being of the city."

Sheets said the city's quality of life has also increased since he took office with the opening of new schools and improvements to existing ones, safer streets and a cleaner community.

Sheets, who is considering a run for the Congressional seat that will be vacated by Congressman Gerry Studds next year, added that he will not make a final decision on that move until after the inauguration.

A Year For Surprises

debated about his chances. Chretien would end up losing in the election, and political newcomer Patrick McDermott would claim the Ward 3 seat.

Sheets appointed at-large Councillor and former Mayor Joseph LaRaia to the Quincy Board of Assessors in July. In September, the City Council named Charles McIntyre, runner-up of the 1993 at-large race, to serve out LaRaia's term.

Many were surprised when 78-year-old retired contractor Roger Lyons challenged the very popular Sheets for the mayor's seat, but few were surprised when the incumbent received more than 80 percent of the vote in the fall.

Perhaps the biggest surprise in the election was the defeat of Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, who lost to 20-year-old college student Michael D'Amico. The young challenger had come close to victory in 1993 before beating Fabrizio the second time around.

Veteran Congressman Gerry Studds, whose district includes Quincy, stunned many supporters when he announced late in the year he would not seek re-election in 1996. Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, a resident of the city, was the first Democrat to announce he would run for the seat.

Others well-known in Quincy had a few surprises up their sleeves.

Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon surprised many when, because of family reasons, he returned to the city in January, one month after taking a new job in Boston.

Quincy High School Director of Drop-Out Prevention Linda Wilson was named Interim President of Quincy College, the first woman to run the school. In August, however, she surprised many by announcing she would not seek renewal of her one-year contract.

Fr. William McCarthy, Quincy's beloved "Father Bill" and longtime St. John's Church pastor, retired in February.

Mary Catherine Iannoni, a 50-year veteran of the field of education, announced in November she would retire from her longtime position as head guidance counselor at Central Middle School.

Quincy Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger resigned and was replaced by long-time Quincy Savings Bank official James Chicino in December.

Gov. William Weld's announcement in November that both Quincy and Braintree would get Old Colony commuter rail stations was considered one of the best surprises of the year by city officials. For a time, it was in doubt which--if either--community would get a station.

Not all surprises were as good, however. Officials announced in January that the planned opening of the discount clothier Decelle at the former Child World in Quincy Center would be delayed because of "structural problems." Before the winter was over, though, it was obvious that the coming of Decelle, which Sheets had termed "a done deal" one year earlier, was never going to happen.

It's always a shock when someone young dies, and there were two particularly tragic deaths in 1995. Matthew Messing, 16, a Quincy High sophomore, died of cardiac arrest in January after being checked during a hockey game. And Scott Portesi, 19, a 1995 graduate of North Quincy High, drowned in August in New Jersey while trying to rescue a friend who was eventually saved by a police officer.

FIREWORKS OVER Quincy College illuminate Quincy Square during the city's third annual First Night celebration.

Other deaths included those of former Police Chief Francis Finn in March, Rev. Esther Sanger, founder of the Quincy Crisis Center, in August and G. Prescott Low, former Patriot Ledger publisher, in September.

And the New England weather, as usual, provided its share of surprises. Residents were pleasantly surprised when temperatures reached into the high 60s in January, melting snow in the process, but were taken off guard when an unexpected ice storm downed power and telephone lines and tree limbs one month later.

And surprise, surprise--here's a look back at the 1995 major news stories in Quincy:

cy High School, died of cardiac arrest after being legally checked during a hockey game against rival North Quincy High.

Thomas Crane Public Library officials announced plans for a $1 million fund-raising drive to help raise money for its planned $9 million addition.

Sheets expressed fears that the new Republican Congress elected the previous November could result in MWRA water and sewer rates being raised. The mayor felt that $100 million in federal money that had been set aside for the state by the Democrats would be lost.

Asher Kramer, chief financial officer at Quincy Hospital, quit his job to take a new position in Boston.

Other deaths in January included: Marie L. Rinaldi, 100, former pizza maker; Carl J. Symonds, 36, Quincy firefighter; Edna M. Gilmore, 95, founded the Family Counseling and Guidance Association of the South Shore; Annette Norman-deau, 100, longtime secretary and PBX operator; Susan B. Bevens, 41, first-ever woman supervisor at Pneumatic Scale; Margaret M. Smith, 61, retired Wheelhouse Diner owner; Mary D. Connell, 78, former social worker and Protestant Social Service Bureau "Woman of the Year."

February

The city's $300,000 FY95 snow and ice budget was exhausted as a result of a winter storm that dumped more than seven inches of snow in Quincy.

The City Council passed a new law banning the use of most circus and carnival animals for public display or amusement in Quincy. Animal rights advocates hailed the decision, saying such operations are cruel by nature; circus and carnival representatives criticized the move as unnecessary.

Kenneth Williamson, 71, of Quincy, died after his car burst into flames in the parking garage at Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

The City Council agreed to put the name of Matthew Messing, the Quincy High School sophomore who died in January, on the "Local Heroes Plaque" in the Council Chambers at City Hall as well as on a "Tot Lot" playground at Boyson Park in Merrymount.

Dr. Linda Wilson was installed as interim president of Quincy College. Wilson became the first woman ever to run the school.

Officials announced that the Quincy Public Schools had begun educating a growing number of homeless children in the city.

Police continued searching for a missing Quincy woman, Donna Parry, 26, who had not been seen or heard from since Jan. 20. The investigation was not announced until February.

Fr. William McCarthy, retiring pastor at St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy, was honored by family members, friends and colleagues during a special Mass at the church.

Mark Gronberg, vice president/treasurer and chief financial officer at

DR. LINDA WILSON was all smiles in February when Quincy College Board of Governors Chairman Daniel Raymondi congratulated her on being named interim president of the college and the first woman to run the school, but she would announce later in the year that she would not seek renewal of her one-year contract.

Brockton Hospital, was selected to replace outgoing Quincy Hospital Chief Financial Officer Asher Kramer.

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority announced that it had abandoned its plan to truck sludge from Nut Island through the city, saying that barges would be used to transport the sludge instead.

Quincy 2000 President Charles D'Aprix announced that alternative tenants were being sought for the site of the vacant Child World and Cummings stores in Quincy Center. Officials had been trying to bring Decelle, a Braintree-based clothier, to the site since late 1994.

Police Chief Francis Mullen ordered increased patrols of detectives in unmarked patrol cars after a number of house breaks in the North Quincy area.

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall, following surgery for removal of a small brain tumor, said he was confident of a full recovery.

School Committee Stephen Durkin suggested that neck guards become mandatory equipment for the city's high school hockey players following neck injuries to players in two other local communities.

Other deaths in February included: Weikko E.

Luoma, 75, former owner of West Quincy Motors; Anthony F. Peruzzi, Quincy attorney for over 40 years; George W. Whalen, 69, FBI special agent for 25 years; Homer Jenks, 80, newsman for 59 years.

March

State Rep. Ronald Mariano announced that the Legislature had approved a $25 million grant for a safety overhaul of the Fore River bridge.

North Quincy's Erin Croke won the state title in the girls' 8- and 9-year-old division of the Elks National Free Throw Contest.

sociation formed a new task force to work with elected officials and other organizations toward the revitalization of the city's downtown business section. A survey of downtown businesses found that most downtown businesses were doing well or holding their own.

State Rep. Michael Bellotti announced that a new State Police team, as a result of speeding vehicles and other traffic violations, would soon be patrolling state roads in Quincy and other South Shore communities.

Mayor James Sheets announced that the city would begin offering limited free parking on the ground level of the Ross Parking Garage in Quincy Center beginning May 1.

The move was part of Sheets' plan to attract more shoppers to the downtown.

Former Police Chief Francis Finn died of heart trouble while vacationing in Florida with his wife, Susan.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro announced he would not seek re-election to an eighth term in the fall election.

Results of a city survey indicated that most people thought traffic in Quincy Center had major problems, including downtown access and congestion, that needed to be addressed.

April

Shaw's Supermarkets Inc. was granted a special permit by the City Council to build a new store at the site of the old Boston Gear Works on the North Quincy-Wollaston line.

FR. WILLIAM MCCARTHY (center), who retired in February as pastor of St. John's Church, was honored by four Quincy mayors and many others as The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" in March. Others from left are former Mayors Arthur Tobin and Joseph LaRaia, Mayor James Sheets and former Mayor Francis McCauley.

City officials announced they were considering filing a lawsuit with the Town of Weymouth, and possibly other Massachusetts Water Resources Authority communities, against the federal government because of cuts in funding for the Boston Harbor Cleanup.

Mayor James Sheets announced the city would offer 450 spaces for limited free parking purposes at the Ross Parking Garage in Quincy Center beginning in May. Originally, the city had planned to offer only 307 spaces.

A memorial service was held for Dr. Michael Agronow at Quincy Hospital. Dr. Agronow, 37, a surgeon at the hospital, died March 16 from an asthma attack about three hours after delivering a baby.

City officials agreed to re-examine a law placing restrictions on signage used by downtown businesses. The matter was brought to the city's attention by the Quincy Center Professional and Business Association (QCPBA).

The Supreme Judicial Court in Boston--the state's highest court--resurrected Quincy's fall 1993 lawsuit challenging the MWRA's methodology for charging its sewer rates. The city previously had lost the suit in a lower court.

Retired Park, Forestry and Cemetery Director Raymond Cattaneo was honored at a dinner at the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

Union Congregational Church in Wollaston celebrated its centennial.

The city celebrated Community Development Week.

Sheets predicted he would submit a proposed FY96 budget of $136.6 million to the City Council, a figure over $3 million more than the previous year's budget.

1,200 Attend Salem Recommissioning

The mayor announced the city would assume management of its parking system—including the Ross Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot—beginning July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

Iqbal Masih, 12, of Pakistan, a former slave who became a human right activist and visited the Broad Meadows Middle School in December 1994, was shot to death in his own country Easter Sunday for speaking out against the oppression there. Students at the school started a petition drive calling for an investigation into his murder.

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc. celebrated its 30th anniversary.

Six new firefighters were sworn in as members of the Quincy Fire Department.

Nancy Coletta, 30, was sworn in as the sixth female member of the Quincy Police Department.

A four-alarm fire destroyed the former Dutton's Restaurant (previously the Fox and Hounds Restaurant) on Sea Street. However, plans to reopen the site as a new establishment, The Custom House, continued.

Deaths in April included: George R. Riley, 60, co-founder and partner of Riley and Rielly Insurance Agency in Quincy, former QCBPA executive director and city official; Charles H. Sweeny, 51, teacher for 29 years; Helen V. Bird, 84, retired Quincy Hospital nurse; Leo T. Skeffington, 71, maintenance worker at St. Ann's Church; Doris A. Ricciuti, real estate broker and Simmons College employee; Nancy Scorza, 83, cafeteria worker for Quincy Public Schools.

May

The Quincy License Board voted 3-2 to give a new D'Angelo's/Pizza Hut the go-ahead to open a restaurant next to North Quincy High School.

Quincy Hospital officials called for an audit of Natick-based Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Service, which provides ambulances to the hospital. The action came after Quincy Atty. Raymondi announced that at least two of his clients had been wrongly charged by the company.

Mayor James Sheets submitted a proposed FY96 municipal budget of $136.6 million to the City Council.

The city's annual Law Day ceremonies were held at Quincy District Court.

Nearly 1,000 volunteers participated in the sixth annual Cleaner-Greener Quincy Campaign.

About 1,200 people witnessed the recommissioning of the USS Salem, the centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum at the Fore River shipyard.

Results of a traffic study conducted by a local engineering firm revealed that construction of the proposed Quincy Center Concourse would help improve the traffic situation in the city's downtown section.

Girls from the city's

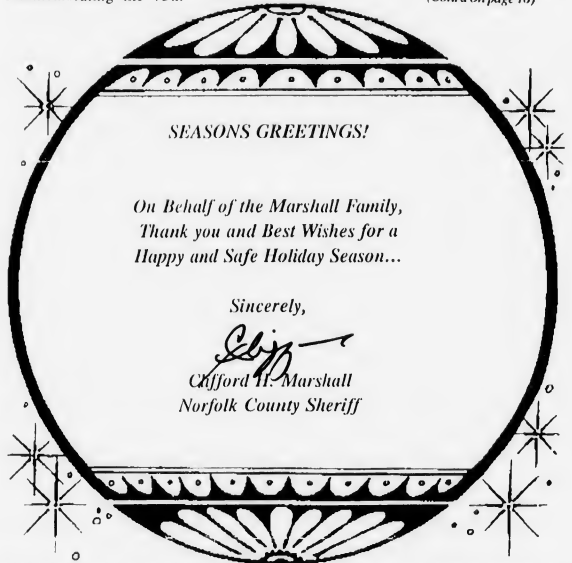

U.S.S. SALEM at the Fore River shipyard drew a huge crowd of about 1,200 including city officials, former crew members and other well-wishers during recommissioning ceremonies in May. The 718-foot heavy cruiser became the centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

June

Officials from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) and the Quincy Department of Public Works said the much-maligned Wollaston Beach was clean and safe for swimming.

Mayor James Sheets expressed skepticism about City Council President Michael Cheney's proposal to have the city assume responsibility for its own rubbish pickup and disposal. The mayor said privatization of the contract has worked well for Quincy and only a tremendous financial savings would make him want to do otherwise.

The City Council slashed $863,142 from Sheets' proposed $136.6 million municipal budget, the largest such cut in years. A final budget of $135.7 million was approved.

South Shore Habitat for Humanity announced a plan to build up to 10 houses in Quincy Point for lower-income families.

Quincy College, Quincy High School and North Quincy High School graduated 763, 255 and 282 students respectively.

Joseph Mannarino was named executive director of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation. He previously had been named interim executive director following the resignation of Charles D'Aprix in March.

The City Council passed two measures to help reduce the problem of graffiti in the city.

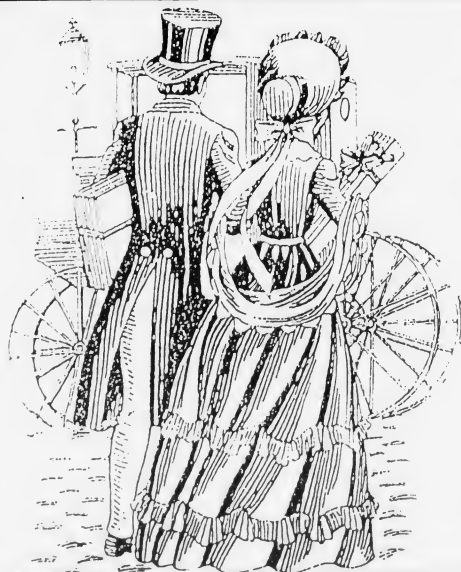

The City Council passed a "pooper scooper" law to make residents clean up after their pets in public areas.

The council also approved increasing most fees for city services for the first time since 1978.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said he did not like the idea of Keno operations in the city's convenience stores because it takes away from the family atmosphere of such establishments.

Fr. Joseph Downey, former pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Quincy Point, celebrated the 50th anniversary of his ordination as a priest.

DeCristofaro suffered a mild seizure caused by a medication imbalance. The seizure forced him to sit out the Quincy Flag Day Parade; his wife and son took over his role as grand marshal.

The Quincy Housing Authority received a rating of 2.78 out of a possible 3.0—the highest marks given any housing authority in the state—from the state Executive Office of Communities and Development.

Rev. Harry Soper Jr., pastor of Quincy Community United Methodist Church in Wollaston, retired after serving 44 years as a minister.

About 2,000 music fans attended the third annual City of Presidents Blues Festival at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Other deaths in June included: Philip J. Sprague, former WBZ-TV employee, while mountain climbing; Carmen J. Nicotia, 71, retired partner in the Sumner Bakery; Leila P. Hunt, 98, retired Bethany Congregational Church secretary; Thomas C. Andrew, 75, retired Quincy deputy fire chief; Antimo A. Pasquale, 65, retired owner of Mr. Kelly's Restaurant; Dorothy L. Osborne, 89, first woman president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

July

The city assumed management of its downtown municipal parking system. However, concerns from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association—which resulted in lower parking rates than what the city originally proposed—and problems with the arrival of necessary equipment caused a delay in the start of the new system, resulting in over a month of free parking.

The Quincy Interfaith

Sheltering Coalition and Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services joined forces in a program to provide housing for homeless women.

Mayor James Sheets named Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia to the Quincy Board of Assessors. LaRaia was named to replace board member Henry Bertolon, who would retire at the end of the month.

The council passed Sheets' $3.7 million bond package for a new computer system for all of Quincy's schools and other city projects.

The annual city census showed slight increases in Quincy's overall and minority populations.

City and library officials were shocked the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center received no funding from a state grant for Massachusetts library projects. Sheets said he would consider earmarking city funds for a planned expansion of the Crane library when library officials seek state money for the project in 1996.

An audit of an ambulance firm that provides service to Quincy Hospital was completed, and city officials said they wanted the company to put $500,000 in an escrow account for wrongfully-billed patients. Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Company, which had previously admitted accidentally overbilling patients in Quincy, said a figure of $200,000 would be fairer.

The Metropolitan District Commission purchased the former Kent's Carpetland on Quincy Shore Drive, which previously had been destroyed by fire, for $128,000. Officials said the MDC would use the property to increase its Wollaston Beach Reservation properties.

A celebration in honor of Rev. Esther Sanger, founder and executive director of the Quincy Crisis Center who had recently been diagnosed with terminal cancer, was held at The Ocean Terrace in Marina Bay.

Deaths in July included: Katherine E. Spargo, 86, talented singer, painter and gardener; Liborio Orlando, 79, longtime Quincy Cemetery Department/Quincy Hospital employee; Marion M. Dolan, 74, former Fore River shipyard clerk; Anne T. Murdock, 60, retired Long Island Shelter coordinator; Edna D. Hodgkinson, 104, former Quincy Hospital nurse; Thomas F. Mantville, 51, cable splicer known for his charity work; Henry T. Roche, 71, retired Shawmut Bank supervisor and past Morrisette American Legion Post commander; Col. James D. Papile, decorated Army veteran of three wars;

QUINCY CENTER SIDEWALK FESTIVAL in July featured a number of attractions including a K-9 Demonstration that included "Quinto" from the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

August

In an effort to relieve overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School in South Quincy, School Committee members Daniel Raymondi and Ronald Mariano introduced a plan that called for, among other things, construction of a new elementary school in Quincy Point.

Eastern Nazarene College announced it had purchased the 3-acre parcel that includes the Presidents City Motel properties in Wollaston. College officials said the properties would be used for classrooms and/or dormitories.

Teresa Hughes, 18-month-old daughter of John and Veronica Hughes of Franklin St., was the winner in The Beautiful Baby Contest sponsored by The Quincy Sun, Fine Light Photography and the Muscular Dystrophy Association which raised $5,001 for MDA.

Quincy school officials expressed pride in the selection of Thomas W. Payzant, a Quincy native and U.S. assistant education secretary, as Boston's new school superintendent. Gov. William Weld signed into law Mayor James Sheets' home-rule petition to reorganize the city's inspection departments.

Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien, chairman of the Quincy Recycling Committee, and City Council President Michael Cheney clashed over the city's recycling program. Chretien said the city was getting its money's worth, while Cheney disagreed and requested a city audit of the program.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton responded to Cheney's request by saying an audit would be conducted in a timely manner and refuted Cheney's charge that the city's rubbish/recycling contract with Browning-Ferris Industries had cost the city thousands of dollars. Cheney said his research proved pickup of rubbish and recyclables done by the city or another company would be less expensive.

The Rite Aid drugstore in Quincy Center, which had been open for 20 years, was put up for sale as part of the discount chain's decision to pull out of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Quincy College Interim President Linda Wilson announced she would not seek renewal of her one-year contract which expires Jan. 1. Members of the college's Board of Governors said they would begin a search for a permanent president as soon as possible.

Scott G. Portesi, 19, a 1995 graduate of North Quincy High School, drowned in Spring Lake, N.J. while trying to rescue a friend. His friend was rescued by a police officer who was unable to help Portesi.

September

Mayor James Sheets expressed skepticism about a proposal by City Council President Michael Cheney to have the city collect and dispose its own rubbish and recyclables. Sheets said it would be hard for anyone to exceed the professionalism of Browning-Ferris Industries (which currently performs the service for the city) despite Cheney's claim that the city or another company could do it for less money.

Sheets said the city could begin a satellite parking system, which would provide Quincy Center shoppers with more parking spaces, as soon as November.

Norfolk-Bristol ASA-Ambulance Systems of America, which provides services to the city through Quincy Hospital, agreed to pay the city $500,000 for mistakenly overbilling Quincy residents for its services.

Sheets expressed tentative support of a suggested site for a new elementary school in Quincy Point. The site, proposed by two School Committee members, is an MWRA-owned parking lot at Cleverly Court and South St.

Sheets called a planned

Old Colony Railroad Station an "economic stimulus" that would be beneficial to the city.

Former School Committeeman Charles Sweeney was named to the Quincy Board of Registrars. Sweeney replaced Louise Randall, who retired.

In the city's preliminary election for Wards 4 and 5, Michael D'Amico and Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio emerged victorious out of a four-candidate field in Ward 4 while School Committeeman Stephen Durkin and Steven Reilly defeated their two opponents in Ward 5. D'Amico, who lost to Fabrizio in the city's final election in 1993, topped him by 180 votes in the 1995 preliminary.

A giant sinkhole opened in Burgin Parkway when a rain-swollen culvert blew out beneath the road. Traffic would be affected for about a month before repairs were completed in October.

Results of an Impact Quincy survey indicated that use of alcohol and marijuana among Quincy youth has dropped since 1994.

Charles McIntyre, son of the late Mayor-Sen. James McIntyre, was sworn-in to finish Councillor Joseph LaRaia's unexpired council term. LaRaia left the council after Sheets named him to the Quincy Board of Assessors.

School Committeewoman Linda Stice was named executive director of Sheets' Quincy Commission on the Family.

More than 500 people from around the country attended the seventh annual USS Salem Association Reunion.

Deaths in September included: G. Prescott Low, 82, former Patriot Ledger publisher; Marcia L. Olinto, 51, account executive and former Ward 1 City Council candidate; Melvin Burak, 75, research electronic engineer; Marguerite E. Jones, 87, former Pneumatic Scale Clerk; Thomas D. Five New Councillors Elected

October

Following confusion and complaints about impersonal service about the Quincy Police Department's new computerized phone system, Mayor James Sheets ordered that telephone operators be brought back to the department to man the system.

Quincy 2000 announced a new program that would make available $300,000 in matching grants for improvements to commercial properties in the city.

Thirty-nine of 54 city businesses passed a Quincy Health Department test by refusing to sell cigarettes to minors working undercover for the department. Twelve of the 15 offenders were issued warnings while three second offenders were fined $100 each.

Cheney announced that a senior citizen shuttle service to designated Quincy shopping areas would begin by December. Atlantic Development of Hingham, as part of an earlier special permit deal with the City Council, donated $60,000 for the start-up of the shuttle program.

South Cove Community Health Center, a Boston-based Asian-American clinic, opened a new satellite clinic in North Quincy.

Dr. Susan Weld, wife of Gov. William Weld, spoke at Impact Quincy's annual "It Takes A Community To Raise A Child" conference.

The proposed $5.9 million Quincy Center Concourse met mostly opposition at a City Council public hearing. City officials said they favored a Mechanic St. route for the second phase, or east link of the project—rather than a Revere Rd. route—because less downtown businesses would be affected.

A Squantum Gardens/Naval Terrace Housing Committee was formed to consider the future use of the Naval housing following the closing of the South Weymouth Naval Air Base.

The Mollie Hirschberg Learning Center at South Shore Mental Health was dedicated in memory of a longtime SSMH volunteer and co-founder of its board of directors.

The council established a $1 million stabilization fund to help offset sky rocketing Massachusetts Water Resources Authority water and sewer rates.

A majority of Quincy Center Business and Professional Association members agreed to keep their stores open until 8 p.m. on Thursdays in an effort to boost sales and make shopping more convenient for area residents.

Lady Bird Johnson, wife of the late U.S. President Lyndon Johnson, visited the Adams National Historic Site.

Kent Hill was re-elected to another four-year term as president of Eastern Nazarene College by the college's board of trustees.

A groundbreaking was held for a new elderly/handicapped complex sponsored by Wollaston Lutheran Church.

The Quincy License Board proposed increases in fees for licenses it issues and agreed to vote upon the changes in November.

Thomas Cataldo, senior vice president of State Street Realty Trust, was elected chairman and president of Quincy 2000.

Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt announced his candidacy for the Congressional seat being vacated by U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds.

Deaths in October included: Deeb M. Abouzeid, 75, Webster's Eatery owner, struck and killed by a car; Ann L. Markel, 58, South Shore Mental Health employee; John P. Daley, 21, film production student; Joseph T. Wood, 73, attorney and former School Committee candidate; Sophie M. Gallagher, 78, founder of a Cub Scout pack for the retarded; Robert F. Clements, 70, Boston firefighter for 34 years.

November

Five new city councillors were elected in the city's municipal election: School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond, Ward 2; Patrick McDermott, Ward 3; 20-year-old Michael D'Amico, the youngest councillor ever elected in the city's history, Ward 4; School Committeeman Stephen Durkin, Ward 5 and former state Sen. and Councillor Paul Harold, at-large.

Christine Cedrone and former Mayor Francis McCauley were the new faces elected to the School Committee, while Mayor James Sheets and School Committee members Linda Stice and Sean Barry were re-elected.

In the city's first-ever Kids Vote election, Quincy youngsters chose all the same winners adults did in the municipal election.

Pay raises totaling 11 percent over three years were approved by the City Council.

Ninety people applied for the permanent presidency of Quincy College. By the end of the month, a presidential search committee would have the number down to eight semi-finalists.

The City Council appropriated $200,000 for police foot patrols in Quincy Point and Southwest Quincy and $250,000 for new gear for the fire department.

Susan Gallagher announced her candidacy for U.S. Senate as a member of the new Conservative ERIC WOOD (No. 16) mans the point while his teammates swarm the net. It was a rare position for the forward to be in as he did most of the offensive damage for the Red Raiders in their 4-4 tie with Silver Lake.

Hockey

North Finds Net, Looking For First Win

The North Quincy High School hockey team has been one of the school's premier program over the past few seasons with regular runs deep into the Division I tournament.

But to reach those heights again will be difficult for coach Tom Benson and his rebuilding Red Raiders.

They attempted to take a step in the right direction Saturday with a 4-4 tie against Old Colony League opponent Silver Lake. Though not a win it was a coming out party for the Red Raiders (0-2-1) offense which was held to a total of two goals in the first two games of the season, a pair of 4-1 losses to Plymouth South and Falmouth.

The Red Raiders hope the change in offensive fortunes will continue Saturday when they travel to New Bedford for a non-league game at 6 p.m.

The sudden surge in the offense was sparked by the first line of juniors Billy Barron and Eric Wood and Barron's sophomore brother, John. The three were put together for the first time this season and had a hand in North Quincy's first three goals, leading the club to a 3-1 advantage in the second period.

"I don't like to call it a rebuilding year," said Benson. "But we have a lot of young kids and it seems like they're starting to come around. We would have liked to have a couple of wins under our belt right now, but we'll take this. We still have a long way to go, though."

"Overall tonight I was happy with our first-line effort and the way our defense played."

It was the defense, led by captain Dan Stone, alternate Matt Jarnis, Dan Stock and Dan Hughes which staved off some heavy Silver Lake pressure as the Red Raiders held a 2-1 lead in the second period following goals by Wood and John Barron.

Two Red Raiders were sent to the penalty box, one at 9:12 and the other at 11:21 of the second. The Lakers had a two-man advantage for 21 seconds but were able to get off just one shot. North Quincy had to fend off a one-man advantage for another 1:09 and again the visiting Lakers unloaded just one shot on goalie Brian Beaton, who made 25 saves in the contest (including two with a well-placed noggin).

With the teams at even strength, the Red Raiders quickly added another goal to make it 3-1. John Barron fell down breaking to the net but managed to slip the puck to Wood in the right slot. Wood uncorked a rising shot that found the inside corner of the far post.

It appeared North Quincy would take the comfortable two-goal margin into the final period, but an unidentified Silver Lake player, amid a heavy scrum in front of Beaton, managed to slip the puck between the pipes as the clock ran out in the period.

Silver Lake added two more in the third to take a 4-3 lead at 11:18.

With just 1:26 to play in the game, Stone, standing tall in the slot as the Red Raiders applied heavy pressure during a stretch of 4-on-4 hockey, fired a bullet and beat sprawling goaltender Arthur Miner with the equalizer.

O'Malley's Boxing Show Saturday In Braintree

By JIMMY FARRELL, Jr.

O'Malley's Boxing Gymnasium will present an action-packed evening of amateur boxing Saturday, Dec. 30 at the Braintree Armory.

The bouts will serve as a warm-up for the boxers for the Golden Gloves Tournament which begins Jan. 9 in Lowell.

Several O'Malley's fighters are scheduled to appear, including Amateur Boxing Federation champion Tyrone Smith, one of the top four heavyweights in the country and a serious contender to make the 1996 U.S. Olympic team.

Also slated for action is Kevin Watts of South Boston, O'Malley's other New England Boxing Federation champion. It may be his final amateur bout before turning professional.

Watts is fighting on the card because two of his brothers, Ronnie Watts and Billy Sheela, are also scheduled to box.

Several other South Shore fighters are scheduled to compete, including Matt Carey of Abington, who is being courted to box by three colleges, and Weymouth middleweight Michael Murphy, who will be looking for his second straight knockout.

Super prospect Chris Conte, 13, of Quincy, will fight Eric Fagan of Rhode Island. Quincy's former Junior Olympic legend, Steve Scielgiano, once a 147-pound champion who now weighs in at 220 pounds, will box for the first time in nine years.

Whitman's Morganello brothers, Nick and Mike, and the Seituata's Adam Fraser will also fight.

Goody Petronelli's budding superstar, Jeff Boudreau of Marshfield, will fight Jose Ortega of Marshfield. O'Malley's boxers Red McKeague of Hyde Park and John Gwynn of South Boston are also on the card.

Mariano: 'Work Is The Price Of Excellence' Motivation The Key To Quincy's Success

Motivation. It's what makes bad teams good and mediocre coaches great.

Teams that succeed, teams that achieve excellence, do so through motivation. It's no secret. You hear about it all the time. But it is easier said than done.

For some coaches, motivation comes easy. It is a part of who they are. They don't learn motivation. They don't teach motivation. They live it, they exude it. They are motivation.

One such person is Carmen Mariano. I had never met the man until last Thursday when he spoke at the 20th reunion of the Quincy High School wrestling team. But that's all it took to suddenly understand why the wrestling teams he coached were consistently among the best in the state; to understand why the QHS wrestling program is, year after year, one of the best athletic programs in the school.

The reason is motivation, as personified by Mariano. "Kids would run through walls for him," said Rich Ragusa, who attended the reunion as a representative of the North Quincy High School wrestling team. Ragusa coached Quincy teams throughout his career as a Red Raider.

the 1930s and 40s. But what Mariano lacked in understanding he made up for in motivation.

He rebuilt a program in

Wrestling

Councilor-at-large Tim Cahill, who wrestled for Mariano and won a sectional title at 169 pounds in 1977, echoed Ragusa's sentiment almost word for word. "You'd just do anything for him," he added.

"He was the super-ultimate motivator," said current Quincy coach Lou Venturilli, who became a state champion wrestler under Mariano. "He led by example. When he asked you to do all those push-ups and sit-ups he did it himself. His philosophy was to get the kids in tip-top physical condition then teach them a few basics of the sport."

Mariano did not wrestle in high school and took up the sport only briefly in college. He was not some omniscient being of the wrestling world. Much of what he learned about wrestling came from listening to his father, Luigi, tell him stories of the great Quincy teams of the mid-70s which had been defunct for over 30 years. By his own admission he brought with him just a basic understanding of the sport and learned a great deal as he went.

After a couple of tough seasons for the young program it ran of an amazing streak of excellence. In one eight-year period the Quincy grapplers posted a 144-11 record in dual meets. That's a 930 winning percentage for those of you keeping track at home. From 1976-77 to 1982-83 Quincy won five South Sectional titles. "We weren't beating teams with intricate moves," he said. "We were beating them with determination."

The reason? He would not settle for anything less than, as he put it, excellence.

"I've learned three things about excellence," he said. "Excellence is expensive. Excellence is worth it. And best of all, excellence is available." His teams paid the price ("that price is on our banners, that price is work") and he is not shy about letting you know that his Quincy teams were excellent.

Sound cocky? Perhaps. But Mariano did not take credit for what his teams were able to accomplish.

"How do I know about excellence?" he said to his former players gathered at the reunion. "I know about excellence because you've shown me. You feared mediocrity more than you feared failure."

Mariano launched into the type of speech which surely would have fired up many a testosterone-filled 16-year-old high school boy.

"Thousands of athletes have tried to swim the English channel. Only a few have succeeded. Compared to what you are capable of, swimming the English Channel is nothing! People can do anything. You can do anything."

"On your worst days be good. On your best days be excellent. And on all other days get better."

"That message was part of your team. It still is."

Low Numbers Hurting NQ In Win Column

The North Quincy High School wrestling team has struggled in the win column but boasts a number of outstanding wrestlers who have performed well in this young season.

Lack of numbers have caused the Red Raiders and coach Mike Mauriello to give up an insurmountable 30 points per meet, leading to an 0-6 record.

However, because of the fine showings of some wrestlers the coach feels his troops will do well in the Marshfield Tournament today (Thursday) and tomorrow.

"I expect a lot of our guys to place in the tournament," said Mauriello. Eighteen teams are scheduled to take part in the two-day event.

Leading North Quincy so far has been 112-pound senior Ed Ford who is 5-0, having won all five matches by pin. Other Red Raiders with wins under their belts are seniors Joe West (140), Dan O'Donnell (152) and Sean Hughes (189); juniors Sean O'Toole (130), Mike Greene (135) and Neil Costa (160); sophomore Matt Kane (103) and freshman Chris Berra (125).

The Red Raiders have been giving up six points each meet in the 119, 152, 171, 215 and heavyweight classes. The gap at 119 was supposed to be filled by senior captain Jason Gibson who recently broke his wrist. He is expected to return by the end of January.

"Once we get everyone back we'll be in good shape," said Mauriello.

After the Marshfield Tournament the Red Raiders are scheduled to host Silver Lake Wednesday, Jan. 3 at 7 p.m.

With his low numbers but skilled wrestlers Mauriello feels his team will fare better in individual tournaments than in dual meets.

Sports League For Physically Challenged Children

Practice and registration for a youth soccer and basketball league for physically challenged children will take place Saturday, Jan. 6 at 9 a.m. at the St. Joseph School Gym, Pray St., Quincy Point.

The league is for children ages 6-14. The donation fee is $10.00. Youngsters from all towns are welcome to participate.

For more information call Ford at 471-3182, or Mitchell at 471-2672.

My New Year's resolution for 1996: I will not use this space for self-deprecation, mockery of public officials, or as a forum for subjects other than sports.

So anyway, my friends have been asking me "Kerry, you're a widely influential and powerful figure in the world of journalism, so find out why the city's snow removal budget is already depleted despite the fact that winter started just a few days ago."

Well, I can't answer that folks. I have a resolution to uphold. But I figured I'd throw that out there.

Now to my annual review of the year in sports: (ed. note: A really lame prize will go to anyone who can name two of the performers of songs quoted below. Clues are provided.)

Winner of the "You Really Got a Hold on Me" best team performance award.

The 1994-95 QHS wrestling team takes this prize. After finishing third in the league last season, they surprised everyone by smoking the competition and capturing the South Sectional championship.

Winner of the "I'm Not Your Stepping Stone" best coaching award.

First-year NQHS girls soccer coach Paul Gregoli didn't monkey around. The 1994 Red Raiders won one game and scored just a handful of goals in an entire season of play. Gregoli took over and immediately set high expectations. After two games in 1995, the Red Raiders were 2-0 and had scored six goals. They finished at 8-9-1. Look for bigger things next year.

Winner of the "Thanks for the Memories" award:

Quincy High School football player Tim Santos hoped for this one. The junior had never anticipated a field goal, but with 13 seconds left in the Thanksgiving Day game against North Quincy, he booted a 20-yard kick to give his team a 9-7 win. It was the only time in 63 meetings that a Q-NQ football game was decided by a field goal. If he never plays another down, the full-back/linebacker/kicker has a memory to last a lifetime.

The "One Way Or Another (I'm Gonna Get You)" award for worst nickname.

He'll vow revenge for me writing this, but in his youth football days with the Houghs Neck Manets Tim Santos was known as Bubblehead. Debbie Harry's nickname wasn't quite so bad.

Winner of the "Ballad of the Green Berets" award.

Paul Picciano, who served his country as co-captain of the NQ football team. I was impressed with his emotion and determination throughout the football season. He epitomized what the high school game is all about. NQ coach Ken McPhee always seems to draw out the grittiness in many of his players.

Worst I am AD, Hear Me Roar move of the year (aka the "Don't Mess with Bill" award).

No contest. Esteemed AD Bill Walker wins for having the cops drag at least one well-behaved individual off the sidelines of the Q-NQ Thanksgiving Day football game. The adult individual has been on the sidelines for just about every QHS football game for the past 10 years. The individual is a one-time ball boy and player for QHS, had a sideline pass, and was alone. Others on the sideline, including several without passes, were baffled by the AD's move. The AD reportedly had his vision blocked by a swelled chest and his reasoning thrown off kilter by a big head.

Winner of the "It Only Takes a Minute (Bill)" award.

Wow! It's a big year for AD Bill Walker. I bestow this award upon him after having handled calls from parents wondering why I don't write about their sons and daughters who've won various OCL awards. I can't write about what I don't know. The AD has the info, folks. Give him a call at 984-8782 and tell him to send it to me. He'd love to hear from you.

Winner of the Schoolhouse Rock "I'm Just a Bill" trifecta.

That's right, folks. Esteemed AD Bill Walker pulls off the three-peat. Why? Why not!

Winner of the "What Kind of Fool am I" award for poor prognostication.

Kerry J. Byrne, a working-class dog proclaimed by the masses as The Football Guy, predicted in this space that the New England Patriots would go 11-5 (they went 6-10), that Auburn would win the national title (they won't) and that Auburn running back Stephen Davis would win the Heisman Trophy (he didn't).

"You're an idiot," said one co-worker.

Winner of the "Everybody Wants Some" award for accurate sports predictions.

Quincy Sun ink-stained news wretch and closet rock star Mike (Van) Whalen predicted boldly, and correctly, that the Patriots would sweep their season series with both the inept New York Jets and playoff-bound Buffalo Bills. He also accurately foretold of a split with the Miami Dolphins. The swami's crystal ball was not all-knowing, as Van Whalen also called for a split with the Indianapolis Colts. The Colts beat the Patriots twice.

Evergreen Program To Mulch Christmas Trees For Sixth Year

The Quincy Evergreen Program will once again accept Christmas trees in need of mulching.

Trees may be dropped off at the Recycling Center in the rear of the Quincy Department of Public Works Building, 55 Sea St.

The program, which is now in its sixth year, is sponsored by Jay Cashman Inc., 77 Federal Ave. Mayor James Sheets' office also assists with the effort.

Everyone who brings in a tree to be mulched will receive a coupon for a live 10-inch evergreen plant which will be available until April. Used gift wrapping paper may also be exchanged for an evergreen coupon.

Trees and wrapping paper may be brought to the DPW building weekdays through Jan. 12 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturdays, Dec. 30, Jan. 6 and 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The program is open to Quincy residents only. For more information, call the DPW at 376-1599.

Jan. 3 Registration For Girls Soccer

The Quincy Recreation Department will offer two new soccer skills programs for girls as part of its expanded after school and evening activities.

Each program is designed to improve fundamental soccer skills. Participants will take part in drills, mini-games and contests.

The programs will be under the direction of North Quincy High School girls soccer coach Paul Bregoli. It is free and for Quincy residents only.

There will be different locations for each age group. The program for girls in grades 9-12 will take place Mondays from 6-8:30 p.m. at Broad Meadows Middle School. It begins Dec. 8.

For girls in grades 5-8 the program will be held Wednesdays from 6-8:30 p.m. at Atlantic Middle School. It begins Dec. 10.

Registration and introduction for both programs will be held Wednesday, Jan. 3 at Atlantic from 6-8 p.m.

Registration will continue at each site on the night of the program. Participants are required to wear sneakers.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Squantum Gardens, Naval Terrace Committee Meeting Jan. 4

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Michael Bellotti announce the South Weymouth Naval Air Subcommittee will meet Thursday, Jan. 4 at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The subcommittee was formed to plan for the reuse of Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace in North Quincy which is expected to be vacated by the Navy by September 1996 as a result of the closing of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station in Weymouth. The monthly meetings are open to the public.

The meeting agenda will include: updates from the various committees of the subcommittee that have met since last month's meeting; an overview of the recent tour of the Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace facilities; a review of a tour to an elderly non-profit corporate housing development in Springfield; and public comments and suggestions.

For more information, call Morrissey at 722-1494 or Bellotti at 722-2210.

OBITUARIES

Primo L. Caobelli, 83
Boston Gear Works Machinist

A funeral Mass for Primo L. Caobelli, 83, of Quincy, was celebrated Dec. 22 in St. Mary's Church.

Mr. Caobelli died Dec. 19 at the Massachusetts Respiratory Hospital in Braintree after a long illness.

A machinist for the former Boston Gear Works in Wollaston, he retired in 1975 after 38 years of service.

He was a long-time usher at the 6:30 Mass at St. Mary's Church in West Quincy and was one of the first volunteers for the church bingo.

Mr. Caobelli was a lifelong resident of Quincy.

He is survived by his wife of 55 years, Alice E. (Lucier) Caobelli; a son, Paul A. Caobelli of Quincy; three daughters, Alice M. Paceretti and Mary T. Campbell, both of Quincy, and Ann R. Anderson of Jersey City, N.J.; five grandchildren, a great-grandchild, a nephew and a niece.

Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 326 Copeland St.

Donations may be made to the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association or to the St. Mary's Building Fund.

Anna J. Conroy, 93

grade or negatively criticize someone or some project. So instead, let each of us try P.M.A. for the coming year.

Begin by believing in yourself... If you first accept and like yourself, you can then accept and like others. By having confidence in your own abilities, whether as a father, mother, daughter, son, businessman or woman, etc., you will very likely succeed. A happy successful individual is one who is apt to have trust and faith in others and inspires them to have faith in themselves and to likewise succeed in their endeavors.

Believe in yourself, your family and your friends. Look for the good in all these and do something for each of them each day. This is what life is all about! This is P.M.A.

one outdoor tent, Cheney said. Among those hosting indoor events will be Adams Academy, Bethany Congregational Church Sanctuary, United First Parish Church (sanctuary and basement), New City Hall (atrium and Conference Room), Old City Hall (Council Chambers), Presidents Place (atrium, National Park Service Visitors Center, and elsewhere), Quincy High School (theatre and gym), Center for Technical Education Gym, Thomas Crane Public Library (Main Reading Room and Children's Room), Woodward School Gym, YMCA Gym, Bank of Boston, South Shore Tent One, and Central Baptist Church (church and hall).

Cheney said the most significant new event at the First Night celebration will be the laser light show which will be held at 7:30 and 11:30 and will be projected, accompanied by music, against Presidents Place.

He added that the show is being done by Phoenix Productions of San Antonio, Texas, a company well-respected in their field.

"They come highly recommended," said Cheney, who added that the 3-D laser show will be in all color.

There will also be various ethnic themes at sites throughout Quincy Center. For instance, Cheney said, an all-Irish location will be set up at Adams Academy beginning at 8 p.m., an all-

French "Midnight in Paris" event will be held at Presidents Place starting at 7 p.m., and Italian and Jewish music and Jewish kosher foods will be among the highlights at the annual International Food Festival at the Center for Technical Education which begins at 4 p.m.

Listing some of the other highlights of the celebration, Cheney noted that this year's parade will begin at 7 p.m. at Presidents Place and will travel down Temple, Hancock and Coddington streets.

Large crowds are expected in attendance at the celebration, Cheney noted that this year's parade will begin at 7 p.m. at Presidents Place and will travel down Temple, Hancock and Coddington streets.

The International Food Festival, another favorite during the city's previous three First Night events, will be held throughout the night and will feature a variety of delicacies as well as several performers.

A Pickup Truck Float Contest, an event begun last year, will offer first, second and third prizes of $1,000, $500 and $250 respectively for those who most creatively decorate their trucks.

Cheney said the truck contest should not cost participants any money to speak of because they can simply use their holiday ornaments and lights to decorate the vehicles.

Those wishing to participate in the contest should call Bill Morrill at 773-1439 or the First Night Office at 376-1071.

Entertainment will be provided by a number of musical and theatrical groups at the various sites. A number of "roving entertainers" including clowns and jugglers will be outdoors throughout the night, while other activities will include face painting, hat making, karaoke and more.

All events are handicapped accessible. Free parking will be available at Presidents Place, Ross Parking Garage, Hancock Parking Lot and other designated lots. Restrooms will be open at a number of the event sites.

Cheney said he does not anticipate weather to be a factor since the great majority of activities are happening inside, and others can be moved inside in case of rain.

"The event will go on rain or shine," he said. "Although the forecast for that night is nice."

Neither smoking nor drinking is permitted at any of the First Night locations.

Major First Night sponsors include the City of Quincy, Roche Bros., Shaw's, Stop & Shop, Atlantic Development Co., Pilgrim Health Care, Harvard Community Health Plan, American Medical Response of Massachusetts, Modern Continental American SAE, Browning-Ferris Industries, Impact Quincy and the Massachusetts Cultural Council (MCC).

Individual First Night site sponsors include South Boston Savings Bank, Quincy Hospital, MCC, South Shore Building Trades Council, Bank of Braintree, Parks and Transportation departments, Dickinson Development, Citizens Bank,

Quincy 2000, First Night Quincy, Continental Cablevision, WJDA, New England Foundation for the Arts, Fiesta Shows, State Street Bank, Mass. Electric, Dependable Cleaners, Arbella Mutual Insurance, and the Quincy Arts Council.

Sponsors of the various ice sculptures made by Atlantic Ice Sculpture Co. of Weymouth are North Shore Recycled Fibers, Cashman Companies, Bank of Boston, New England Fertilizer, Dunkin' Donuts, Fallon Ambulance and South Shore Plaza. The parade is sponsored by International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers 103-National Electrical Contractors' Association and Bonkers 19, the laser show by Stop & Shop in Quincy and the fireworks by Roche Bros.

First Night '96 is funded in part by a grant from the New England Foundation for the Arts with additional support from the Massachusetts Cultural Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Agencies that provided in-kind services for the event include The Quincy Sun, WJDA Radio, Continental Cablevision, The Patriot Ledger, Bonkers 19, South Shore Building Trade Council, Emergency Services Management, Quincy Arts Council and Home Depot in Quincy.

Admission buttons are $7 before the day of the event, when they will be sold for $10, and offer access to all First Night events. Buttons may be purchased at the First Night Store, First Night Information Booth at "Button Island" (the island between Presidents Place and City Hall), Osco Drug, Stop & Shop Supermarkets, Shaw's Supermarkets, Tedeschi Food Stores, City Hall, Dunkin' Donuts, and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Cheney said First Night Quincy already is working to make next year's event even bigger and better.

"We already have some plans to top this," he said.

Cheney added, however, that volunteers are still needed to help out at this year's celebration. A volunteers' meeting was scheduled for last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

A Thought For The Week

To each and every one of you, we at Deware wish you a happier, healthier and more prosperous New Year. As we begin the New Year, let us all start with a Positive Mental Attitude (P.M.A.). It is always easier to downgrade or negatively criticize someone or some project. So instead, let each of us try P.M.A. for the coming year.

Begin by believing in yourself... If you first accept and like yourself, you can then accept and like others. By having confidence in your own abilities, whether as a father, mother, daughter, son, businessman or woman, etc., you will very likely succeed. A happy successful individual is one who is apt to have trust and faith in others and inspires them to have faith in themselves and to likewise succeed in their endeavors.

Believe in yourself, your family and your friends. Look for the good in all these and do something for each of them each day. This is what life is all about! This is P.M.A.

one outdoor tent, Cheney said. Among those hosting indoor events will be Adams Academy, Bethany Congregational Church Sanctuary, United First Parish Church (sanctuary and basement), New City Hall (atrium and Conference Room), Old City Hall (Council Chambers), Presidents Place (atrium, National Park Service Visitors Center, and elsewhere), Quincy High School (theatre and gym), Center for Technical Education Gym, Thomas Crane Public Library (Main Reading Room and Children's Room), Woodward School Gym, YMCA Gym, Bank of Boston, South Shore, Tent One, and Central Baptist Church (church and hall).

Cheney said the most significant new event at the First Night celebration will be the laser light show which will be held at 7:30 and 11:30 and will be projected, accompanied by music, against Presidents Place.

He added that the show is being done by Phoenix Productions of San Antonio, Texas, a company well-respected in their field.

"They come highly recommended," said Cheney, who added that the 3-D laser show will be in all color.

There will also be various ethnic themes at sites throughout Quincy Center. For instance, Cheney said, an all-Irish location will be set up at Adams Academy beginning at 8 p.m., an all-

French "Midnight in Paris" event will be held at Presidents Place starting at 7 p.m., and Italian and Jewish music and Jewish kosher foods will be among the highlights at the annual International Food Festival at the Center for Technical Education which begins at 4 p.m.

Listing some of the other highlights of the celebration, Cheney noted that this year's parade will begin at 7 p.m. at Presidents Place and will travel down Temple, Hancock and Coddington streets. Large in attendance are encouraged to join in the procession, he added.

The fireworks display, always a crowd favorite, will begin promptly at midnight. While the fireworks will be visible throughout downtown Quincy, officials have said in the past the best viewing area is in the vicinity of the Quincy Center for Technical Education and the South Shore YMCA on Coddington street.

The International Food Festival, another favorite during the city's previous three First Night events, will be held throughout the night and will feature a variety of delicacies as well as several performers.

A Pickup Truck Float Contest, an event begun last year, will offer first, second and third prizes of $1,000, $500 and $250 respectively for those who most creatively decorate their trucks.

Cheney said the truck contest should not cost participants any money to speak of because they can simply use their holiday ornaments and lights to decorate the vehicles.

Those wishing to participate in the contest should call Bill Morrill at 773-1439 or the First Night Office at 376-1071.

Entertainment will be provided by a number of musical and theatrical groups at the various sites. A number of "roving entertainers" including clowns and jugglers will be outdoors throughout the night, while other activities will include face painting, hat making, karaoke and more.

All events are handicapped accessible. Free parking will be available at Presidents Place, Ross Parking Garage, Hancock Parking Lot and other designated lots. Restrooms will be open at a number of the event sites.

Cheney said he does not anticipate weather to be a factor since the great majority of activities are happening inside, and others can be moved inside in case of rain.

"The event will go on rain or shine," he said. "Although the forecast for that night is nice."

Neither smoking nor drinking is permitted at any of the First Night locations.

Major First Night sponsors include the City of Quincy, Roche Bros., Shaw's, Stop & Shop, Atlantic Development Co., Pilgrim Health Care, Harvard Community Health Plan, American Medical Response of Massachusetts, Modern Continental American SAE, Browning-Ferris Industries, Impact Quincy and the Massachusetts Cultural Council (MCC).

Individual First Night site sponsors include South Boston Savings Bank, Quincy Hospital, MCC, South Shore Building Trades Council, Bank of Braintree, Parks and Transportation department, Dickinson Development, Citizens Bank,

Quincy 2000, First Night Quincy, Continental Cablevision, WJDA, New England Foundation for the Arts, Fiesta Shows, State Street Bank, Mass. Electric, Dependable Cleaners, Arbella Mutual Insurance, and the Quincy Arts Council.

Sponsors of the various ice sculptures made by Atlantic Ice Sculpture Co. of Weymouth are North Shore Recycled Fibers, Cashman Companies, Bank of Boston, New England Fertilizer, Dunkin' Donuts, Fallon Ambulance and South Shore Plaza. The parade is sponsored by International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers 103-National Electrical Contractors' Association and Bonkers 19, the laser show by Stop & Shop in Quincy and the fireworks by Roche Bros.

First Night '96 is funded in part by a grant from the New England Foundation for the Arts with additional support from the Massachusetts Cultural Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Agencies that provided in-kind services for the event include The Quincy Sun, WJDA Radio, Continental Cablevision, The Patriot Ledger, Bonkers 19, South Shore Building Trades Council, Emergency Services Management, Quincy Arts Council and Home Depot in Quincy.

Admission buttons are $7 before the day of the event, when they will be sold for $10, and offer access to all First Night events. Buttons may be purchased at the First Night Store, First Night Information Booth at "Button Island" (the island between Presidents Place and City Hall), Osco Drug, Stop & Shop Supermarkets, Shaw's Supermarkets, Tedeschi Food Stores, City Hall, Dunkin' Donuts, and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Cheney said First Night Quincy already is working to make next year's event even bigger and better.

"We already have some plans to top this," he said.

Cheney added, however, that volunteers are still needed to help out at this year's celebration. A volunteers' meeting was scheduled for last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

For more information about First Night, call 376-1071.

Sheets announced that the city's tax rate for commercial properties for Fiscal Year 1996 would remain at $30.58 (per $1,000), the same as the previous year, and the residential rate would drop four cents to $14.54. However, the average homeowner's bill would still increase about $30 because of an increase in city property values, he said.

The City Council subsequently approved the tax rates.

Linda Stice, executive director of the Quincy Commission on the Family, and the Family Council, the commission's advisory board conducted a drive to match city service organizations in need for the holidays with donors interested in helping.

A new $500,000 auditorium was dedicated at Quincy High School.

Quincy Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger resigned to accept a position with Harvard Pilgrim Health Care. She was replaced by longtime Quincy Savings Bank official James Chicino.

Witnesses courageously testified about how alcohol abuse has affected their lives during a special public hearing held by the Alcohol Action Group, an alliance composed of a number of service organizations designed to combat the problem in Quincy.

Officials announced the Quincy Recreation Department's after-school program would be expanding for the 1995-96 winter season.

department heads and other non-union city employees. Although most were offered the same raise as union workers--11 percent over three years--some, including members of his office staff, received larger raises.

The mayor was criticized by some for the larger increases, which he said were necessary because certain positions were being upgraded. The City Council voted 6-2 to approve the raises.

The City Council also approved Sheets' Fiscal Year 1996 property tax classification rates proposed in November.

Officials announced that Stop & Shop was interested in purchasing the UDAG parking garage behind its corporate offices in Quincy Center.

City officials said they were considering the possibility of purchasing state-of-the-art optical scan voting machines for Quincy.

The City Council passed a resolution in favor of moving into a new agreement with the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority that the MWRA begin paying the city more than $2 million a year for its use of the Fore River shipyard.

Sheets voiced support of a plan to create a Boston Harbor Islands National Recreation Area, saying it would boost the Quincy's tourism efforts and economy.

Reports circulated that Shaw's Supermarkets was interested in purchasing the Quincy Oil Co. property at 70 Quincy Ave., but city officials could not confirm that fact and company officials could not be reached.

Retiring Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro was honored by friends, family members, students and staff at Point Webster Elementary School.

A powerful nor'Easter dumped more than 10 inches of snow on the city, wiping out the city's already depleted snow and ice budget and resulting in the declaration of a snow emergency.

Quincy school teachers accepted a new contract offering them longer school days and an 11 percent pay raise over three years.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon announced that Quincy College Interim President Linda Wilson would take over as interim head counselor at Central Middle School beginning in January.

Dr. Steven Kenney, director of grants at Quincy College, was appointed acting president at the college while a search continued for a permanent president to replace Wilson.

The $2.6 million Tide Mill Plaza shopping mall and fishing pier project off Southern Artery was approved by the City Council.

The Fore River baseball field was named after longtime community activist Ray Dunn Sr.

Two Quincy High School students were stabbed in the shoulder and arm while trying to help another out of a fight.

The City Council moved to amend a law that would make it more difficult for strip clubs to set up shop in Quincy and passed a resolution vowing that the city would aid the Town of Weymouth in its battle against the Providence, R.I.-based club The Foxy Lady.

Deaths in December included: William F. Doran Jr., 75, co-founder of the Quincy Deaf Club; Clarence F. Johnson, 77, retired Air Force officer; Fred W. Huovinen, 84, former variety store owner; Kathleen A. Quinn, 93, mother of Fr. Peter Quinn, pastor of St. John's Church.

Quincy College, Johnson Settle For $250,000

Quincy College has reached a $250,000 settlement with former President O. Clayton Johnson, who was fired by School Supt.

Eugene Creodon in September 1993 for alleged mismanagement and insubordination. Johnson sued the Quincy School Committee to get his job back, and for $750,000 in back pay, in 1994. Reports recently had circulated that Johnson and the college had agreed on a figure of $250,000, a fact confirmed in a copy of the agreement provided by the college's attorneys.

Neither Johnson nor Creodon could be reached at press time. A press release issued by Murphy, Lamere & Murphy of Braintree, legal representation for the college and the School Committee, reads as follows:

"The Board of Governors of Quincy College, the City of Quincy and O. Clayton Johnson, former president of the college, announced today that they have reached a settlement which resolves all outstanding issues between the parties.

CLAYTON JOHNSON

"The parties agreed that the settlement constituted a reasonable compromise agreement and brings a reasonable conclusion to litigation which could otherwise go on for years. The parties further agreed that there is no admission of improper action by either side and the settlement does not constitute a victory for either party.

"The parties further agreed that the settlement was an attempt to get the entire matter behind them so that the college would go forward with its primary mission of providing quality education to the people of the South Shore."

Atty. Michelle McNulty, a member of the firm, declined further comment on the deal.

Johnson's Boston-based attorney, Bruce Singal, could not be reached for comment.

CPR Course At Hospital

Quincy Hospital is offering a two-part eight hour course in CPR on Tuesday, Jan. 9 and 16.

Class sessions will run from 6 to 10 p.m. at Quincy Hospital.

The course will be led by trained instructors and will offer certification through the American Heart of Association. It will include background information about heart disease, risk factors, prudent heart living and heart lung function.

Cost is $40. Class size is limited and advance registration and payment is required.

To register, or for further information, call Quincy Hospital at (617) 376-4018.
